How Schools Serve 9,000

by NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

This is the first part of a three-part series about your public schools—Arlington Heights Elementary District 25. The role of special educational programs and the financial aspects of District 25 will be discussed in following weeks. Today's story tells how the school system works and outlines the history behind public education in Arlington Heights.)

Complexity and sophistication are keynotes in the operation of Arlington Heights public schools.

Wheels of the multi-million dollar educational institution are kept turning by the work of more than 550 persons—from administrators and classr o o m teachers to clerical workers and custodians.

Some 9,000 youngsters from kindergarten to eighth-grade enter the classrooms of the district's 17 "brick and mortar" school buildings daily.

Education — the development of the mind and personality of your child — is the common denominator of this massive operation, which affects in some way almost every household in Arlington Heights.

THE TOP policy-making body of District 25 is the seven-member Board of Education. Its job is to adopt a yearly budget, to review and adopt all significant curriculum changes, to approve the hiring and firing of school personnel, to okay the spending of school monies, and to direct the administrator in his operation of the system.

Though it plays the role of overseer in setting policy, the board of education itself is constantly up before public scrutiny. All school board meetings are open to the public and the minutes of meetings are available for inspection by citizens.

District 25 voters elect school board members for three-year terms. At each April election, two or three positions on the board are open. By staggering terms, each school board has several experienced members. All board posts are non-salaried.

A president presides at school board meetings. He is chosen from the ranks of the board by its members and serves for one year.

The superintendent of schools —the c h i e f administrator— comes next in the chain of command. Hired by and responsible to the school board, he is in charge of the "operation" of the entire school system.

IN RELATIONSHIP to t h e school board, he is basically a recommending power — he recommends policies on finances, personnel, instruction, s c h o o l plant, and other phases of the school system.

These recommendations are presented at the Board of Education meetings. If they are given the "go-ahead" sign, the superintendent begins putti n g policy into action.

The chief executive officer holds a full-time, salaried position. Supt. Ralph E. Clabaugh has held that post for almost 25 years.

A professional corps of specialists help the superintendent in operating the public school system. An assistant superintendent is in charge of hiring school personnel as well as serving as public relations man for the district.

Clarendon Discussed Again

A small street again became a big problem when the Arlington Heights Village Board Tuesday voted to reconsider its former decision that denied vacation of Clarendon Street.

The issue, along with a special assessment ordinance for homeowners along the street, was sent to a special committee. The committee is expected to report back to the board within two weeks.

T r u s t e e LeRoy Bressler sparked discussion when he told trustees he had compiled new evidence on the subject.

"IF CLARENDON were put through, there is a strong possibility that it would seriously damage one corner house," he said. "I'm convinced that vacation of the street is not the answer and to deny vacation is not the answer."

He suggested that the board devise a plan to upgrade the property if it were not to be used as a street. Bressler pointed out that maintenance of the street would result in a loss of money to the village.

Trustee Frank Palmatier told the board that he had made a personal survey of the traffic on Clarendon and counted 62 vehicles and 41 pedestrians using the street in little more than an hour.

The village board Aug. 15 voted to turn down a request for vacation of Clarendon, despite vocal opposition from residents. The action represented only partial approval of a BOLI recommendation, which had urged vacating both Clarendon and Marion streets entirely.

Time for Caution

Motorists should pay special attention to those school zone speed limits now. About 9,000 youngsters are back in Arlington Heights school this week.

Twenty miles an hour is awfully slow. Slow enough to make you irritable. Slow enough t o make you late for work.

Lots of time to think. How about the first time the kids rode the school bus? Or the time they crossed the street for the first time on their own, before they'd been given permission to cross? Remember the time Johnny from next door tried walking the "tight-rope" on the curb with his books balanced on his head and fell into the street?

YES, 20 miles an hour is awfully slow.

"If we obeyed all traffic regulations, I'm sure we'd save the lives of several youngsters," Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood said.

"You have to be ever so cautious when school busses are involved because youngsters run in all directions," he said adding, "Be sure to stop." Illinois law requires vehicles moving in both directions to stop when a school bus's stop sign is out. The dangers are doubled when i t gets dark, Calderwood said.

ARLINGTON Heights now has 13 crossing guards to keep children alert to crossing hazards, but how many crossings a r e there?

Of course that kid shouldn't be in the street. You know it, and he probably knows it too, but he's there.

Twenty miles an hour is slow enough for you to avoid hitting him. Help a child across the street by driving carefully.

STANDING ON THE CORNER watching all the cars go by. Whoa! The intersection of Mitchell Avenue and Park Street is one of 13 guarded school crossings in Arlington Heights. Here Henry Holznagel, 1312 N. Mitchell Ave., holds a youngster back before helping him across the intersection by South Junior High Scchool. Holznagel has guarded the crossing for five years. (Staff photo)

To Fete Citizens Committee

The Arlington Heights Library Board decided Tuesday to stage a special presentation of architect's drawings the week of Sept. 19 for members of the special citizens' committee that helped insure passage of the January referendum.

The meeting, promised to the committee members earlier, will be held at the village hall. Committee members will be invited to make comments and constructive suggestions.

NOTING THE need for a meeting soon, library board member George C. Beacham, Jr., said, "I don't want plans to progress so far that we have t' say, it's a good idea, but . . ."

Other board members agreed with him that suggestions should be asked for when they can still be heeded.

Committee members will receive letters announcing the meeting and inviting them to attend.

214 Receives $89,520 Aid for Youth Corps

The U.S. Department of Labor has given its okay to a High School District 214 request for an $89;520 grant to operate its Neighborhood Youth Corps this year.

A Washington spokesman for Sen. Paul D o u g l a s called Paddock Publications Tuesday afternoon with word of the grant's approval.

The funding will make it possible for District 214 to provide part-time work and on-the-job counseling for 100 students during the school year.

Another 60 students will be employed next summer as part of the grant.

TOTAL OPERATION of the NYC program in the high school district will cost $112,380, part of it in space and materials. Anti-poverty funds will cover the U.S. government's $89,520 share.

To be eligible for the in-school employment, students m u s t come from low-income families and be able to benefit from the intensive guidance and counseling service that is part of the school's NYC "package."

George Theodore, NYC director whose office is located at Wheeling High School, says he will start screening students for the NYC program in a few days — as soon as the school is officially notified.

"Right now I've got more jobs than I've kids for," Theodore said ruefully Tuesday. "The kids have really sold themselves this summer."

JOBS HE WILL have to fill at the district's five schools include teacher aides, dietary assitants in the lunch room, landscape helpers, clerks and typists. All the jobs — by federal requirement — must be at the schools.

The school could arrange to subcontract for work to another public body, such as a park district. But Theodore says regulations for such subcontracts are extremely complicated. So far the school district has not tried.

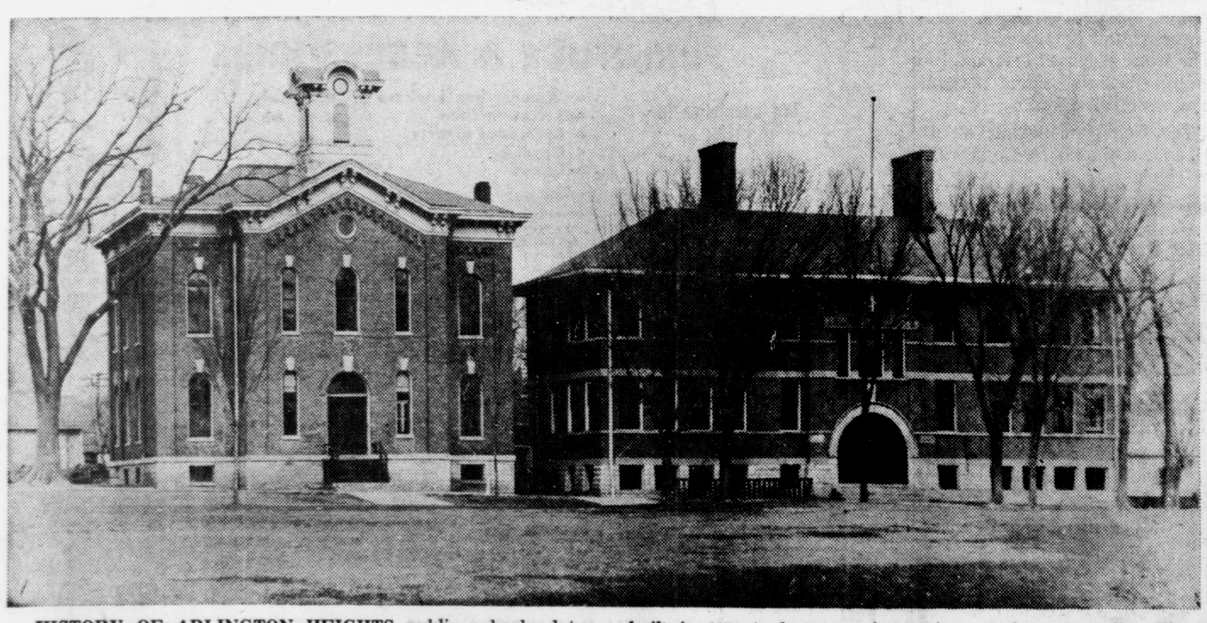
When the NYC program was proposed for District 214 a year ago, critics charged that there weren't enough poverty stricken youngsters in this affluent suburban district to make the NYC program worthwhile.

Theodore during the school year identified 130 students as eligible for the program by income standards. Some 100 were employed. He will have to rescreen all students again this year before enrolling any.

Teen Injured

A 16-year-old A r l i n g t o n Heights youth was injured Friday when he apparently leaped from a moving automobile on Ridge Avenue in Arlington Heights.

Michael A. Brown, 16, of 645 S. Vail Ave., was treated for bruises and released from Northwest Community Hospital.



HISTORY OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS public schools dates back to pre-Civil War days. Prior to 1870, school classes were held in one- and two-room schoolhouses located at Evergreen and Miner Streets. The "magnificent" brick school (left) was built in 1870 to house an increasing number of pupils. The school on the right was constructed in 1903. Built on a site at St. James Street and Arlington Heights Road, both were in use until 1938.

Move Ahead With Project

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said this week that Arlington Heights would proceed with tentative plans for a sanitary landfill project on the village's far north side despite widespread protest from Buffalo Grove homeowners.

Hanson said the opposition, organized last Thursday after the village board two weeks before had annexed a 294-acre tract at the northwest corner of Nichols and Arlington Heights Roads as the project site, was based on a "misconception" of sanitary landfill development.

About 56 acres of the site is designated as the tentative location of the disposal site. The t r a c t lies less than 1.5 miles from Buffalo Grove corporate limits.

"PEOPLE HAVE a misconception of what is a dump as opposed to a sanitary landfill," Hanson explained. S a n i t a r y landfill, he continued, is a technical process to dispose of waste that is neither unsightly nor troublesome to homeowners.

"Some fine homes are scheduled to be built right near the landfill site," Hanson added.

An estimated 1,000 Buffalo Grove homeowners have signed petitions protesting the plans on grounds that the proposed disposal project will be detrimental to health and will have an "adverse effect" on property value.

Hanson outlined procedures by which the landfill would be operated. Trenches, approximately 20 feet wide, are dug to serve as a depository for garbage, he explained.

Hanson said after the waste is deposited, the trenches are immediately covered and graded by bulldozers. There is no need for burning and no odor by using this plan, he noted.

HANSON, WHO commented that he expected opposition from homeowners, said the village considered the effects the proposed landfill project might have on nearby homes before annexing the tract.

"We want a first-class operation that won't offend anyone," Hanson emphasized.

He reiterated that the eventual use of the land under the landfill plan would be for development of a park.

Village Pres. John G. Woods said the homeowners' f e a r s w e r e "understandable," but supported Hanson's contention that the landfill would have no adverse effect.

"Probably the most objectionable feature is that garbage trucks will be driving in and out of the site," Woods remarked. "But they come by your house all the time."

WOODS EXPRESSED confidence that the proposed project would be l e s s objectionable

Woman Named For GOP

An Arlington Heights resident was named this week as the new Wheeling Township Republican committeewoman.

Appointed to the post by Committeeman Eugene F. Schlickman was Mrs. F. James (Toni) Stewart of 503 E. Grove St. Mrs. Stewart replaces Mrs. Leo Hunter, who died July 13 after serving in the position for only a week.

Since Mrs. Hunter's death, former committeewoman Mrs. Ethel Kolerus has been filling the post.

MRS. STEWART, active in GOP activities for the past 20 years, supported Schlickman in the June primary in his bid for committeeman against Thomas Novotny.

Mrs. Stewart served as a block worker, precinct captain and committee worker in Chi-

Election Coverage

Starting in this week's issue is the first of a series of articles on major state and county candidates in the November election. Featured this week are Ray Page and Donald Prince. They are seeking the office of state superintendent of public instruction.

Population Growth

Northwest suburban population is expected to go from 325,000 to 700,000 by 1980. Such growth spells the need for change and adjustment among municipalities.

Help for Libraries

Books and library materials are pouring into local school libraries under a federal program. This is a second in a series of articles telling of federal aid to local schools.

Algonquin Road

Algonquin Road is no longer the beautiful rural country road winding its way through low rolling hills. Homes, apartments, industry are making it an important local commercial route.

Tornado Warning

It wouldn't be hard for a tornado to sneak up on the suburbs and be gone before U.S. Weather Bureau even found out about it. This almost happened last June.

Rock Road Letter Still Undelivered

A letter promised Arlington Heights officials in April still hasn't arrived.

It was to carry Rock Road Construction Company's explanation of why the village pays more for cold-patch asphalt thar most other municipalities do.

Cecil C. Wabashaw o. Rock Road promised Village Pres. Joh G. Woods the letter by April 18.

Latest word from Woods is that the letter still has not come.

Woods says he still wants to see the explanation.

THE PRICE Arlington Heights pays for cold-patch asphalt, used for repairing streets, is $11.25, a higher per-ton price than that paid by 11 other suburbs.

The city of Chicago pays even more, however, $13.25 a ton for pre-mixed asphalt.

The Cook County highway department pays $11 for a similar mix, while for DuPage County the bid-determined rate is $9.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson is less disturbed about the high price Arlington Heights pays for cold-mix asphalt than are Woods and the trustees.

HANSON SAYS the village's standards are higher, too—that we specify a higher grade mix asphalt than some other municipalities.

This is a likely explanation for the pricing variations, the manager states. (A

3 Women Injured In Auto Accident

Three Arlington Heights women were slightly injured Saturday following an automobile mishap at Buffalo Grove and Palatine Roads in Arlington Heights.

One of the women, Caroline L. Sender, 22, of 7 N. Dryden Ave., Arlington Heights, gave birth to a baby shortly after the accident. Northwest Community Hospital officials said both she and the baby were in good condition.

Treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital were Eleanor M. Cunningham, 52, of 1700 N. Buffalo Grove Road and Evelyn M. Sender, 47, of 3231 N. Betty Drive.

Police said the accident occurred when the Sender car, going north on Buffalo Grove Road, was struck by an auto, operated by John B. Kress, 583 Sunset Road, Winnetka, Ill. Kress's car was headed west on Palatine Road.

The impact caused the Sender car to swerve and strike a third car, driven by Walter H. Druffel, 66, of 2100 Lilac Terrace, Arlington Heights, police said.

The elder Mrs. Sender was ticketed for failure to yield after a stop.

Report Tools Are Stolen From Trunk

Mechanic's tools valued at $1,200 were reported stolen Sunday morning by Charles E. Kesler, 107 S. Burton Place, Arlington Heights.

Kesler told police that a red tool box, a floor jack, and two jack stands were taken from a truck which he drives. The service truck is owned by Corra Plumbing Company, Des Plaines.

The items were taken from a deep well in the back of the truck, Kesler said. (A ARTIST'S DRAWING of the new library in Arlington Heights was unveiled last week showing how the structure would look according to revised building plans. Under revised drawings, the building will face Dunton Avenue (foreground) instead of Euclid Street as was orginally planned. Architects presented this drawing and floor plans at an adjourned library board meeting last week. (A

Dec. 15 Start on Building Set By Arlington Heights Library

Work on the new Arlington Heights library will begin Dec. 15 providing a tentative timetable set up at a library board meeting last week can be met.

Library trustee George C. Beacham Jr. explained the timetable at an adjourned board meeting last Thursday following a lengthy review of drawings presented by architects Nicol and Nicol, Inc. of Chicago.

The timetable hinged on meeting the Oct. 1 deadline for application for federal funds from the Illinois State Library Board.

IN ORDER to submit plans by Oct. 1, Beacham explained, the board must have working drawings of the new building by Sept. 19. Beacham assured the board that al application forms were in order.

Nicol and Nicol representatives, Robert Chaney and Milo Vanek, said they would be able to have working drawings by Sept. 19.

The timetable calls for the board to receive bids on the project by mid-November, with letting of contracts on Nov. 20.

The state board is expected on or before Nov. 15 to announce the amount of funds that will be given for construction of the $1,818,135 library. The local board is seeking approximately $393,000 in federal funds.

UNDER this schedule, Beacham said, occupants of the two homes on the site for the new library will not have to move until Sept. 30. Original deadline was to have been Saturday.

The new schedule also allows the Arlington Heights Historical Society, which is tentatively named as recipient of one of the old homes, more time to raise funds for moving the building and converting it into a museum.

Trustees passed a resolution giving the society until Oct. 15 to accept the board's offer to donate the home of Rosalie Heller, 512 N Dunton Ave., for use as a village museum. Originally, the society was to have notified the library board by next week.

The society is attempting to raise $10,000 to finance moving and renovation of the Heller home.

"WE'RE DOING everything we can to give the society the maximum amount of time," Beacham explained. The other home, located at 506 N. Dunton Ave., probably will be razed.

Groundbreaking ceremonies are slated to take place Dec. 1.

Architect representatives unveiled an artist's drawing of the proposed building showing it relocated with its entrance facing Dunton Avenue. The single-story, modernistic structure originally was to have faced Euclid Street.

THE SITE IS bounded by Vail and Dunton Avenues and Euclid and Fremont Streets.

Board members suggested several minor revisions be made on the interior and exterior of the building but generally expressed satisfaction with the revised plans.

However, Beacham indicated he was not completely sold on the design.

"I was just hoping for something a little more unique," he remarked. "That tends to look like any office building downtown." He made no recommendation that the design be revised. (A

YOU NEVER KNOW when you grow test roses. Joseph F. Koenen, 529 S. Prindle Ave., Arlington Heights, a rose tester for Jackson and Perkins Co., said he knows only the colors of the roses he tests—until they bloom. Then come the surprises which Koenen, as a tester, records for the company. Several of the roses he has tested have been put on the market, he said. (Staff photo)

A Rose Is a, a Yellow, Red, White, Blue Flower!

By BETTY FORRESTER
Staff Writer

"Roses are red," would be better said "some roses are red," if Joseph F. Koenen's garden at 529 S. Prindle Ave., Arlington Heights, is any indication of what the realm of roses has to offer.

Koenen, a spare-time rose tester for Jackson and Perkins Co. and prize-winning rose grower, has a garden of 25 rose bushes which is, he said, "about the largest size garden one person can handle." Included in his garden are red, yellow, white and blue roses.

He said he first became interested in roses when he and his wife, Frances, moved to their present home about 10 years ago.

"We built the house here," he said, "and we decided we needed a garden and some roses."

Now he exhibits as many as six of his prize roses at each of the area's garden shows.

AMONG THE shows Koenen usually hits are the Arlington Garden Show, the Libertyville Men's Garden Club Show and a Crystal Lake show. Koenen is listed as a rose tester in a new book, "The Magic World of Roses," to be published Oct. 1.

"It's been a bad year for showing roses," he said. "At one show all I had to show were two stalks of rhubarb. I got blue ribbons on them both, too," he laughed.

Garden shows present a "tricky situation," Koenen said. The preparation of the roses is much "like grooming a dog for a dog show." The rose grower must decide which roses he wishes to exhibit at a show about a month ahead of time and begin to "groom" them.

"If you were lucky," Koenen said, "you could exhibit blooms from one root at eight different shows a summer."

Only single blooms are shown, he said. The grower tries to develop a perfect bloom on a 15-inch cane. The trick is to get a rose that will bloom properly on the day of the show. Ideally, the bloom should be about two-thirds open, he said.

"SOME ROSES open almost as soon as you cut them," he said. "Other roses, no matter what you do, just won't open up for you."

Koenen said he sometimes takes more than one bloom of a variety to a show and at the last minute, decides which is the best to show. Persons can enter only one bloom of each variety, he explained.

Before the show, he and the other rose growers polish the roses' leaves and dust their petals.

As a test grower, Koenen grows four new rose varieties each summer. "The company doesn't tell you anything about the rose except its color," he said. Each rose has a separate rating sheet on which the tester notes such things as its ability to hold its color and its size. Koenen said he hasn't had time to cross roses on his own yet, but he plans to.

AMONG THE constant duties of the rose grower are spraying, watering and pruning the bushes. Koenen said he spends about an hour a week on his roses.

"Roses are actually very hearty," he said. However, he said, they must be protected against winter-kill, insects and disease. "Every rose grower has his own opinion as to the best method to prevent freezing," he added.

In addition to gaining skill in rose-growing, Koenen said he has also become an expert at digging and moving sod. He said he changed the shape of his flower beds many times before completing the two beds he has now.

Commenting on rose hues, Koenen said there are four basic colors of roses: red, yellow, blue and white.

"The whites," he said, "range from white-white to ivory; the yellows from deep mustard to very light, such as the Eclipse rose; the reds from blackish to pink. There are not too many good blues on the market."

"About one-half of the roses are a blend of a darker shade to a lighter shade throughout the petal," he said. Bi-colors are rare, he said. Mexicana, a red and white rose, is one of the few.

ROSES BLOOM all over the United States, he said. In Illinois they will bloom as many as three times a season. They bloom throughout the year in the Pacific-northwest and California and Texas.

While Mr. Koenen pampers his roses, Mrs. Koenen works with the 30 varieties of iris that she exhibits at early garden shows. The other flowers in their garden are raised more for color and fun than for shows.

Koenen, educated at Marquette University, is a consulting engineer. (A

History—You'll Find It at 805 N. Dunton

Do you know what used to be where your home stands now? Can you describe the Arlington Heights of 1854, 1900 or even 1925?

Curator of the Arlington Heights Historical Society, Mrs. Daisy Daniels can. Hostess to over 200 Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls last winter, Mrs. Daniels lectures on the village's history exhibiting the many historical items stored in her home by the society.

"I come by my love of history naturally," she said, explaining that her mother was also interested in history. Arlington Heights is the focus of most of her historical zest, as she has lived in the village continuously since 1935 and spent much of her girlhood in neighboring Palatine. Even when she and her husband lived in Oregon, she came back to Arlington Heights frequently, she said.

SPEAKING of the changes Arlington Heights has seen, Mrs. Daniels cited a few population figures. There were only 995 persons here in 1880, 2,250 in 1920 and 4,997 in 1930. "There has been steady growth since World War II," she said. Before 1900, there were only three churches in the village, she said.

Despite her love of history, Mrs. Daniels admits it is a little difficult to have a museum in one's own home. "There are snags and snags of things," she said, noting there is not adequate space to store everything.

The large majority of the historical society's artifacts are stored in her basement at 805 N. Dunton Ave. Other pieces are kept at the Wheeling Township building, while most records and pictures are filed in the living area of the Daniels home. A visit to the historical society's "museum" today is a tour of Mrs. Daniels' home.

IT'S A BUSY place. "People call about things all the time," Mrs. Daniels said as she returned from her third phone call in an hour.

There is much variety in the society's collection. Everything from the surveying instruments that were used to lay out Arlington Heights (then Dunton) and models of the young village to the kitchen articles used by early homemakers helps to tell the village's history.

In Mrs. Daniels' basement one can see the Rohlwing butter churn, old fire arms, a drum from the Arlington Heights fife and drum corps, old band hats, spinning wheels, wedding bonnets, ice tongs, camera equipment and you name it.

NOTHING, however, is displayed.

The model towns stay in their wooden cases. Bonnets lie in the boxes. Pistols remain covered and the drum and its sticks are buried in a box under other boxes as draped mannequins await the time when they can wear the clothes from the time-worn boxes.

Mrs. Daniels estimates the society has over 500 old pictures. She said she adds pictures donated by newspapers to the collection.

For Mrs. Daniels, keeping up with history is a full-time job. "I've devoted my life to it," she said. One of her major undertakings has been the cataloguing and filing of old and current Arlington Heights newspapers. Clipped articles are mounted in scrapbooks, and intact copies of the papers are filed.

"THE MOST important problems right now are the lack of space and the need to get everything placed and catalogued," she said. Local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts help with some of the typing and clipping, she said.

"The work of the historical society has been important," she said. Mrs. Daniels said she, as a representative of the historical society, has given numerous talks and presentations to school and church groups. Students working on term papers often use the information compiled by the society, too, she said.

Mrs. Daniels herself is currently working on a history of Arlington Heights. Talking about her book, she said, "I jump around in time." She said she writes the parts of the history that she is most interested in or finds good information on. "I can't say when I'll get through," she said.

Arlington Heights during World War II is her present topic. She said she gets most of her information from microfilms of old newspapers, township records, church histories and people who remember "way back when."

Among the topics she has already covered are pioneer history, early church history, the story of the railroads and the Illinois frontier story.

MRS. DANIELS said interest in Arlington Heights' history was kindled about nine years ago when the historical society was founded. She and Al Volz, 6 E. Hawthorne St., worked together to get things rolling in 1957 and held the first few meetings at the Daniels home.

From its modest beginnings, the group, now under the leadership of Mrs. John Allen, 116 W. Euclid St., has grown to about 40 members.

The society has been fortified by the fund raising work of the Friends of a Museum for Arlington Heights headed by Virgil Horath, 614 N. Haddow Ave., also a historical society member.

The combined groups are currently trying to raise $40,000 for a historical museum.

Mrs. Daniels' role in the historical society has been mainly that of curator.

"THIS IS what I want," she said. "When I finish my book, I may give it up."

For now she's busy with clipping, writing, reading, lecturing and collecting as well as keeping house for a museum crowd. (A REMEMBERING THE DAYS of the Arlington Heights Fife and Drum Corps, Mrs. Daisy Daniels, curator of the historical society, holds up one of the little group's drums. The corps was in existence from 1902 to 1907 and was made up of 24 boys. During the summers, she said, the boys took many boat excursions to St. Joseph, South Haven or Michigan City. They earned their passage for these trips by playing for half an hour before the boat left Chicago and again before the boat started the return trip. (Staff Photo) (A

Apartments Cited As Industry Lure

by DAVE CRIPPEN
News Editor

One of our readers recently posed some questions that challenged the accepted Arlington Heights philosophy of residential property development.

Since the village emerged from its era as a rural, farming town and assumed a position as a leading suburban community, local officials have strived to maintain what has been described as a "single-family, residential character." Their efforts have been not only admirable, but successful.

CRIPPEN

Simply, what they have done has made Arlington Heights a nice place in which to live.

Our reader agrees that the village is a nice place, but asserts the single-family doctrine might be hindering expansion of local industry and, thereby, broadening of the tax base.

He would ask how can the village attract light manufacturing without providing a place to live for factory workers?

Costs of single-family homes in Arlington Heights largely is out of reach to the average factory employe. Though construction of apartments has markedly increased during the past four years, rents have been tailored to fit the pocketbook of white-collar workers.

Approximately 23 apartment buildings, each valued at more than $100,000, were constructed in 1965, providing an estimated 298 units. So far this year, more than 20 apartment projects in the same category have been or are being built. These will provide another 260 units. These figures—which do not cover many more multiple-family dwellings costing less than $100,000—indicate how local appartment building is expanding. But while more apartments are available, their availability is restricted—through high rents—to the relatively affluent professsional worker.

Village leaders have worked tirelessly to attract industry to Arlington Heights, but have achieved only limited success. More clean, light manufacturing is needed, and village trustees are the first to admit it.

Our reader claims these efforts would be considerably more successful if some lower-cost, multiple-family housing were available. He makes clear he is not advocating establishment of a "workers ghetto." Rather, he explains, there is a need for some apartment developments that are attractive and well-constructed but reasonably priced.

However, chances of the village ever providing such housing are slim. The single-family philosophy is still predominant. Withiin the past few weeks, trustees have expressed concern over the number of high-rent multiple-family dwellings being constructed and have indicated reluctance to approve many more such projects in the future.

If village officials are viewing proposals for white-collar apartment developments as alarming, our reader's suggestion would probably be regarded as absurd.

Nevertheless, it is something to think about.

Planners OK $9-Million Apartment House Project

A proposal for a $9-million apartment house project on a 30-acre tract southeast of Central and Wilke Roads won the approval of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission last Wednesday.

Developer Joseph Bernstein is scheduled to present the plans to the board of trustees Sept. 19.

Commissioners also approved a special use permit for a gas station at Central and Wilke Roads. No plans have been revealed for a nine-acre site at the north end of the property zoned for limited business use (B-2).

Bernstein gave the commission revised plans with some controversial points ironed out. The new plans showed White Oak Street extended through the extreme south end of the property. The thoroughfare committee earlier had recommended this street extension, since it was the only east-west street between Central and Algonquin Roads.

PLANS FOR the project call for 12 large apartment buildings with 468 living units. A small lake, which is to serve both aesthetic and water retention purposes, is to locate in the center of the development.

The project, when completed, will also include a recreation center, depressed parking lots, a swimming pool, and garden-like areas around the buildings.

Chairman Harold Carlson commended Bernstein's plans for the easy road accessibility to each apartment house.

At the Aug. 17 hearing, the plan commission granted the developer a variation in the height of buildings for R-5 zoning.

EIGHT OF the 12 apartments will have heights of 45 feet rather than the 36 feet required by ordinance.

Architects for the project are Hirschfeld, Pawlan & Reinheimer of Chicago.

The living units are of the luxury type with rental scales ranging from $170 to $330.

Planners Support New Shop Center

Plans for the multi - million dollar Northgate Shopping Plaza on the village's north side will come before the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees Sept. 19. The $4-million shopping center received its first go-ahead sign last Wednesday from the plan commission.

The community shopping center is proposed for a 20-acre tract northeast of Rand Road between Arlington Heights and Palatine Roads.

Five major chain stores were revealed as future tenants of the shopping center. They are a Turn Style promotional department store operated by the Jewel Company, Jewel Foods, Kroger Foods, and Walgreen Drugs. A Mobil Oil gas station is proposed for the corner of Rand and Arlington Heights Roads.

LEASING agent for the shopping center will be Edwin A. Edelberg of Morris, Edelberg & Son, 188 West Randolph St., Chicago. Architect is Herbert Shaffer Associates, Inc., of Chicago, and associate architect is George R. Cohan & Associates of Livernois, Mich.

Commission members raised only mild questions about the developer's plans. They criticized the lack of elevation layouts in the presentation Wednesday and sought the correct terminology for a tire, battery, and accessory center to be located in the development.

Architect Shaffer told the commission that, because negotiations with future tenants were not finalized, he was unable to make final building sketches of the shopping center.

Commissioners gave an okay to the proposed accessory center.

THEY SAID that because it would not be used to sell gasoline but rather to sell and install automobile accessories, the building would not need a special use permit.

Developer of Northgate center is Joseph Freed of Glencoe.

Representing the petitioners was attorney Howard Borde of Chicago. Attorney for the shopping center is Paul Homer of Friedman, Koven, Salzman, Koenigsberg, Specks and Homer.

Plans for future development of the 246,000 square-foot shopping plaza include construction of a first-class restaurant on the west side and a 47,000 square-foot building on the east side of the center. Builders said the east side building would be a furniture or appliance store or subdivided into several smaller shops.

THE FIRST phase of development, slated for completion in the fall of 1967, will include 176,000 square feet of space under the same roof.

A 1,000 car parking lot, dotted with trees, is projected for the land adjacent to Rand Road.

Registration Set For November Vote

Wheeling Township voters who are unable to register during daytime hours will be able to register from 7 to 9 p.m. next Wednesday.

Special night hours for voter registration will be held by both Mrs. Jeanne Novotny, Arlington Heights village clerk, and Mrs. Dorothy Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk. Mrs. Novotny will take registrations of residents at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road. Residents of unincorporated areas may register at the township hall, 1818 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

BOTH CLERKS are taking registrations during the regular daytime office hours through Monday, Sept. 19. Daytime registration hours for Arlington Heights residents are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration hours at the township hall are 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Voters may also register in the office of the County Clerk, Room 230, County Building, Randolph and Clark, Chicago, through Monday, Oct. 10, or at their local precinct polling places on Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Voters who have moved within Cook County may file changes of address by mail. Changes should be mailed to the county clerk before the Oct. 10 deadline. Persons moving from Chicago or suburbs also under the Chicago board of election commissions, cannot merely file for a change of address. "If you have a yellow voter card, you must register again," Mrs. Novotny said.

Arlington Heights residents who have questions or cannot come during the announced hours may call Mrs. Novotny at CL 3-2340 or CL 5-3494.

Mrs. Stewart Named Committeewoman

cago between 1947 and 1958. She later moved with her family to Butler County, Ohio, where she was active in the Republican woman's club.

She also helped found the Republican Ward Organization in Asheville, N. C., while a resident there.

"The primary fault of Republicans is that they stay home from the polls, assuming their candidate will get elected," Mrs. Stewart said, noting that her biggest task would be to stir up overt support for GOP candidates.

"IF I HAD a slogan," she continued, "it would be, 'every Republican on the rolls, every Republican at the polls.' "

Mrs. Stewart said she assisted both Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Kolerus while they were committeewomen.

Schlickman will formally announce Mrs. Stewart's appointment at a Wheeling Township Republican meeting Friday night.

Commenting on his choice for committeewoman, Schlickman said, "She is experienced in Republican activity, has a most pleasant personality, is appreciative of the need for a strong organization, and has a willing spirit."

MRS. F. JAMES STEWART

Mrs. Stewart has three children: Finlay J. Stewart, III, on duty as a naval officer; Carol, 14, a freshman at Arlington High School; and David, 9, fifth grader at Westgate School. She and her husband have lived in Arlington Heights for more than two years.

Traffic lights rather than a pedestrian overpass will be installed at Palatine and Schoenbeck Roads in Prospect Heights.

According to Richard Golterman, assistant superintendent of the Cook County Highway Department, actual plans for the intersection are still incomplete and he couldn't say whether the lights would be in by October or November.

His department, he said, is in the process of developing the plans and probably would need a "couple more weeks" to finalize them. Several different plans had been presented, Golterman said, but the department was not satisfied with any of them and sent them back for revision.

"It will also take some time to get the job into a contract," he continued. "It will take two weeks of advertising for bids, then the bid opening, the award of the contract and then time to get the men on the job. If we can't get a reasonable bid on the project, the cycle has to start all over."

"WE HAD HOPED to have something in before now," Golterman said. "We have exhausted all our efforts on what analyses should be and hope there will be no objections to our plans."

Safety measures for the intersection developed into a community controversy earlier this year.

After the advent of Palatine Road as a "junior expressway," the Prospect Heights District 23 school board became alarmed for the safety of students attending the schools at the southwest corner of the intersection. A number of collisions and two fatalities, none involving school children, occurred at the crossing, prompting school officials to seek traffic control measures from the highway department.

BECAUSE they felt there was no possibility of getting stop lights installed on a newly constructed highway, the school board requested a pedestrian overpass.

County drawings for the structure included a blockade of Schoenbeck Road, whereupon the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) passed a resolution opposing the plan as detrimental to the community, "virtually cutting it in half."

The highway department at that time said that there was no possibility of installing traffic signals because Palatine Road was a federally assisted project and surveys of the crossing did not meet the volume necessary for such devices.

School officials requested opinions from the community and received 80 letters, 72 of them opposing the blockading of Schoenbeck. Because of the response, the school board tabled acceptance of the county's plan for the overpass in order to consider the situation further.

On May 9, the school board accepted the county plans for the overpass by a 4 to 3 vote. Board Pres. Robert LeForge, J. D. Elston, Dave Dresser and Roy Weinberg voted for the measure with Mrs. Martha Koelsch, Mrs. Maureen Sandstrom and John Chandler dissenting.

Just before the vote, Mrs. Sandstrom reported that Hugo Stark, highway department engineer, claimed the installation of traffic signals at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads would greatly increase the volume of traffic on the lesser thoroughfare. He predicted that within five years the community would beg to have Schoenbeck Road closed.

THE VOTE prompted the PHIA to write to the highway department asking a delay in their decision until the homeowners group could demonstrate the community's feeling. The organization circulated petitions throughout the area which resulted in 850 signatures opposing the blockading. These were presented to the county highway officials.

The Arlington Heights village board, acting on a recommendation from its public safety committee, also passed a resolution opposing the closing of Schoenbeck, and it was forwarded to the highway department.

The board advocated installation of traffic lights and the construction of the pedestrian overpass, a plan that was consistently refused consideration by the county. Golterman had pointed out that children could cross safely at grade level if traffic signals were installed, making the overpass unnecessary. Nor would the highway department consider the overpass without the closing of Schoenbeck.

Upon receipt of the PHIA petitions and the resolution from Arlington Heights, the county decided to reconsider the entire situation. At that time Golterman said, "We can't please everybody, but we will try to please the majority."

FIRE CAUSED an estimated $2,000 worth of damage to Arlington Heights Park District property last week when it burned out the cab of this dump truck. The park-owned truck was parked in a locked shed at Pioneer Park when the fire started. A passer-by reported the fire to the fire department. The cause of the blaze has not been determined. (A

Horse Hit By Auto, Rider Hurt

In a freak mishap Saturday evening, a horseback rider was struck by an auto at Arlington Heights Road and Sunset Drive in Arlington Heights.

Police said the horse was struck on the right side by a car driven by James E. Millay, 71, of 122 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights.

THE RIDER, Monroe Fields, 35, of Melrose Park, was treated for skull and rib injuries and dismissed from Northwest Community Hospital.

Owner of the horse, William Parks of Palatine, told police the horse had been only slightly injured. It was taken home by Parks.

Public School System Serves 9,000 Pupils

tion, business manager, and 14 principals are also one step below the superintendent in the organizational ladder.

The instructional director supervises the curriculum program. He works with consultants in organizing in-service training programs for teachers.

The business manager takes care of all the financial aspects of the system, from the annual budget and payrolls to accounting procedures and monthly invoices.

Principals are charged with responsibility for each school building, keeping records of pupils and evaluating teachers.

Galley 2 How Schools

The specialization of the present school system is a recent innovation — coming in the last decade. Its operation was comparatively simple prior to that time.

PUBLIC EDUCATION in Arlington Heights got its start in 1849—in a dreary one-room grammar school on the corner of Miner and Evergreen Strets. A handful of students sat on the hard, wooden benches which lined the walls. Their teacher, Sarah Thurston, doubled as a janitor for the building. The school system was District 10.

Enrollment grew slowly, until, in 1856, a two-room school house was needed; then again, in 1870, a four-room school was built. This "magnificent" $10,000 brick school, located on a site at St. James Street and Arlington Heights Road, had the first school administrator —Harrison Merry. Under his progressive direction, pupils were separated according to grade levels for the first time.

Because of a change in school boundaries, the system became District 25 at the turn of the century.

High school courses were added to the curriculum as the community grew. But District 25 returned to elementary education after the "eight years war" — from which high school district 214 emerged as a legal district.

In 1926 citizens looked for a school site on the south side because the "hazardous" railroad tracks endangered their children's lives as they crossed the tracks. South School (today's South Junior High) was built. Twelve years later the north side got a new school (today's North School) on Arlington Heights Road.

AFTER WORLD WAR II a subdivision building boom in the village caused school enrollment rates to shoot skyward. The number of students almost doubled each five years. In 1945 there were about 600 students; in 1950, more than 1,000. Between 1955 and 1960, the school population increased by 87 per cent and almost doubled again by 1965 when there were 8,200 pupils.

This year school officials expect more than 9,000 students — an increase of several hundred pupils over last year's enrollment.

Today the enrollment figures continue to increase. Experts say, however, a saturation enrollment may be reached by 1970-71. At that time they estimate some 10,880 school children in District 25. Their projections are based on the number of new housing units in the village and the restrictions of the available land areas.

THESE EXPERTS have broadcast the future growth to center primarily in the north part of the district. Three new school buildings — one junior high and two elementary schools — are projected for that area.

A look to the future reveals continuing expansion — at least for several years. As more students come into District 25, more schools, teachers, and programs are needed for their education.

THE LUTHERAN HOME and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, invites guests to tour the new wings of the home at the annual fall festival this Sunday afternoon. The Rev. J. M. Kempf, executive secretary of the home, and Mrs. Evelyn Thormahlen, one of the home's residents, talked of plans for the festival as they sat in one of the lounges in the new part of the building. Besides tours of the building, there will be outdoor worship services, displays and a lunch at the festival. (Staff photo)

May Delay Action On Busses, Tax Levy

There are a couple question marks on next Monday's High School District 214 board agenda.

With Business Manager Francis Coleman in the hospital for a kidney stone operation, school officials say they may have to scratch discussion of the school district's contracts with Davidsmeyer Transportation Co. and Cook County School Bus Co.

Board passage of the 1966 tax levy also may be delayed. If the county deputy superintendent of schools, Robert G. Hayes, has not approved the Prospect High School life safety code remodeling plans by next Monday, the tax levy resolution will be postponed to the Sept. 26 board meeting.

ITEMS THE board will discuss at the 7:30 p.m. meeting is Slichenmyer Administration Center, 799 Kensington Road, Mount Prospect, include:

— A possible faculty attitude survey, with the board asked to weigh advantages of in-depth interviewing and a proposed University of Chicago tabular-form opinion poll.

—Plans for a Past Presidents' Night on Oct. 17.

—School organizations lists and appointment of an activity fund treasurer. Coleman has been proposed for that post.

—Changed building rental charges for out-of-school organizations wishing to meet in one of the high schools.

ARCHITECTS are expected to give the board an extimate of costs of building a defense shelter into the sixth high school. (ACME

Motorist Hurt

A 63-year-old motorist was injured slightly when his car struck a tree on Arlington Heights Road Monday.

Police said Richard Blecke, 1410 E. Olive St., apparently fell asleep at the wheel or blacked out when his car hit a tree on the parkway. Blecke was treated for lacerations and released from Northwest Community Hospital.

Can Explodes, Hurts Youth

A can of benzoyal peroxide exploded injuring a 17-year-old Arlington Heights youth Tuesday evening.

Steve Clark, 910 N. Princeton Ave., was treated for burns on the face and hands and released from Northwest Community Hospital.

The youth told police he had been playing with the chemicals in his back yard when the accident occurred.

BOLI Plans Walks Study

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) has invited the village board and other officials to take a long look at sidewalks in the northwest quadrant Saturday.

The group plans to board a bus at the city hall about 9 a.m. and discuss needed sidewalks as it passes them.

BOLI members formerly planned to bring their individual recommendations to a regular meeting. However, they agreed the matter deserved special attention and decided to discuss the area as a board.

The northwest quadrant is the first of the four sections of the village to be considered. The order in which the other quadrants will come up has yet to be determined.

College Leaders Cite Road Needs

Representatives of the William Rainey Harper Junior College told members of the Palatine Planning Commission that thoroughfare roads would be the greatest need around the site of the planned college on Algonquin Road near Roselle Road on the southern edge of Palatine.

"We don't make good neighbors to a suburban community, because as a commuter college, most of our students will be driving back and forth. This doesn't work well with narrow residential streets," College Pres. Robert Lahti told the commission.

LAHTI told the commission that because the college would need thoroughfare accesses, a plan providing the development of light industry, such as research concerns, or apartment developments should be initiated.

The college administrator said that the development of residential areas on large tracts of land north of the 200-acre college site would hamper access to the school and student traffic would disturb possible residents.

COMMISSIONER Thomas Moody told a delegation led by Lahti that as far as he was concerned village planning for that area was "still open." He asked if the college would require any commercial development.

"No," Lahti said, "because we are a commuter college, we will be completely self-sufficient. Most of our students will be driving to the college, where they are 10 minutes from shopping centers, and we are providing cafeteria, book stores and other services on campus."

Asked if most of the college faculty seek apartments or other accommodations, college representatives said that the teachers would probably disburse through the suburban area as the faculties of any given high school.

"OUR PEOPLE will have master's degrees and will be seeking single-family dwelling units through out the area," Lahti said.

Moody told the delegation that he would send plans for the village's possible development in the unincorporated area of the school to its architects.

Construction of the school is to begin this spring on a campus that will eventually accommodate eight thousand day students and about that many evening scholars.

"Lots of money is being spent for beautiful buildings on the campus. They should attract luxury apartment dwellings," the planning board was told.

$10,000 Granted To School Program

Elk Grove School District 59 has received a $10,000 grant for developing its Brentwood School "individualized prescription instruction" (IPI) program.

The state grant is added financial help to the district, which received $35,000 for development and demonstration of the program.

"I'm convinced this (IPI) is the biggest idea on the educational scene," said Supt. Roger Bardwell Tuesday announcing the grant. The IPI program developed in the Oakleaf schools in Pittsburgh, in connection with the University of Pennsylvania, will not work unless the adults-to-children ratio is doubled, Bardwell said.

Personnel in federal and state offices of education will give financial help for the program because they also support it, Bardwell told the school board. "If it's as good as we think it is, the community will support the program with money from their pocket eventually," he added.

The announcement of the grant was accompanied by announcement of staff re-assignments. Ethan Grove, Brentwood School principal and director for the IPI program, will have an assistant principal, Harold Hoeksema, a mathematics teacher from Grove Junior High School who also will teach.

The board also approved about a $6,000 salary expenditure for 40 per cent of the time of Dr. Joseph Ellis of Northern Illinois University to help evaluate federal programs. Even if the school district did not get its $400,000 federal operational grant for a teacher training center, money would be available for Ellis' salary, Bardwell said. It would come from that alloted for Bill Merz, testing consultant who left District 59.

Ellis also will receive about $500 expense money for travel.

In another assignment change, Bardwell said Charles Welch of Wheaton will be moved from Salt Creek School to a position as assistant principal at Clearmont School. Welch taught intermediate grades at Salt Creek.

Donald Shields, of Arlington Heights, assistant principal at Clearmont School, has been transferred to Grove Junior High School to fill the mathematics vacancy created by Hoeksema's transfer. (A(M when homeowners learned exactly what was involved.

He also raised the possibility that neighboring communities, such as Buffalo Grove, might want to share the landfill.

In the midst of the resident uproar, Buffalo Grove's village board took a milder stand last week and voted to request Arlington Heights to consider an alternate access to the landfill site.

The board's objection is that for the next 20 years trucks loaded with garbage will parade along Arlington Heights Road, the "front door" to Buffalo Grove's mammoth Glen F. Grove development, which is now under construction. Buffalo Grove trustees hope Arlington Heights might consider building an alternate road off Dundee, located south of the site, to conceal trucks from nearby homes.

Hanson said such an access was being considered, but was reluctant to say Arlington Heights Road would not be used.

Buffalo Grove last spring turned down an offer from owners of the land involving a proposal for an identical project.

LEADER OF the homeowners' protest, James Arnold of 194 Glendale Road, Buffalo Grove, said he will present the signed petitions to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission when it considers rezoning of the land. All of the land is zoned single-family (R-1), and a public hearing must be held before rezoning can take place.

The northern portion of the site—about 223 acres—is to be developed as an 18-hole golf course. About 15 acres extend into Lake County.

The proposed landfill would save Arlington Heights money it must now pay to cart its garbage to a dump in Mundelein.

Move To Condemn Van Deusen Land

The Arlington Heights Village Board this week took firm action in its attempts to acquire the Van Deusen property, 11 S. Arlington Heights Road, for a village parking lot.

The board Tuesday voted unanimously to initiate condemnation proceedings against the property because months of price negotiations between the village and owner Mrs. Ruth C. Van Deusen failed to bring about an agreement.

THE VILLAGE wants to tear down the 75-year-old home on the property to clear the way for a 60-car parking lot. The proposed lot is part of the village board's comprehensive plan for expansion of parking facilities.

The board for some time has considered the half-acre site, located just north of the municipal building, ideal for a downtown lot.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson reported last month that he expected to arrive at a price agreement with Mrs. Van Deusen. After several indications from Hanson that a settlement could not be reached, it became apparent the village would move to condemn the property.

HANSON SAID Mrs. Van Deusen had been notified Wednesday of the village board's action.

The three-story brick home was built in 1891 by Henry Meyer, a beer distributor and village trustee.

Ungraded Reading Program Is Success at St. Peter's

When they reached fourth grade, every single child could read at a fourth-grade level.

This, as far as he's concerned, is the "proof of the pudding" for Principal Lester Rush of St. Peter's Lutheran School in Arlington Heights.

The solid mastery of reading is the result, St. Peter's teachers believe, of a unique ungraded primary program now starting its fifth year.

"A child should progress at his own pace," is the rationale fo the ungraded program, explains Mrs. Peter Bartz, supervisor of the pioneering primary system.

A veteran of 18 years of teaching, the wife of St. Peter's pastor says she was in charge of conventional third grade classes for 13 years.

"Every year I asked myself, 'Why are there some children who can't read?'," Mrs. Bartz relates. "For many years I told myself, 'There must be a better way than this'."

ST. PETER'S believes it has found the "better way."

It admits children at age five into a half-day kindergarten, moves them to a full day "pre-primary" class as soon as they are ready, and then takes them through first, second and third grade material in easy steps.

Some children move ahead quickly; two of the brightest St. Peter's pupils finished the entire K-3 curriculum in two years. Others take longer—particularly boys, Mrs. Bartz says, who may mature more slowly.

But at St. Peter's each child progresses at his own rate. The slow-starting child who needs extra time to grow in learning gets that time — and without feeling that he's losing out.

The St. Peter's program is adapted from a similar one in Minneapolis, which the parochial school teachers heard about first at a lecture. When the local teachers brought their proposal for a similar ungraded primary to the St. Peter's lay school board, the board gave permission for a one-year test.

NOW THE go-at-your-own-speed primary is no longer on trial. St. Peter's each year draws some of its new teachers from Concordia Teachers College graduates who have heard about the ungraded primary and want to do their teaching here.

Curriculum coordination and parent understanding are two keys to the program's success, Mrs. Bartz believes. The staff spends a whole week going over the curriculum before school starts, until each teacher knows what's going on in each of the three "groups" found in each primary room.

Parents are "talked through" the same procedure. At early fall meetings each classroom teacher will explain just where her class—not referred to as a first grade or a second grade, as far as the St. Peter teachers are concerned—stands now in terms of knowledge, where it's going to go and how.

The success of the ungraded primary was amply demonstrated in an all-school spelling test a year ago. Fourth graders—the only group so far to spend all its early school years in the ungraded primary—bested the fifth and sixth.

The 650-pupil St. Peter's School has a long tradition. The Lutheran congregation took on the responsibility of providing religious-oriented schooling for its children when the immigrants' church had only been in Arlington Heights four years. That was in 1864.

Classes at St. Peter's are small, no more than 27 in a primary room and no more than 33 in junior high. Ninety-one per cent of the congregation's families send their children to the school, which also admits children of the sister Faith Lutheran congregation if there is room. For the St. Peter's children, the school is tuition free. (A

CHILDREN AT ST. PETER'S Lutheran School will be given every opportunity to advance at their own pace. The school has incorporated an ungraded system into the first three grades. Under it some children advance more quickly than others, but all reach fourth grade (where ungraded work ends) better able to handle their studies. Here Miss Deloris Kark works with two of her students, John Korte, 6, 821 N. Harvard Ave., and Britta Bolin, 6, 218 N. Beverley Lane. (Staff photo)

Sublett has been asked to discuss "State Programs for Delinquent Children—Past, Present and Future."

He will provide background for current state league study of the Illinois Youth Commission, the agency which deals with juvenile delinquents.

BECAUSE OF their interest in youth problems, area police chiefs, juvenile officers, school officials and youth commission personnel have been given special League invitations to the meeting.

Tree Is 'Braided' To Save Its Life

To be a straight tree or assume a clump form was the question for a little American Ash at 1516 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights.

With tende care and tedious braiding, the tree's three offshoots have been combined to make one trunk. The trunk's air-filled loops are subject to many comments from onlookers. But the young tree is holding its own as it grows upward rather than outward.

Tree expert Carl Klehm of Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Arlington Heights, said the main trunk of the tree must have died. The tree's owner then apparently braided the offshoots together.

KLEHM SAID the tree parts of the trunk will eventually become a solid trunk as they graft onto one another. "It would be interesting to compare the way this trunk is now with the way it will be in four years," Klehm said.

Although not many braided tree trunks are found along the village's streets, Klehm said it is relatively easy to work with young trees in the spring when their sap is running and their trunks are most supple. He noted that he has trained some of his trees into hoops, braids and balls.

He said he bends and ties the branches in the shape he wants them to grow. They eventually graft onto each other maintaining the form into which he fashioned them. (A

Museum Plugs Ahead; Have $5,000 Pledged

Little noise but lots of work is behind the museum fund drive in Arlington Heights.

Friends of a Museum for Arlington Heights report cash funds of about $5,000 according to Mrs. Z .R. Rogozinski, 1219 Woodford Place, publicity chairman. Counting pledged monies, the group has about $6,000 in resources.

CHAIRMEN of the various divisions of the drive have been contacting individuals, businesses and organizations in the community. The Arlington Heights Woman's Club will hold a series of "coffees" to raise money for its $1,000 pledge.

Altogether the Friends group hopes to raise $40,000 for the museum. (A

DAMP Gets Okay From Arlington

Arlington Heights will participate in a feasibility study on area water supply sponsored by the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

The board of trustees Tuesday voted to allot $1,500 to DAMP for the study. The three other minicipalities agreed to participate in the project. The study is to be made by consulting engineers Consoer, Townsend and Associates of Chicago.

Sam Curry, Arlington Heights representative to DAMP, made the plea for funds. He told trustees that the study will include:

—AN UP-DATED feasibility study of obtaining Lake Michigan water for the suburbs.

—an evaluation of the current cost of the separate water facilities in each municipality.

—an estimated cost of providing lake water to the suburbs by way of Chicago (Des Plaines is presently participating in such a project).

—an investigation of the possibility of pooling water facilities under the DAMP commission.

CURRY emphasized that the project would involve study of "a combination of ways" to solve the water shortage problem. He said DAMP is still in an investigative stage, and plans no immediate action.

Village Pres. John G. Woods commended Curry for the commission's "original thinking" in pursuing the water study. (A

CERTAIN MEDICINES AFFECT DRIVING ABILITY

Perhaps you know that sleeping capsules leave a drowsy effect that lasts from 12 to 14 hours. If you must drive, take extra care. Tranquilizers expose you to the same danger.

Some cold or allergy remedies contain antihistamines, which while good for their intended purpose, also have the effect of impairing driving judgment. If you are taking any medicine and are not certain of such side effects, please ask us. Pharmacists are taught this knowledge at college.

Village to Qualify For Medicare Program

The Arlington Heights department of public health will have to tack on a "second service" to its regular home-care program in order to qualify for Medicare funds.

The need for an additional service was pointed out last Friday at a meeting of village health officials and representatives of Cook County and Illinois departments of health.

Arlington Heights, represented at the meeting by Mrs. Maria Coburn, director of health, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson and Dr. Richard Treanor, board of health member, still is not certified as a participating Medicare agency.

TO QUALIFY for certification, the village must provide an additional health care service, such as speech therapy explained Dr. John B. Hall, director of the Cook County department of public health.

Mrs. Coburn said she filed a request earlier this year for a half-time registered nurse to aid her in home-patient care. Although requests for care from persons 65 or older have not increased with the initiation of Medicare, this added nursing help is needed to meet the demands of an increasing population, she stressed.

Mrs. Grace Musselman, assistant director of nursing services for the Illinois Board of Health, opened the meeting last week by saying, "We have in this state a patchwork quilt of organizations providing varying health services."

THE PURPOSE of the meeting, she explained, was to help local officials decide which organization would provide nursing services that would qualify for Medicare funds. She recommended that official local health departments seek federal certification.

"It would be a feather in your community's cap to provide the service from your local health agency," she said. She noted, however, that neighboring communities often pooled their public health resources to meet home-hursing care demands.

ARLINGTON Heights representatives said they preferred that the village health department provide the services.

Also on hand at the meeting were public health officials from Des Plaines. (A

Home Contents To Be Auctioned

Arlington Heights Library Board members agreed Tuesday night to dispose of the marketable fixtures in the Bray home, 514 N. Dunton Ave., through public auction on Saturday, Nov. 5.

Discussing the possibility of an auction, Mrs. Florence Hendrickson, president of the board, said she felt an auction might bring in revenue for the new library.

Arrangements for the auction are to be made by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who is serving as project director. The board, however, did specify that purchasers would be responsible for removing their acquisitions from the property within five working days of the auction which would be no later than Friday, Nov. 11.

THE BOARD considered holding the auction over a period of two days but rejected the idea. Mrs. Hendrickson said interested parties would probably make a point of coming the first day and it was better not to drag the sale out.

Disposition of the Heller home, 506 N. Dunton Ave., and its contents remains uncertain. The Historical Society of Arlington Heights has until Oct. 15 to decide whether or not it will accept the village's offer of the building, to be moved and set up as a museum. (A

Surrey Ridge West Back to Committee

A proposal for development of the 136-acre William Behn farm was referred back to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Tuesday by the board of trustees.

A representative of Miller Builders, Inc., developers of the area, submitted revised plans—which showed a decrease in the multiple family zoning (R-5) from 25 to 18 acres.

The new plans call for apartment zoning in a parcel north of the commercial district. A 13-acre parcel to the east, originally proposed for R-5 zoning, was revised as single family residential area.

BECAUSE THE change involves rezoning to a higher density use in some areas, the petitioners are required to republish their zoning requests.

The new layout seemed to satisfy the trustees, who previously had objected to the large amount of multiple unit dwellings in the project.

Miller Builders are also asking for about 15 acres for commercial use and about 100 acres for residential use.

The proposed development, named Surrey Ridge West, is located in an unincorporated area adjacent to Golf Road northeast of Algonquin Road, south of the village. (A

Supt. of Public Instruction Contest

Defending His Record

RAY PAGE, incumbent, says Illinois has "the most outstanding educational system this state has ever known." (A-15 (Staff photo by Larry Cameron)

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

Ray Page obviously enjoys the politicking that goes with the state superintendent of public instruction's job.

On the stump almost constantly between now and Nov. 8 as he seeks re-election on the Republican ticket, Page says he is convinced his office is one in which the public must have its say.

Page campaigned in 1962 for establishing a State Board of Education that would appoint the state school officer.

In the 1965 General Assembly, his lieutenants lobbied hard—and successfully—against a bill to establish a State Board of Education and take the state superintendent off the ballot.

"I supported a state board of education in 1962. I will support one today, provided that it is a state board of education established by geographic regions of the state and elected by the people. I will not support a state board of education appointed by the governor," he declared.

"AND AS LONG as there isn't an elected board?" the interviewers asked.

"I would oppose it. For the simple reason that I would not want to see another board established like the junior college board," asserted Page, ". . . with not a single junior college board member south of Bloomington."

ELECTION INTERVIEW SERIES

The interviews with Ray Page and Donald Prince are the first of a series prepared by Paddock Publications staff writers on all major state and county candidates in the coming November election.

Page showed the political skill that made it possible for him to make the long jump from a championship basketball coach's position to the state superintendency by adding, "If they want to remove the office of public instruction from the realm of politics, I invite the governor and my opponent to join me in proposing the legislation for the state board as would also put the state library, the state museum, the department of licensing and registration, Head Start and manpower training all under the department of public instruction where they belong."

THE REPUBLICAN candidate was sarcastic in referring to Gov. Otto Kerner's proposal for a shorter ballot. "There is one individual in the state who thinks he ought to appoint all state officers but himself. I frankly don't believe that this is good, I believe that this is ruining the two party system when you take all state offices out of politics, out of the elective process."

Page is not among those who think politics and schools have no connection. He defends his preference for an elected—rather than appointed—state board of education by saying, "We're talking about an area, education, that is going to affect every person in the state."

And he asserts, "Education will go backwards in this state the day we have a state school officer who has no political savvy, even if he's appointed. It's part of the American way of life, there's nothing dirty about it."

PAGE PUTS those views to practice—in national politics as well as in the legislature. During the 1964 Republican convention, Page served as secretary of the state delegation that supported Goldwater.

During the Paddock interview, he spoke of himself as a "more moderate than conservative."

Page would like to see state aid to schools go up from the present $326 to $400 per child, and says he will propose that amount to the next General Assembly. Such an increase would bring the state's share of local schooling up from 23 to 32 per cent, Page estimates.

"The average state pays 53 per cent," the state superintendent noted.

He added that he felt use of local property taxes for school support had reached its "saturation point." Increasing state aid is thus imperative, the Republican candidate indicated, if you don't want the demand for federal school aid to increase.

PAGE SAID he did not know where the state would get the funds to provide a $400-per-child foundation grant. He asserted that his duty as state school officer was to "identify the needs and report them to the governor," not to say "this is where the revenue should come from."

He assessed the proposed new Revenue Article as one that would "assist" in providing funds. "I do not necessarily think it is a good article," he stated.

Illinois today has "the most outstanding educational system this state has ever known," the incumbent state superintendent declares.

He pointed with pride at a Harvard rating which, he said considered Illinois "one of the top four" state offices of education in the country with its personnel "better qualified than 80 per cent of the liberal arts colleges in the country." But he was vague about the criteria used.

DR. DONALD M. Price, Page's Democratic opponent, has charged that the state superintendent's office is undermanned. Page admits there are vacancies among staff charged with supervising local school use of federal funds, but blames it on unresolved questions about whether those personnel still qualify for the state teachers' pension system.

He said he had added "about 75 people" to handle the federal aid to education requests funneled through his office from local schools. The U.S. allotment for handling the federal programs was liberal—as large as "my entire appropriation for operating the office for one year," Page added.

Page praised Illinois school districts' use of federal funds. Of 1,300 school districts eligible for aid under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (P.L. 89-10), 975 took part, the state superintendent stated.

"When the record is written," said Page of the federal program, "we will have done the most effective job in the U.S."

Incumbent Gives Opinions On Governing Universities

Support for a proposed change in the governing of state universities was voiced by Ray Page, incumbent candidate for state superintendent of instruction.

The proposal, which originated with a technical study committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) calls for removal of Northern Illinois University in DeKalb and Illinois State University in Normal from the jurisdiction of the Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities.

The two schools, along with Eastern and Western Illinois Universities and Illinois Teachers College North and South in Chicago, are now governed by the Board of Directors.

THE STATE'S TWO other public universities, University of Illinois and Southern Illinois University, each have individual boards of governors.

Page said he supports the change in light the growth and quality of the institutions.

In another area, however, he disagrees with a proposal made by the same committee.

He is in favor of developing branch campuses, he said. (Chicago Circle campus is a branch of the University of Illinois.)

"I think branch campuses are essential," Page said, "in going through the growing pains of development."

He did add that he thought both Chicago Circle and the Edwardsville campus of Southern could eventually become separate universities.

The IBHE committee suggested, instead of branch campuses, that assistance in the development of new campuses should come from existing universities. The committee stressed, however, that each campus should have its own administration.

PAGE ALSO suggested that vacancies in private universities in the state be filled before a mass state-sponsored building program is launched.

He said there are about 8,000 vacancies this fall in such schools as Northwestern University and Millikin and Knox Colleges.

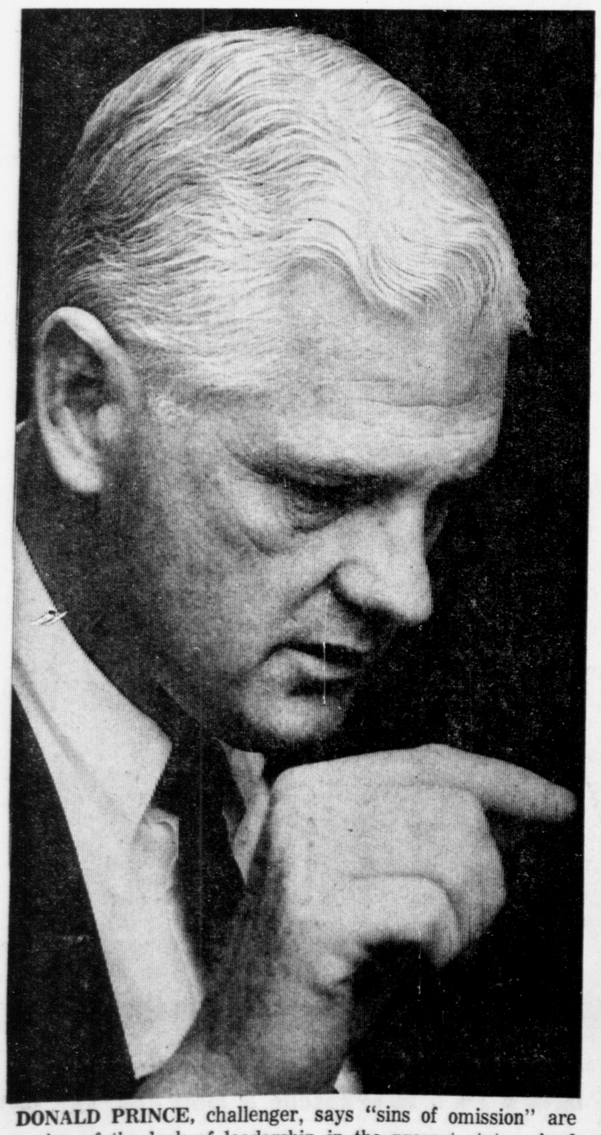
Asked if he would support the State Junior College Board in its request for $40 million in emergency funds, Page said he would if he were elected.

Asked why he does not attend meetings of the Junior College Board, Page said he did not have time because he serves on 22 additional boards and commissions, and must send representatives to some meetings.

He did say, however, that he attends all meetings of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois.

Donald Prince —

Attacking Record, Seeking Recognition



DONALD PRINCE, challenger, says "sins of omission" are a sign of the lack of leadership in the present state school superintendent. (Staff photo by Tom Grieger)

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

When Don Prince came home from the Democrats' nominating meeting, his wife told him she'd heard on the TV that the party had nominated Paul Douglas, Adlai Stevenson and "some other fellow."

Prince is that "other fellow." His wife's description points up his big political disadvantage in campaigning for the state superintendent of public instruction's office. No one knows him.

No one, that is, except dozens of Illinois educators who have met the tall, good-humored Illinois State University professor on campus or at teachers meetings throughout the state.

POLITICAL prognosticators believe Prince must win in the suburbs if he's to take the state superintendency from incumbent Republican Ray Page, who's well known and well-liked downstate.

Prince's chief campaign theme as he stumps vigorously throughout the state with fellow Democrats Stevenson and Douglas is the lack of leadership Page gives to his office.

He scores Page's "sins of omission," is highly critical of Page's use of the chief state school office as a political springboard and slashes out at Page for not being "creative" in helping school districts get the best use they can of federal funds.

Prince went into these campaign charges in detail in an exclusive interview recently with Paddock Publications news editors.

Prince said flatly that Ray Page had done a 180-degree turn in opposing in the legislature establishment of a state board of education and an appointed superintendent, proposals the Republican had campaigned for in seeking office in 1962.

PRINCE POINTED out that Illinois is one of two states in the union that does not have a lay-controlled state board of education.

"I have a record of working for this. I'm so far out on a limb on this that even if I wanted to I couldn't back off—and I don't want to," said Prince of proposals to create a state board of education and an appointive superintendent.

"I worked for this as the president of the Illinois Association of Secondary School Principals and as a professor of education, I have encouraged all my students to support it and after I'm elected I'll still support it," Prince declared.

Prince told the Paddock editors during a 90-minute interview in the newspapers' office in Arlington Heights, that he considers these to be the three chief needs which the state superintendent of public instruction can help meet:

1) To offer a quality education for the entire student population. "There are children who do not have adequate reading materials, who do not have quality teachers; there are schools which don't have any breadth of staff. First, this," Prince stated.

2) TO HELP clarify and improve" the whole organizational structure of the state's schools. This must include, Prince said, some change in the county superintendent's office. Some downstate counties have a superintendent and an assistant where there is only one school district in the county, Prince pointed out. He added, "We can't have that kind of luxury any more with tax money."

3) To encourage a "bridge of communication about education" between the schools and the community, business and industry — and also between public and private schools.

Prince said that his opponent, the incumbent state superintendent, does not recognize drastic changes taking place in the educational scene.

THE KEY change, Dr. Prince asserted, is that "the federal partnership has enlarged."

"If the state office can help local schools make effective use of federal funds, then we will be able to retain the local control all of us want," declared the Illinois State University educator.

Page has not helped local school districts to use federal funds wisely because, Prince declared, he is opposed in principal to the federal monies being used in Illinois.

"To be completely candid," Prince said of Page, "he talks differently downstate about federal aid than he does here."

Prince declared that in Bloomington Page made a speech in which he called the federal government a "monster," an "agency which is going to change our children into IBM cards."

"This is consistent," asserted Prince, "with his active support of Senator Goldwater."

THE DEMOCRATIC candidate charged in the interview that Page's office had slowed down processing of grants by not answering mail, by being inconsistent.

"The very action that he doesn't take will invite the thing he is most concerned about — federal control," Prince added.

Prince said he "ideally" favors flat-grant federal aid to be used wherever the school district wishes, but "practically speaking" believes categorical aid — the type available now—to be a necessity at this time.

Prince said that local school districts weren't "ready for" flat-grant aid — that if federal aid were offered with no strings attached, most would just lower taxes instead of using it "to strengthen the areas that need strengthening."

Prince slammed Page's use of patronage in the office of public instruction. He charged that the Republican had fired 22 of 23 persons in the teacher certification area when he came into office. "A teacher who wants a job now brings a letter from the county chairman," Prince asserted.

THE DEMOCRATIC candidate, however, plans no complete turnaround on the matter of patronage. He was candid in admitting that clerical and custodial positions would remain under patronage if he is elected. But professional positions will be filled, he pledged, with the "best qualified."

Prince cited staff increases during Page's four-year term from 295 to "well over 600." Prince added, "He did campaign, I think, on a staff cutback. I'm not going to do this because I think it's unrealistic."

The educator-turned-campaigner added, "I'm sure that the attitude and emphasis of the leadership in the office could result in better use of personnel. Mr. Page and his staff worked openly in the primary in 1964 for Bill Scott against Charles Percy. Page went to San Francisco for 10 days to be secretary for the delegation for Goldwater."

"Regardless of how convinced he was," Prince stated, "I don't think the state superintendent ought to be that actively involved."

'Best Qualified' Supporters Saying

Democrats like State Rep. Eugenia Chapman are fond of introducing Dr. Donald Prince by saying he's the "best qualified person ever nominated" for the state superintendent of public instruction.

Holder of master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Illinois, Prince is currently director of the Center for Educational Administration at Illinois State University at Normal.

He has served as consultant to numerous school districts and has headed up a nine-county junior college survey.

HE HAS BEEN a classroom teacher, school principal and superintendent.

He lobbied for school bills while president of the Illinois Association of Secondary School Principals and the Illinois Council for Educational Administration.

He was chairman of the committee on administrative structure for the Illinois Task Force on Education, resigning when nominated Democratic candidate for state superintendent.

A veteran of World War II, he still holds a commission in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

HE HAS worked in all areas of the state. A native of southern Illinois, he taught there and in the western part of the state. He was a superintendent in northern Illinois. Now a resident of Normal, he has served as a consultant to school districts in easter Illinois and the Chicago suburban area.

Algonquin Road Losing Its Rural Ways

Algonquiin Road is showing signs of being wooed away from its partner for many years—rolling countryside.

Modern buildings are casting shadows on the two-lane thoroughfare that juts northwest through Cook County ending in Kane County's village of Algonquin on the Fox River.

The wooing is being done by manufacturers, apartment developers, subdividers, and nearby communities that are fast learning it doesn't pay to be hostile to industry.

Acre after acre of scenic countryside still remains for the Sunday driver, especially west of Meacham Road in Rolling Meadows.

BUT THE ROAD is fast becoming known as a commercial "strip" with everything from apartments to motels, from a plastics plant to the headquarters complex of a national airlines, and from a junior college (site) to a development of single-family homes.

Starting from Seymour Avenue in Des Plaines, just east of Elmhurst Road, and heading west, there are signs of the buildup on either side.

In this area of Des Plaines there are apartment buildings on the north side of the road, across from small fields of corn and a few old farm homes. Signs announcing three-flat buildings for sale mark the crossing of Elmhurst Road.

Crossing Elmhurst, there is an area of new, single-story buildings on the left, Keolyn Plastics, a Shell Oil distribution plant, Beer Motors (GMC trucks and other equipment), Neubachers Inc., and Perfection Spring & Stamping Co.

"WE MOVED into our new plant in March, 1965," Tom Neubacher explained, "and we were the only ones in the area, besides United Air Lines (down the road apiece)."

Neubachers is a distributor of ceramic tile and related products and has salesmen covering the metropolitan and northern Illinois area. For the first 30 years of the firm's 85-year history, the company manufactured ceramic tile.

"Our expansion possibilities were limited in our Chicago plant," Neubacher said, "and we felt the northwest area was one of the fastest growing light industrial areas in the suburbs."

Being a distributor, Neubachers Inc. provides its best service by being located among its customers, the manufacturers. Hence the move to the northwest suburbs, and to Algonquin Road, was a logical one.

As the Algonquin Road drive continues, the nearly 60-acre tract called "home" by the nation's largest airline — United — looms on the right.

UNITED'S NATIONAL headquarters and training center is in an unincorporated area of Elk Grove Township. Both Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect were said to be looking forward to the day United property could be annexed to one of the villages, but Mount Prospect has now blocked off Arlington by annexing land between UAL and its neighboring village.

Opened in December, 1961, the center was constructed at a cost of some $9 million. A $2 million, four-story addition to the stewardess-management training center is now well under way and is expected to be finished early next year.

Across the road from UAL is rich farmland, but again signs announce the land's availability for "industry."

Next come the Sans Soucie apartments at 1032 E. Algonquin Road and no doubt constructed to accommodate a few hundred of the several thousand United Air Line employes. It is immediately adjacent to a southern finger of Mount Prospect on the west — the finger that so conveniently blocks off Arlington Heights from moving in to annex the United site.

Driving through this "southern finger" of Mount Prospect, off on the left is what was once known as the Tally Ho Courts apartment complex, now known as Mount Prospect's "eyesore."

FOUR OF EIGHT or nine planned multi-level buildings are standing at the southwest corner of Busse and Algonquin roads. Walled and roofed, their interiors have been damaged by vandals. Boarded windows have been broken. Inside stairs are badly damaged. Fixtures have been ripped from walls and ceilings.

Legal action begun in 1965 to have the buildings completed or torn down has stalled. Recently, Mount Prospect has pushed a new suit to have the structures razed. The village has even gone so far as to include $40,000 in its 1966 67 budget for "Demolition-Tally Ho Apartments."

Names of the builders who began the Tally Ho units have long been forgotten. Lack of capital was their downfall, so the story goes. Another problem was the throwing into receivership of Marshall Savings & Loan Assn., the mortgage holder.

Before reaching the tree-covered acreage of Charles Klehm & Son Nursery on both sides of Algonquin Road, there are more apartments and single-family-home developments — Old Ivy Apartments, Briarwood Manor, and Cedar Glen subdivision.

From Arlington Heights Road northwest to Golf Road (Route 58), only three or four manufacturing or distributing plants can be seen, and several of these are hidden in wooded areas.

THESE FIRMS include Burke Tool & Engineering Co. and Weber Marking Systems, both former Mount Prospect residents, and the A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc.

Several miles of farmland intervene before reaching the southern edge of Rolling Meadows where small plants dot the roadside, but no large industrial parks can be seen.

Just before reaching the complex Algonquin-Rohlwing Road intersection, the area's first million-dollar Holiday Inn Motor Hotel is on the left. Its development there was a major coup for Rolling Meadows and stands to benefit the entire area, especially the nearby Ramlin Rose apartment and home development.

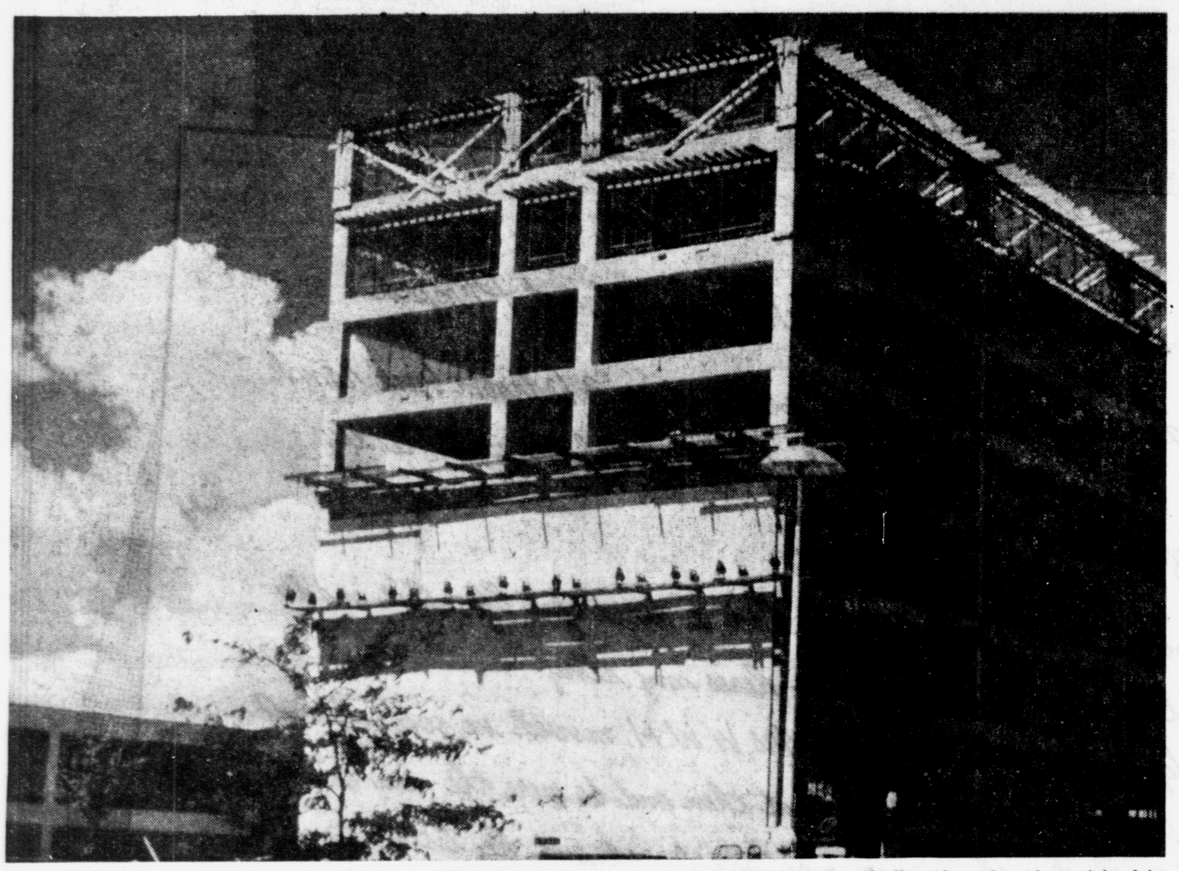
Meacham Road is next. Besides the Cook County Highway Department garage, which has been at the corner for several years, nothing seems to be changing. But the change will soon be evident.

IT WILL BE in the form of a 672,000-square-foot building now being constructed to house the communications division of Motorola, Inc.

The Motorola site encompasses over 300 acres on the south side of Algonquin Road, from Meacham west to Roselle. The company expects to begin moving in with thousands of employes sometime early next year.

In the near future William Rainey Harper Junior College and the Hammond Organ Co. will join Motorola, Holiday Inn, Weber Marking, Neubachers, Shell, United Air Lines and the others in lending added prestige to the former "country bumpkin" Algonquin Road.

The campus site is at the northeast corner of Roselle Road and Algonquin, and Hammond soon will build a plant west of Roselle Road. (B10



THIS MULTI-FLOOR ADDITION to United Air Lines' training center illustrates the rapid growth of Algonquin Road as a commercial "strip" through the northwest suburbs. One of the first tenants along Algonquin Road between Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights, the air lines has since been joined by numerous light industrial and warehousing firms—not to mention apartment buildings. "What can I do about these rude sales calls?"

When your problem is a rude or overly insistent salesperson who won't take your "no" for an answer, just hang up.

Many people who sell by phone, of course, do so in a courteous and considerate manner. And they often have really good buys to offer.

We're trying hard to help businesses use the phone without offending.

We offer all interested business people free information and training. We suggest they call at times most likely to be convenient for you and to call only bona-fide prospects. We remind them that offensive calls make enemies, not sales.

But some salespeople continue to make annoying or "pushy" calls. So if you do receive an offensive sales call... hang up.

Just hang up!

Stop Lights Slated At Foundry, River

The intersection of Foundry and River Roads in the unincorporated area of Wheeling Township is destined for traffic controls.

A spokesman for the Illinois highway department said the crossing has been surveyed following a request for stop lights by the Forest River Rural Fire Protection District.

"Three way traffic signals have been tentatively scheduled," he said, "providing there are enough funds available in 1967."

SCHOOL SPEED zone signs are also being made and will be installed near the new Park View School "within the next few weeks."

The fire board had complained about the crossing stating it was practically impossible to cross, especially during rush hours. Residents of the Forest River area at one time paid for a traffic light at the intersection but had it disconnected in hopes that the state would remedy the situation themselves.

The fire board also complained about a newly posted 50 mile an hour speed limit on Foundry Road between River and Wolf Roads. Joseph Remsing, board president, said that it was done without thought to the several construction projects in progress along the two-lane road, among them installation of a sewer line by the Metropolitan Sanitary District, erection of the new Forest River firehouse and construction of the River Trails School District 26 building.

Cite Pupil Influx for District 26

River Trails School District 26 reported an increase of about 300 students, over last year's enrollment, when classes resumed last Tuesday.

According to Supt. W. L. Harwood, this is not quite as many children as he anticipated. He placed the total enrollment in the five schools at 2,250 students.

Park View School, newest of the buildings and still under construction, opened with 15 of the 18 classrooms completed. Harwood said 11 of these were used for regular classes, two were ready for kindergarten which started Wednesday, one was used for a deaf class and the principal, Dan Cunniff is using another until his office is finished.

COMPLETION of the building is expected by October 1. It will include a multi-purpose room, library and office area. An administrative wing housing the district's offices will be completed after the school is finished.

The River Trails district includes Park View, Indian Grove, Euclid and Feehanville Elementary Schools and River Trails Junior High School.

South Church Fall Schedule to Start

South Church Community Baptist in Mount Prospect will start its regular fall schedule for church services, Sunday church school and choir participation on Sunday, Sept. 11.

Services are scheduled for 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday school classes meet at the same hours with infant care and classes through sixth grades meeting both periods. Adult classes and seventh and eighth graders will meet during the early service and high school pupils and young adults will meet at the 11 o'clock service.

The South Church school registers close to 500 pupils and requires a staff of teachers, substitutes, clerks, audio visual operators and pianists totaling 120, according to Henry P. Graef, superintendent.

Both choirs are under the direction of the director of music, Vincent I. Ahnquist, who is also head of the music department at Forest View High School.

The two remaining choirs, the Choristers, made up of sixth, seventh and eighth graders and the Carol Choir, which includes third, fourth and fifth grades, will sing at special services during the year. Mrs. Nancy Hulslander is the church organist. More than 100 individuals are members of the four choirs. (M

WOMEN FINALLY GET VOTE; SUSAN B. ANTHONY LEADS BATTLE

The idea that women be allowed to vote was first seriously proposed at a women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, N.Y. in 1848—but it was to be 72 years later before voting by women became a nation-wide fact.

A few states began to permit it. Wyoming was first, in 1869. But most were against it.

Most famous heroine in the battle was Susan Brownell Anthony who's credited with doing more than anyone else in bringing woman suffrage before the country.

The most remarkable aspect, when you stop to think about it, is that denying woman suffrage meant that about one-half the U.S. population was prohibited from voting!

Finally, on Aug. 26, 1920 the 19th Amendment went into effect giving women throughout the nation the right to vote—and a long-time inequity was ended forevermore.

Hello — I'm 919 South Na-Wa-Ta in Mount Prospect

If I do say so myself, I'm a pretty sharp 3 bedroom brick ranch and I live in style in a classy neighborhood with really wonderful neighbors.

I'm only 10 years old but I've had a wonderful life. I've made several families quite happy — here's my story.

In September 1956, Mr. and Mrs. W.W.H. moved in just after I was built. I was really proud then and so were the new owners.

In March 1961 the owner was transferred and he listed me with Annen & Busse. In only 42 days, I was sold to Mr. & Mrs K.D.B who enjoyed my company until February of 1965 when they moved to Milwaukee. They were so happy with the way Annen & Busse served them, they had Annen & Busse list me again — and sell me they did — in only 26 days this time.

Then I got my new owners, Mr. & Mrs. D.E.C and family, but recently they were transferred to Cleveland and, you guessed it, I'm for sale again, and just when they had settled down in one of the finest areas in the Midwest - great schools, fine shopping, and all that.

So please look me over — I hate to waste all this wonderful space and comfort without a nice family to keep me warm.

Regards,
919 S. Na-Wa-Ta

P.S.
The D.E.C.'s are looking at a home in Cleveland that Annen & Busse arranged for through a Realty programming cooperating service. They can help people find homes in most other cities through their cooperating organizations.

Cook County PTAs Seek Okay For Juvenile Court Support

Cook County's Parent-Teacher Associations are seeking authorization to actively back decentralization of the Juvenile Court.

The PTA state board will hear recommendations to that effect at its meeting next Monday and Tuesday from an ad hoc committee headed by Mrs. Duane Norton of Chicago, state legislative chairman.

Mrs. Duane K. Ainlay of 937 Pebble, Wheeling, was among committee members. She represented District 37 of the PTA.

The ad hoc committee, which included representatives from the 10 Cook County PTA districts, favors the three-center immediate decentralization proposal made this summer by the Citizens Committee for Family Court.

THE PTA committee, if their state board approves, will make a report to the Cook County commissioners and will follow through by seeing that local PTA leaders are familiar with reasons for the county - level stand.

Before making its recommendations, the committee held half-day meetings with John O'Brien, administrator of Juvenile Court; William Kahlert, Citizens Committee for Family Court, and Mrs. Charles Probst of Northbrook, chairman of a League of Women Voters of Illinois study of Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Norton said the committee's formation was sparked by Evanston PTA's who asked backing of that city's proposals for immediate establishment of Juvenile Court branches in each Circuit Court district.

THE PTA committee rejected the Evanston plan in giving backing to the decentralization proposals of the Citizens Committee for Family Court.

Mrs. Norton said that the PTA committee "was persuaded that the citizens committee plan was a better plan." The Evanston plan, she said, was considered less desirable for two reasons:

—It would have completely separated city and suburban juvenile offenders.

—It would have probably called for "part-time juvenile judges, "since at present there are so few referrals to Juvenile Court from each suburban Circuit Court district.

"THE PTA is quite committed to the idea that the Juvenile Court is specialized. A judge who handles juveniles learns as he goes along. You don't get this from a scattering of cases," Mrs. Norton told a Paddock Publications reporter Tuesday.

The Citizens Committee has recommended immediate establishment of three Juvenile Court centers—one at the present Audy Home-Family Court location, and one each on the far north and far south of the city. Juvenile offenders from both the north suburbs and the northern side of the city would come before the north side Juvenile Court.

The PTA committee would like to see the Audy Home-Family Court complex abandoned immediately, though the Citizens Committee for Family Court does not so recommend.

Mrs. Norton said the PTA considers the central city Juvenile Court, including the Audy Home, a detention facility, to be "inadequate, outmoded and undesirable," in "a very bad area for rehabilitation."

"YOU UNDERSTAND, she added, "the PTA position is that Juvenile Court should be rehabilitative and not punitive."

Mrs. Norton conceded that abandonment of Audy Home now would be costly—and perhaps impractical at this time, for that reason.

"We feel compromises should not be made by the PTA," she emphasized in explanation. "We feel we should ask for what we think is right and what is needed. If no one is up there yelling about what the need is, the degree of progress isn't nearly so great."

"Somebody has to establish the standards, and that's what we do," she added. (B-10

NERVOUS TUBES

by ED LANDWEHR

One of our TV technician friends down Chicago way told us that he was called to a customer's house to check on a weak, jumpy picture tube. After he checked out the tube and told the customer it was perfectly all right, the customer remarked, "It must have been that Beetle band with the grind and bumps that the kids call dancing, and the set just got nervous."

We think that maybe it was a nervous TV cameraman.

LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights will assure your satisfaction in servicing nervous picture tubes if the cause comes from any part of the chassis. Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 for a nervous TV man until he gets your set working at its best.

'Bell Lady' Is Going Back to School Too

Students aren't the only ones going back to school this fall. Going with them will be the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area telephone lady — Illinois Bell's Marilyn Hurley.

Instead of carrying an apple for the teacher, Marilyn will take a series of educational tools designed to help elementary, junior high and high school students learn about one of their most important tools—the telephone.

Last year some 1,900 suburban schools used materials provided by Illinois Bell.

AT THE elementary level, children have grown up with a program called Telezonia. It's a land created just for children, populated with cartoon characters and illustrating important facts about telephone use.

Teachers have frequently assigned Telezonia material for writing or drawing projects to sharpen students' skills and understanding, Miss Hurley said.

One of her most impressive educational tools is the Teletrainer, a working telephone mock-up which has two phones and an electronic device for producing dial tones, busy signals and other telephone signals.

At lower grade levels it's useful for teaching proper use of the phone, and older children use it in speech or business education classes, Miss Hurley said.

The following weekend Jean had her one and one-half-year-old granddaughter, Sheryl Knox, for company at 925 N. Princeton while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knox, were in Indiana. Don had flown to Canada, above Quebec, on Aug. 26 where he spent five days at a lodge with friends from Chicago and enjoyed the good fishing.

THE NEWMAN Cryers, 1007 N. Kennicott, celebrated Dorothy's 21st birthday Aug. 21 by going to the Paul Bunyan Restaurant in Old Town at the request of the children.

The following day Dorothy's brother, Don Allen, and his family of St. Clair Shores, Mich., arrived for a three-day visit. They were accompanied by Mrs. Vera Williams of Newcastle, Australia, the mother of a soldier friend of Don's. It was her first trip here and she likes it so well she would like to become a citizen.

Tuesday they took her sightseeing and a few of the highlights were the B'ahai Temple in Wilmette, the Field Museum and dinner at the Paul Bunyan Restaurant during their tour of Old Town.

Thursday night Newman and Dorothy enjoyed dinner and a performance of "A Girl Could Get Lucky" at Old Orchard Country Club to celebrate their 23rd wedding anniversary.

The Cryers then went to the Indiana Dunes State Park on Friday along with the Jim Miners of Des Plaines. Looking around while they were there they happened to notice the Al Kleins, 1003 N. Kennicott, were also enjoying themselves there.

The Guy Scalzittis left 836 N. Fernandez on Aug. 7 for a two and one-half-week visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams in Sylacouga, Ala.

Besides visiting with relatives, they spent a day at Cheaha State Park with Tommie's parents and her brother Donnie, his wife Mary and Tommie's only nephew, Jeff, who came from Auburn, Ala. To get to the park they had to drive up a mountain with the park on top at 2,468 feet, Alabama's highest point. They did some swimming, bought souvenirs, climbed Bunker Tower and visited its rock garden at the edge of the mountain.

Tommie's brother and wife, John and Nancy Williams of Port St. Joe, Fla., joined the rest of the family at her parents home for a reunion.

On their way home they stopped at Jasper, Ind., to visit Guy's brother, Johnny.

GEORGE Wojtkiewiczes, 920 N. Ridge, entertained Joan's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Rhode of Norridge on Aug. 30 and again on Sept. 5.

The barbecue included every imaginable kind of salad, pop for the kids, adult refreshments, dancing on the streets and lawns till 10 p.m., races, horseshoe pitching, a dance contest and lots of neighbors getting reacquainted and meeting new arrivals to the block.

Forty-two prizes were awarded to some of the 70 children attending. They were the winners in the competitions held under the direction of one set of parents, who jumped in with their eyes wide open.

Principal Criticizes Building Safety Code

A High School District 214 principal spoke out against Life Safety Code remodeling of his school at last Wednesday's Teachers Association-sponsored candidates meeting at Elk Grove High.

A. L. Kulieke, whose Prospect High School is next in line for renovation under the state safety code, asked, "How can we change the school safety code which is spending so much money we don't have and doing so much damage to the buildings?"

Kulieke told a Paddock Publications reporter afterwards he thought "hardly a thing proposed" in the way of life safety changes to Prospect High is needed.

He said he agreed that the school board had no alternative but to bring Prospect into compliance with the Life Safety Code. "It can't break the law," he said.

BUT HE SAID he was convinced that most of the $102,000 remodeling proposed for Prospect would do damage to the building rather than improve it.

School officials have already complied with all insurance inspectors' and state fire inspectors' recommendations for Prospect, he pointed out.

Those agencies approved of under-stair storage of non-combustibles because the stairs are concrete reinforced. The Life Safety Code which all 10-years-or-older schools must meet forbids such storage.

Kulieke also cited as unnecessary—and perhaps unsafe—the code requirements for closed stairwells and smoke doors in corridors.

"THEY WILL ONLY make it take longer for us to clear the building," he asserted.

Approval of Life Safety Code remodeling of Prospect High was given by the school board Aug. 29 and similar okay is pending from the county superintendent of schools.

Financing of the life safety changes are possible under a special tax which school districts are authorized to levy for three years at a level of no more thar five cents per $100 of assessed valuation. District 214 levied a 2.5 cent life safety tax this year and plans to go to the 5 cent maximum for 1966.

Homemakers Support of Percy Seen

The Cook County Homemakers Assn. is scheduled to give its endorsement to Charles H. Percy, Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, Wednesday.

The ladies, headed by Mrs. Alan Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, will honor the candidate at a luncheon to be held in the Century Room of the La Salle Hotel at noon.

Mrs. Everett M. Dirksen, wife of the Republican leader in the U. S. Senate, will be a special guest, and will introduce Percy at the luncheon.

Mrs. Helen Sewell, Chicago, chairman of the luncheon said it is not a fund-raising affair. It is, she said, an occasion for association members to meet Percy and other Republican candidates. (B10

Hanrahan Asks Puffer to Debate

Robert P. Hanrahan, Republican candidate for Cook County superintendent of schools in the Nov. 8 general election, challenged incumbent Noble J. Puffer to debate the issues in the forthcoming campaign.

In Hanrahan's letter to his opponent, he pointed out the necessity of permitting the people to decide whose qualifications are best suited for today's complex educational problems in Cook County. Hanrahan said Puffer has a "moral obligation to let the people of Cook County know what he has been doing for the past 27 years. The people deserve the right of hearing both sides in deliberating on their choice for Cook County superintendent of schools," he said.

"I will debate Mr. Puffer on any issues at any time at any given place," declared Hanrahan. "The decision now rests in Puffer's hands." (B10

Gaily-bedecked outdoor stands will open at 2 p.m. to offer for sale homemade baked goods, farm produce, beautiful handmade linens and tasty refreshments. Long distance balloon races will be held periodically throughout the afternoon and will provide a colorful spectacle for all age groups. Child festival guests will ride in a fire truck with clowns from the Medinah Circus Clown Unit, Medinah Temple, Chicago.

Dr. Donald C. Kleckner, president of Elmhurst College, will bring the Festival message at the 3 p.m. worship period.

Mrs. Henry Komay of Rolling Meadows will assist in the alumni booth where homemade baked goods and farm produce will be on sale. Gifts and proceeds from the festival benefit the children and aged cared for by the home which is in its 71st year. (A15

Notes from Arlington Acres

Best wishes for happiness in their new home go with the Lauren Hulse family, 509 S. Forrest, who moved to Lexington, Ky., last week.

A two and a half week trip to New Orleans was the way the Archie Lochs, 2124 E. Park, chose to spend their summer vacation. They were accompanied by their nine children, and although they stayed with Archie's mother, they visited the other grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Howat, as well as aunts and uncles. In addition, the five older boys were taken on fishing excursions to the Gulf coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Waxlax, 437 S. Prindle, escaped the recent heat wave in the Midwest by vacationing in northern Minnesota. By contrast, they wore sweaters and slacks for fishing expeditions and hikes through the woods around Beaver Bay, north of Duluth. John, Carol and Paul were with their parents.

Jim Glynn, son of the James Glynns, 2123 E. Grove, spent part of his leisurely summer vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Reynolds in Sacramento, Calif. Except for the time spent on an uncle's ranch in northern California, most of Jim's play time was spent swimming.

MR. AND MRS. Gust Hermanson, 437 S. Forrest, were guests a week ago Saturday at the 25th reunion of Gust's Evanston High School class at Michigan Shores Country Club in Wilmette. Dinner and dancing to the music of the 40's completed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Q. Yowell, 441 S. Forrest, were hosts a week ago Sunday to one of their bridge groups which is contained in the Park Ridge Rotary Club. It is customary to have a king size snack table to greet the guests, in this instance the Paul Bergstroms, Ronald Kuhlmans, Joseph Bredemanns, James Galloways, Ed Thomases and the Bill Manbecks. The Gust Hermansons filled in to complete the fourth table with the Yowells.

Gary Cook, 525 S. Forrest, returned from a Theta Chi convention in Toronto over the weekend and left Tuesday for Madison, Wis., to begin his junior year at the University of Wisconsin. Gary is the son of the Don Cooks.

Mike Williams, son of the George Williamses, 424 S. Waterman, left Wednesday for Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis. He is a senior.

The Frank Gryziks, 417 S. Forrest, entertained at a patio party Aug. 26. Guests were seven members of Chris's women's club and their husbands, some of whom have been friends since they went to high school together.

MR. AND MRS. Lyle Longrie, 429 S. Forrest, received the best wishes of their children at a festive dinner at home on the occasion of their Aug. 29 wedding anniversary. In honor of the event, Marcia and Mark commandeered the kitchen and baked and decorated a special cake. Dinner was followed by a night on the town for Helen and Lyle.

Gail Brunsfeld's fourth birthday Aug. 29 was celebrated first by the family on the Saturday before with a dinner and birthday cake at the home of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Kettler in Willow Lake Estates, near Elgin. Also present to honor the birthday girl were several aunts, uncles and cousins.

On the day itself, Gail's mother invited some of her playmates in for cake and ice cream. Guests were Patty and Barby Thorstad, Randy Fritz and Bonnie Lucas.

Gail is the younger daughter of the John Brunsfelds, 416 S. Phelps.

Many happy returns of the day are wished to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Curtin, 420 S. Forrest. Jack's birthday was Aug. 28, Isabelle's was Sept. 1.

Preparations for that universally happy-sad occasion, The First Day of School, kept most Arlington Heighters too busy for much sociability the past week. While the scholars wondered if they'd like the new teacher or find their proper classrooms, Moms wondered, "Where have the years gone—it was just yesterday your Dad and I decided on a name for you and here you are in school already!" From kindergartners (clinging tightly to Mom's hand) to high school freshman (asking Mom to park three blocks from school so nobody'd see her) the need for moral support was there. It happens every year.

NOW RETURNED from a month of vacationing in Twin Lakes, Wis., are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jurco of 645 N. Douglas. Joining them during their lakeside cottage stay was Mrs. Jurco's sister and her husband, Dr. and Mrs. Peter Lucchesi. In addition, Shrinarayan Chandak dropped by to visit and to join in a little of the fun and relaxation.

Shri, as the Jurcos have shortened his name to make it more pronounceable for their American tongues, is a scholar from India who is doing graduate study in engineering at I.I.T. While in the U.S.A., he is staying with the Jurcos as a result of arrangements made through Rotary Club. Other news from the Jurco residence is that Mr. Jurco is recovering from surgery.

PRIMITIVE and fascinating would be excellent words to describe the Mexican vacation of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald White, their daughter, Cheryl, and Cheryl's friend, Nancy Weissmueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Weissmueller, 817 N. Wilshire. Feature of the trip, which was undoubtedly the highlight of their south-of-the-border visit, was a train trip on board El Ferro Carril Chihuahua al Pacifico, which travel expert Dr. Dunlop wrote much about. The train track, which cuts through the canyons of central Mexico, is a great display of engineering skill, for the Swiss engineers who erected it were cutting through terrain never crossed by roads or visited by any outsiders other than a few hardy souls who sought out a helicopter to take them to the remote villages.

The primitive beauty of the canyons is still practically untouched, since the track has only been open for three years.

Adding to the excitement of the Whites' journey was the danger of landslides. The first they encountered blocked the track and made it necessary for everyone on the train to get out for six hours; however, the incident enabled them to visit one of the nearby villages.

WHILE THERE, Mr. White decided to take advantage of the situation and seek out someone who might sell him one of the violins made by the members of the local Indian tribes, the Tarahumara, who are noted both for their beautifully and primitively made violins and for their curiously Germanic dialect which bears little resemblance to the Spanish tongue. Mr. White finally learned of an Indian back in the mountains who was willing to sell a violin and made arrangements to meet him on his return trip and purchase it.

However, the return trip was even more eventful than the first trip—a landslide made it necessary for those on the train to spend 19 hours on board, during which the food and water gave out. The passengers also became very well acquainted. Later there was another slide. When the Whites arrived in San Rafael, the village where they were supposed to contact the Indian with the violin, they were several hours late. Much to their surprise, there near the train track was an Indian with a beautiful cedar and pine violin looking for his customer.

OTHER POINTS of interest along the rest of their Mexican trip were stays in Guadalahara and Mazatlan, where they spent a few days relaxing, and a visit to Navahoa, where Cheryl visited the pueblo home of her penpal.

Finally, after their month's vacation, 18 days of which were spent in Mexico, the Whites returned home to 2 S. Forrest with photographs and a violin of rare quality to remind them of the memorable trip.

On Aug. 27, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Coobs returned from a vacation of relaxation and fishing, which, reports Mrs. Coobs, was not too fruitful, but provided a few fish dinners. They made the trip to Quetico Provincial Park in Canada with their children, Patricia, Douglas and David, and met Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kenyon of 313 N. Brighton.

Mrs. Clabaugh, 510 S. Beverly Lane, recently returned from Devon, Penn., after welcoming into the world her first grandson.

She spent two weeks in Pennsylvania helping out at her daughter's home while Judy Doman, her daughter, recovered her strength.

The Domans had moved into a new home the day before the arrival of John Gregor Doman, named after his father. (A

VIRGINIA TERRACE

A 10-day trip west was recently enjoyed by Dick and Pat Davis and sons, Kurt and Glenn, 1255 N. Race. They went to the Black Hills and then on to Yellowstone National Park. Kurt celebrated his 11th birthday Aug. 27, while traveling. The family arrived home Aug. 31.

Dick and Dorothy Kirstein and children, Ricky and Donna, returned to 1310 Jo Lane on Aug. 27, after spending the summer in Bloomington. Dick received his degree from Illinois State University at Normal at the end of the summer session and he will teach at Prospect High starting this fall.

The Kirsteins spent the summer at the home of Dorothy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lierman. They did enjoy a few side trips during the summer. Over the 4th of July, they went camping at Tuck-a-way Farm near Baraboo.

TO CELEBRATE their Aug. 29 wedding anniversary, Barton and Regina Barrow, 1244 N. Illinois, went to Old Orchard Country Club on Aug. 27 to see the play, "A Girl Could Get Lucky." Later they had dinner at Corrados. On the day, the Barrows celebrated with a special dinner at home.

Returning home Thursday after a two-week vacation in Wisconsin were Bob and Shirle Husted and children, Debbie, Robby and John, 1610 W. Olive. They spent a day and night in Milwaukee and then went on to their cottage at McFarland, on Lake Waubesa to enjoy fishing, swimming, boating and water skiing.

Bob and Nancy Nelson, 1251 N. Race, combined a business and pleasure trip when they went to Erie, Pa., recently, accompanied by their daughters, Karol and Janet. Erie is home for both Bob and Nancy, as well as the home office of Bob's company. In addition to visiting family and friends, another bit of pleasure included a trip to Warren, Ohio, by Bob and Nancy and Bob's brother and wife to see the famous Kenley Players present "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," starring Carol Baker. The family returned home Aug. 29, in time to celebrate Janet's 12th birthday Sept. 4.

A neighborhood party helped a number of Chicago Avenue families celebrate Labor Day. Monday afternoon the Bill Pooles, 1329 N. Chicago, welcomed the Bob Rings, Ralph Wiederholds, John Carlsons, the Jim Allens and Loretta Ann Dalton to their home for a cookout. The group went on to the Rings' home, 1325 N. Chicago, for evening festivities.

BILL AND FREYA Jones and children, Mara, Matthew, and Deirdre, 1227 N. Illinois, went to the summer home of Bill's aunt and uncle on Sunday. A party was held for Bill's relatives in the Chicago area to bid farewell to his folks, the George Wilhelms, and his aunt and uncle, who will soon be moving to Florida.

Monday the Joneses hosted a dinner party for the Don Koss family of Evanston.

Celebrating their Sept. 1 wedding anniversary with a night out Friday were Wayne and Janet Manthei, 1321 N. Wilke. Accompanied by Wayne's sister and husband, the Paul Gerhardts of Glen Ellyn, they went to Pheasant Run for dinner and the play, "Time Out for Ginger," starring Gary Merrill. Later the two couples enjoyed Dixieland music at Bourbon Street.

Visiting Rich and Judy Koopman, 1216 N. Chicago, last week were Judy's brother and family, the David Mangolds of Lincoln, Ill., who stopped Aug. 27, on their way to Oshkosh to visit David's parents. They returned to the Koopmans' Wednesday to spend the night before returning to Lincoln.

LUNCHEON guests of Jan Krewer, 1256 N. Illinois, on Aug. 25 were her mother, Mrs. Erma Carlson of Skokie, and Mrs. Lauretta Hamilton, a family friend from Chicago.

The Krewer family celebrated Jan's birthday last weekend by attending a movie.

Mara Jones, daughter of the Bill Joneses, was 9 Aug. 31 and celebrated with a luncheon party Thursday attended by Sherry and Julie Skalicky, Julie and Janine Krewer, Kathy Roden and Liz Walters, a former Terrace resident now living in Prospect Gardens.

A surprise birthday party was given for Kathy Schmidt, daughter of the Robert Schmidts, 1201 N. Race, on her birthday, Sept. 2. Guests were Loni Larson, Cindy and Gloria Gross (former Terrace neighbors), Kathy's cousin, Frannie Schmidt, and her sisters, Vicki and Barbara. The partygoers went bowling and then returned to the Schmidts for a slumber party. The girls also celebrated the Aug. 30 birthday of Gloria Gross, who was 12, too.

Sunday the Schmidts gave a family party for Kathy. Relatives from both sides of the family attended. Among the guests were Kathy's grandparents, the Joseph Kennedys of Chicago and the Charles Browns of Evanston, and an aunt, Sandra Harrington of Evanston.

CELEBRATING her 11th birthday Sept. 2 was Jo Ann Ninneman, daughter of the William Ninnemans, 1212 N. Chicago. Jo Ann was honored at a Friday dinner party attended by Kim Merckx, Bob, Sue and Russ Kruse, Pat Scherrer and Jo Ann's brother and sister, Bob and Laurie.

Washington, D. C., was the vacation site for the James Charlestons, 1333 N. Chicago. Jim, Mary Lou, and children, Jimmy and Jean, went to Washington where Jim attended the National American Legion Convention. They stayed with Mary Lou's sister and family, the Peter Kuhs.

Since the tourists were away two weeks they saw all the points of interest in our Capitol. One high point for Jim was hearing the President speak. Jim was the fifth seat away from him and took pictures of him. The Charlestons returned home Saturday night.

Bill and Kay Platte and sons, Paul and Jimmy, 1318 N. Race, returned last Tuesday. They spent 12 days at Harris Lake at Presque, Wis., which is near the Michigan border. Two other area families also vacationed with them.

Seeing a variety of fish and animals on display at Aqualand was one of the interesting things for the family. Kay's parents, the Martin Nuermingers of Saginaw, Mich., visited them for three days at their vacation site.

Aug. 28 Ron and Mary Ann Landry and children, Michelle, Timothy, Jeannine and Terese, 1418 N. Race, spent the day at Long Lake with the Ed Mateski family of Niles. Mary Ann's sister, Martha Hynes of Des Plaines, also accompanied them. Mary Ann enjoyed her first try on water skis.

Sunday the Landrys had an early celebration of Labor Day in the home of Mary Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hynes of Des Plaines. In addition to sisters and a brother residing in Des Plaines, Mary Ann's sister and husband, the Dick Kochs of Chicago, were there also.

CAMPING FOR the first three weeks in August in the western part of the United States is a vacation that will be long remembered by Bob and Joan Cook and children, Bobby and Kathy, 1321 N. Chicago. The Cooks camped on the way to Washington State and back.

First point of interest was at Omaha to see Offut Air Force Base, S.A.C. headquarters. In Minden, Nebr., Pioneer Village was viewed. In Cheyenne they went to the State Museum and seeing the lake itself in Salt Lake City was a thrill. The Cooks heard an organ concert on the world's largest organ at the Morman Tabernacle and toured Brigham Young's home.

Finally reaching Washington, the family spent a week with relatives in Castle Rock. From there, they saw Mount Rainier, Mt. St. Helen and Mt. Adams, visited the World's Fair site, took a boat trip on Puget Sound, toured the Weyerhauser Lumber Co., the world's largest in Longview, dug clams while the tide was out and visited an oyster cannery.

On the way home the Cooks visited Earth Quake Lake in Montana. Going on to Yellowstone National Park, they viewed Old Faithful. Ghost Towns in Virginia City and Nevada City provided an interesting contrast in their sightseeing. The Buffalo Bill Cody Museum in Wyoming, Mount Rushmore, the Black Hills and the Reptile Gardens in South Dakota were visited. A unique site in Mitchell, S. D., was the famous Corn Palace, a Turkish style of architecture with the outer covering all of corn. Joan reports that there were so many exciting things the family saw that these were actually just the highlights.

Visiting the Cooks last week was Joan's mother, Mrs. H. J. Busey of Wichita, Kan., who left Sunday. While Mrs. Busey was here, the Cooks took her to see "Hello Dolly" and Joan hosted a coffee in her honor.

Community Club Budget of $2,240 Sought for 1966-67

When Kildeer Community Club Pres. Mrs. Fred Dahlberg takes up her gavel for the first time at the Sept. 15 meeting, she will ask members to approve a $2,240 budget for 1966-67. During the business session, set to begin at 8 p.m., members will also decide how the money is to be raised; funds each year are used to take care of supplementary school needs, whether it be special athletic gear or extras for a children's Christmas party.

The program calendar is being drawn up by the vice presidents, the Jack Morgansens. Whether there's to be a Halloween carnival this fall depends on a show of interest and cooperation. Among coming events will be the usual book fair and a program featuring our AFS student, a young man from Malasia.

The Sept. 15 business will be followed with a social period in the school's all-purpose room so that parents and the many new teachers may become acquainted.

News of Kildeer Countryside

by Emma Keiler

GEneral 8-8622

ON SEPT. 2, Renie Dahlberg and her board hosted the faculty at a coffee held in the school. Others, besides the Morgansens serving as officers are: Mrs. Arthur Edmunds, recording secretary; Mrs. Herbert Collyer, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edwin Mahle, treasurer; Mrs. Carl Buhl and Mrs. Heinz Loeffler, athletic chairmen; Mrs. Charles Harding, library chairman; Mrs. Richard Byrne, budget; Mrs. Willard Fournier, census; Mrs. aHrold Bauer, room mothers; Mrs. Ralph Seeler, Chronicle editor. Assisting the latter will be Mrs. George Van Der Bosch and Mrs. James Dugan.

Because so many families have been out of town, the Newcomer's Golf League Chairman Mrs. Warren Pankau has postponed the league's wind-up dinner for husbands and wives to Sept. 24. Event will be at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Palatine.

This Sunday Long Grove Church will assume its regular two worship schedule, with services to be held at 9 and 10:30 a.m. Church school classes will be conducted at the same time. Sutp. Mrs. Orville Held and her teachers are meeting Sept. 8 to make necessary preparations for the first day of school.

Following the 10:30 a.m. worship this Sunday, a coffee hour will be held in the social room. Ruby Dickinson is in charge of securing the hostesses.

On the youth calendar is a retreat at Pleasant Valley Farm near Woodstock, where our high schoolers will gather from 12:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Sept. 18.

THE WOMEN'S Guild will launch its year of activity with a get-acquainted coffee Sept. 28 at the home of Pres. Mrs. Robert Loudon Sr. Starting at 10 a.m. and continuing throughou the day, newcomers and old timers are urged to drop in to chat and meet the guild board. Circle meetings will begin in October.

Rev. and Mrs. Bert Helm will be hosts at an open house Sept. 11 from 3 to 5 o'clock so that members and friends of Long Grove Church may become better acquainted and at the same time receive a look at the new interior look of the parsonage. Those who cannot "make it" on that date are welcome to drop in following the 10:30 a.m. service on Sept. 18.

When the David Terrills' phone rang at 2 a.m. the morning of Sept. 1, it was the voice of their son, Jim, a QM2 in the Navy, which came over the wire from Yokosuka, Japan. Aboard a submarine rescue ship, the U.S.S. Coucal (ASR-8) since April, Jim and members of the crew had been assigned to rescue work in Viet Nam area and are now on their way to Pearl Harbor. Most disappointing feature according to Jim is the poor mail delivery to his present posts. A letter from his parents dated May 16 wasn't delivered to him until Aug. 22. From June 17 to Aug. 1 there had been no mail call. Letters to him should be addressed to QM2 James Terrill, U.S.S. Coucal (ASR-8), c/o F.P.O., San Francisco, Calif., 96601.

LOOKING BACK on his month's camping trip with Mrs. Marybelle Karnopp and son, Bob, Rushton Williamson admits their tour of the west included something of everything—including Geronimo, the Karnopps' big "mutt" and Jeeff, their paraket, both of whom shared all experiences enroute. Highlights included the Flaming Gorge, Mesa Verde and a stop in Steamboat Springs.

In Craig and Graystone, Colo., they visited friends and neighbors whom they'd known since living in that area on a ranch some years ago. Continuing to Salt Lake City, they looked up a former Long Grover, Mrs. Pat Cummings and sons, Dorsey and Tony, and took a dip in Salt Lake off the famed Soltair Beach, following it up with a tour of the Mormon Temple and other marks which Brigham Young and his followers left to be remembered.

The trip ended for Marybelle in Haydn, Colo., where she joined Emily and Kathy who had been waiting for her at their grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Woodley's home.

Making the rest of their journey alone, Bob and Rushton headed toward the Grand Tetons and Yellowstone. In Bozeman, Mont., they stopped at Montana State College where it was a treat for Rushton to talk with teachers regarding curriculum on wild life management.

Meanwhile, Earnest Williamson hasn't let his broken arm dampen his enthusiasm for the outdoor life. Heading for Galena, he and his dad followed the Mississippi to Cairo, roughing it for a week en route.

SATISFYING AN urge that started many years ago when they lived in New Jersey, the Everett Lewises spent two weeks at their usual Cape Cod retreat in Eastham. Speaking for all of them, daughter, Barbara says the weather was "gorgeous," with the beach on the ocean an ideal spot for daily loafing. There were quaint shops to browse through and drives to other scenic towns along the Cape.

Aslo Cape Cod vacationers were the David Edmundses who were won over by its quiet out of the way relaxed atmosphere and many shops to browse in. Using their camper, they spent two weeks riding through New England states, stopping at the Hershey factory in the town so named, visiting the restored whaling village of Mystic, Conn., and soaking up the historical significance of Plymouth Rock. In Vermont they saw farms where the buildings are connected to each other via covered walk-ways, these coming in handy during severe snowstorms.

Commenting on their stop at Kennebunk Port, Maine, Fawn was impressed with the little square houses laced over with fancy lattices and grill work and remarked, "They look like wedding cakes!" Also a highlight was an hour's ferry ride across Lake Champlain.

CUTTING THEIR eastern trek short, they allowed time to drive to Nevada, Iowa, to attend the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Woody's aunt and uncle, the Austin Dowells. They were among 60 relatives, some of whom met for the first time.

Ask the Art Edmundses what makes the holes in Swiss cheese and they'll be quick to tell you—especially since on their four-day Wisconsin drive they watched its ageing in a Little Switzerland cheese factory. Swimming at Devil's Lake, watching a circus at Baraboo and taking in the attractions at the Dells made it a change from the usual at-home schedule.

Here to viisit the James Eichorsts recently was their relative, Mrs. Edward Steinke of Wheeling.

A Sept. 2 Long Grove bride was Miss Pamela Burgin who repeated her vows to Thomas Cengel of Chicago in the chapel of Barrington Methodist Church.

An occupational transfer as designing engineer has moved the Nick Nickls' son, Nick Jr., from Tuscaloosa, Ala., to White Haven, Tenn. During the interim, Nick and Sue's grandsons David and Nicky III, were here for a while.

ARRIVING FROM Nashville, Mrs. Wayyne Pearce's sister, Mrs. Joe Chronister and daughters, Carmen and Christie, created a pleasant variation in the usual schedule.

Returning from a month of camp life at Hazelhusst, Wis., Patsy Loeffler plunged into the local swim by giving a pool party for her eighth grade girlfriends.

A 20th wedding anniversary celebration for the Heinz Loefflers turned out to be a family affair, the occasion also serving as a going-away party for Susan, who will attend the University of Colorado. The evening included dining at the Mid America Club and seeing "Hello, Dolly."

From Fox River Grove came the David Hultquists' son, Dave Jr. and family, to visit here.

The beginning of the church school season has plunged Mrs. Rush Williamson into a busy schedule as head of the Christian Education departments of Libertyville Methodist Church and Des Plaines United Church of Christ. Thursday she held a meeting in Libertyville for 60 leaders of the church.

"MY WOMEN'S Guild circle has always meant a great deal to me," is a remark that friends have heard Mrs. Frances Shroyer make more than once. Wanting to strengthen her ties here after a long time spent in La Jolla, Calif., during Malcolm's illness, Frances invited circle members to an afternoon coffee at her home Aug. 31.

"I've always been afraid of fires," is a remark often made by Mrs. Bertha Ritzenthaler. Playing it extra safe, she admits not even daring to start a small leaf-burning fire in her back yard. So what happens? A garbage truck driving past her home on Tuesday of last week broke into flames. The burning contents were dumped into the Arthur Reimer field across from Bertha's home. For a whole day the garbage burned, sending whiffs of smoke, burning papers and other scents toward Bertha's house; 'twas an anxious time of worrying about her roof.

A happy fourth birthday it was for Nathan Edmunds, whose mother made him two cakes on Friday; one to share with playmates and the other with aunts, uncles and grandparents who came to see Dave and Woody's pictures of their latest trip.

Birthday wishes also go to Freddi Ireland, Sept. 8; Virginia Park, Sept. 9; to Gail Rodewald, Sept. 10; Arthur Potts and Cheryl, Sept. 11; Leslie Turner, 12th.

Anniversary wishes go to the Mel Towners, Sept. 8, and to the Edwin Rodewalds, Sept. 14.

Sure sign of fall: Always a gardener at heart, Cora Herschberger has dug the last of her potatoes. Eight small rows yielded her two bushels of fine white cobblers. "Good for this winter's potato pancakes," she says. (WP

THE STANLEY STEAM CAR

The Fastest Car In The World In 1906
(Rate of 127.66 Miles an Hour)

This car, at Ormond, Fla., Jan. 21 to 28, 1906, establishing the following World's Records:

1 Kilometre	.18 2/5
1 Mile	.28 1/5
1 Mile in Competition	.31 1/5
5 Miles	2.47 1/5
2 Miles (World's record for cars eligible under the rules)	.59 3/5

Former Records

Darracq	.21 2/6
Napier	.34 2/5

The 5-mile record was made in competition, with a scoring start, and was at the rate of a mile in 33 2/5 seconds, which is faster than any gasoline car built according to A.A.A. rules ever made for a single mile.

The Power-plant in this car is exactly like that in the regular Stanley cars, except that it is larger, of about twice the power as the touring Cars (Model F). It weighs 1,600 pounds, and has margin enough for another boiler of the same size (512 pounds) without passing the racing weight-limit of 2,204 pounds. The boiler is 30 inches in diameter and 18 inches deep. It contains 1,475 tubes, and has a total heating surface of 285 square feet. A steam pressure of 800 to 900 pounds is carried. The engine is 4½x6½, and makes 350 revolutions to the mile. The wheels are 34 inches in diameter, and make 600 revolutions to the mile. They are equipped with 3-inch G. and J. tires. The body is so designed that the largest cross-section it presents, including the wheels, is only 9 square feet.

AVANTI II was revealed recently by the Avanti Motor Corporation in South Bend, Ind. Base price for this custom fiberglass body car is $6,041.01. Introduced last year, the new model's body design is basically unchanged.

Avanti Motor Corp. Introduces '67 Model

The Avanti Motor Corporation has introduced its 1967 Avanti II. It is a specialty car which was first produced last year. Two hundred units were produced.

This year, production of the fiber-glass body car is expected to be between four and five hundred.

Outwardly, the 1967 Avanti is little changed from last year, with improvements being made inside, mechanically, and in the finish of the car.

It continues to be powered by a 327 cubic inch Corvette engine.

In addition, power disc brakes on the front wheels, two speed electric windshield wipers and windshield washers, seat belts, a full compliment of sport-type direct reading instruments, bucket seats and divider console, internal trunk release, courtesy lights, and dual exhausts are standard equipment.

Because of the ability of fiberglass to absorb much of the force of a collision, light biows that would dent steel, and even severe impact, usually cause only local damage. In addition, a roll bar built into the passenger compartment, padded dash and visors, and a 4-way SOS emergency flasher system are provided.

Inside the car, purchasers will find a degree of choice, where finishing touches are concerned.

Where selection was broad before, Avanti II owners may now select seat covering materials and carpeting in virtually any color, fabric or style.

Base price of an Avanti II is $6,041.01.

A list of optional accessories that includes automatic or four-speed transmission; air conditioning, electric windows, power steering, radio, climatizer, tilting steering wheel, sun band windshield and rear windows 4-way SOS flasher system, decorator fabrics, twin traction, tinted side windows and Firestone Premium 500 nylon white wall tires are available. Mammoth Cave Is Genuinely Mammoth Visiting Mammoth Cave in central Kentucky is something like touring another world, reports the touring department of the Chicago Motor Club. Nobody really knows the frontiers of this eerie world, although 150 miles of passageways already have been explored and mapped on five separate levels.

Many fascinating discoveries have been made, including 200-foot-high rooms, vast pits, high domes, three rivers, a lake, and such scenic attractions as "flowing" stalactites.

Before joining a tour group to visit the cave, the Chicago Motor Club suggests you attend a showing of colored film slides at the park amphitheater.

The slides depict the more interesting and spectacular formations which are to be seen. Afterward you may choose one of a half-dozen different trips, depending on which places you prefer to visit and the amount of time you care to spend below ground.

THE TRIPS range in length from a three-quarter mile one that lasts only 1½ hours, to the all-day trip which takes seven hours to cover seven miles.

The shortest trip starts with a 250-foot descent by stairway into the electrically lighted cave. Your party will be led by a uniformed guide who moves along at a leisurely pace while he points out interesting rock formations.

You will find the cave air damp and cool, for the passages maintain a constant 54-degree temperature. Along the route you will gaze up at Roosevelt Dome, 130 feet high, and look down into Silo Pit, almost 100 feet deep.

Such features of the cave as pits and domes are really relative: that is, a formation is a dome when you are looking up at it, and a pit when you are above looking down.

Next you pass through Grand Central Station, where four passageways converge, and go on to Big Break. a scene of devastation where the ceiling collapsed many years ago and left the ground strewn with boulders. Such falls, however, are rare and the cave is considered perfectly safe.

NEARBY IS Smooth Ceiling, the most expansive one in the cave, which measures 250 by 85 feet, not unlike an underground cathedral.

At last you come to Frozen Niagara, the largest known formation of its kind in the cave. Under indirect lighting, the flowing stalactites in the great formation appear to have been instantly frozen while in motion. Actually, these and all other formations in the cave are composed of limestone deposited during the endless rising and ebbing of cave waters over a period of 200 million years.

The other cave tours take visitors to such additional attractions as an abandoned underground tuberculosis hospital, an experiment by a doctor in 1843 who thought the pure air and even temperature would cure his patients; a saltpeter mine which furnished a vital ingredient for explosives during the War of 1812; and the Snowball Room, a real underground dining room which can accommodate 500 persons, although meals are brought down by elevator.

Visitors also can take boat rides on one of the three rivers which flow through the cave, where the waters are green and the strange looking fish have no eyes.

CAVE TRIPS are made hourly every day of the year, but nobody may enter without a guide. For the most comfort, it is suggested that women wear slacks and low-healed shoes.

Some of the half-million visitors annually to Mammoth Cave park never visit the caverns at all, the Chicago Motor Club points out.

They prefer to hike along the miles of wooded trails in the park's 51,000 acres of rugged unspoiled country.

Excellent overnight accommodations are available at the park hotel, or you may rent one of the electrically heated cabins located in nearby wooded settings. Of course, facilities for camping and picnicking are located within the park. (CR

Motorists Can Order '67 Plates

Application blanks for 1967 motor vehicle license plates are now available at various outlets throughout the state, Secretary of State Paul Powell announced.

Powell reminded motorists who wish to retain their present license numbers for next year that the deadline for their applications to be in his office is Sept. 30, and that the request for reassignment should be stated in the remarks section of the blank.

Supplies of the application blanks have been delivered to automobile dealers, currency exchanges, notaries public, county clerks, newspaper offices and some banks. (CR

Never Take Vacation From Safe Driving

The Chicago Motor Club cautions that going just a few miles per hour over the posted speed limit can be a dangerous practice.

Posted speed limits have been established as the maximum speed at which you can drive safely under ideal conditions. Therefore, exceeding these speed limits, even when conditions are perfect, is an invitation to danger.

Summertime means vacation time for most people. But the Chicago Motor Club reminds you that you can never afford to take a vacation from safe driving habits.

To help your car run smoothly during the hot summer weather, says the Chicago Motor Club, be sure that both the fan belt and water cooling system are working at peak efficiency. Rust inhibitors added to the radiator during the summer will retard rust formation and cool the motor effectively.

The Chicago Motor Club advises you not to overload the trunk of your car when packing for a vacation. Too much weight in the rear of the automobile affects the balance of the car and tends to point the headlights off the road.

WHEN PARKING your car for a picnic, says the Chicago Motor Club, don't park too close to the edge of an incline or a cliffside scenic view. Your brakes may not hold if your car is bumped by another parker, or if the earth beneath the wheels gives away. Also, avoid swampy areas when parking.

Courtesy on the highways, says the Chicago Motor Club, goes a long way toward reducing accidents. One way to practice road courtesy is to be the first to dim your headlights when approaching another car at night. Also, remember to dim your lights when following another car.

More than 600,000 American motorists lock themselves out of their cars every year, according to the Chicago Motor Club. The club advises you always to carry a spare key on your key chain or in your wallet. It could come in very handy.

The Chicago Motor Club points out that driving in traffic and reading a map just don't mix. Motorists on trips should plan their routes in advance. A good driver always anticipates a change of direction. Last second stopping or turning may result in an accident.

Also drivers should allow a car pulling a trailer plenty of room since that driver is handicapped by greater stopping distance. Motorists also should remember that it takes greater clearance ahead to pass a car and trailer than it does to pass just a car alone. (CR

Adjustment, Change Mark Suburbs' Growth

Expect Population To Double by 1980

by MIKE NASH
Staff Writer

Growth is a dynamic process of advancement and adjustment. It is painful as well as exciting, desirable as well as demanding. The northwest suburbs have been and will be facing the challenges of remarkably rapid growth for some time.

The Northeast Illinois Planning Commission has estimated that in 1980 the population of seven northwest townships, Barrington, Elk Grove, Maine, Niles, Palatine, Schaumburg, and Wheeling, will double the 1960 figure. This means a jump from 325,000 to more than 700,000.

Growth occurs on three fronts: residential, industrial, and commercial. All are interrelated; each plays its own role.

Residential growth will include both apartments and single family residences, according to Jim Blaeser, general sales manager for Winston Muss Corp., Palatine. Blaeser says that the ratio of apartments to single family residences will increase but not dramatically.

Whether or not to admit apartments is a difficult question for many villages.

Because they are high density projects (many people in a relatively small space), they sometimes provide the village with more tax revenue than it costs the village to service them.

BUT THE possible tax base increment is offset by the fact that apartments, also because they are high density units, may overcrowd schools if families with children rent substantial numbers of units.

Blaeser says that the way to avoid the problem is by building predominantly single bedroom units in large apartment complexes. This does as much as can be done short of barring apartments to insure that occupancy will not jolt a single area of a school district with a flood of children it had not planned for.

Len Birnbaum, vice president of Hoffman-Rosner, veteran area developers, says that the demand will continue to be for quality homes. The people moving into them will continue to be a blend, with the majority coming from no specific place.

Hoffman-Rosner is now developing its first subdivision in the $35,000 to $50,000 class.

This demand for increasingly higher priced homes in the suburbs is good news for those who would rather not see row after row of low priced identical homes appear in their community.

THE HIGH PRICED home market rules out the possibility for unskilled and semi-skilled workers of living in the northwest suburbs.

As industry increasingly moves to the suburbs, only the white collar and the supervisory and skilled blue collar workers will move with them. Unskilled and semi-skilled workers will continue to commute, according to Norman Atkins, executive director of Centex Industrial Park Association. He says there is no housing in the northwest suburbs for them.

Atkins says that industry is attracted to the area mainly by excellent transportation facilities which include O'Hare International Airport and the expressway and tollway systems.

It is too early to project figures concerning how many people will follow industry into the suburbs, but in Centex, 4,000 of 10,000 employes live in the suburbs, says Atkins. Some of these lived in the suburbs originally and switched jobs when industry came, some followed the industry in.

INDUSTRY IS valuable to area villages from a tax standpoint and virtually all of them are encouraging industry to locate within their boundaries.

Either industrial or residential development can be first on the scene but commercial development is always second.

Commercial development occurs only after the market must begin making profits immediately.

Richard McCarthy, promotion director of Randhurst Corp., says that a commercial establishment, although it will not move where profits will not begin immediately, will move into an area which will provide minimum profits expecting business to double or triple in a matter of years.

The ability of large commercial centers such as Randhurst, Mount Prospect, to attract people to the suburbs as residents is in doubt.

McCarthy says that a recent check showed that of the people shopping at Randhurst, as many came from Chicago as from Mount Prospect, 13 per cent in each case.

Commercial development is probably most accurately seen as a response to residential growth which may or may not be a response to industrial growth.

The composition of the suburbs is changing by the week.

Those who are already saying "I liked it better the other way," had better be prepared to adjust. The new look will be more large shopping centers and industrial parks, supported by residents living in an increasing number of apartments and quality homes. (A15

3 Area Educators Are Backing Prince

Three area educators are serving on the executive committee of an Illinois Educators for Prince Committee, formed to promote the candidacy of Dr. Donald M. Prince.

Ronald Glovetski, principal of Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village, and Mrs. Ada M. Songer, office occupations coordinator at Wheeling High School, are among educators backing Dr. Prince's campaign as Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction.

Also on the committee is LeRoy Knoeppel, former High School District 214 superintendent and retired Proviso superintendent.

Post Office Issues Plea To Parents

The Post Office Department is appealing to parents for assistance in curing vandalism to rural-type mail boxes, house letter boxes and collection boxes.

Much of this destruction has been attributed to young people and postal authorities seek the parents' cooperation in emphasizing to their children the seriousness of such acts and the associated penalities.

The penalty for the defacing or destroying of mail receptacles is a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for no more than three years.

At Iowa State

Iowa State University, Ames, conferred degrees and certificates in commencement exercises at the close of the second summer session.

Robert D. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Campbell, 426 S. Williams, Mount Prospect, received a bachelor of science degree in industrial engineering.

After the Armory ceremony, the university held a reception for the graduates, their families and friends in Memorial Union.

Backers of Ogilvie Open Headquarters

Neighborhood store front headquarters have been opened by the All Cook County Committee to elect Richard B. Ogilvie president of the Board of Cook County Commissioners.

These headquarters have independent sponsorship, but the facilities are available for all candidates who may wish to make use of them.

While particular emphasis has been placed on the election of Republican county commissioners and a Republican president of the county board, these headquarters also are available for other candidates in the course of their neighborhood campaigns.

Suburban headquarters have been opened at 926 Chicago Ave. in Evanston and 42 W. Dundee Road in Wheeling.

Candidates are invited to provide signs, literature, and other campaign material for distribution from these headquarters if they desire. (B10

Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie announced that Maj. James T. McGuire of the Cook County Sheriff's Police Department has been awarded a $1,500 Insurance Institute for Highway Safety Scholarship to attend the 1966-67 Traffic Police Administration training program at Northwestern University.

McGuire—who has been with the sheriff's police since Ogilvie reorganized the force in 1962 — is the first man in the department's history to receive a grant-in-aid for study at the Northwestern University Traffic Institute. He will begin classes on September 8.

Ogilvie pointed out that Major McGuire was one of 54 police officers selected from a nationwide group of more than 200 applicants to attend the nine month educational program.

"His award not only reflects upon his personal character," declared Ogilvie," but on the entire Cook County sheriff's police as well."

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety — sponsor of the scholarship — awards a number of grants to various police agencies throughout the United States. The purpose of the financial assistance is to give qualified police officials a unique opportunity to gain important technical training — training which some day will stop the steady increase in fatalities, crippling injuries and economic loss caused by traffic accidents.

DURING THE nine months of class work, McGuire will remain on active duty status. However, he will receive no active police assignments which might interfere with his studies. As a member of the course, he will spend 30 hours a week in class — plus an additional 20 hours on preparation. His instructors will include staff members, Northwestern faculty, and other authorities in various law enforcement fields.

In addition, McGuire will make a one-week field trip to one of many cooperating police departments throughout the country. There, he will have the opportunity to study and evaluate other departments' operations and compare them with the principles and techniques learned in class.

Major McGuire — before receiving the scholarship — was in charge of the operational bureau of the Cook County sheriff's police.

He was responsible for coordinating all law enforcement activities at the division level within the department. One of his most important contributions to the department was the institution of a seven-man tactic unit — which was made operational last year.

Before joining the Cook County Sheriff's Police in December of 1962, McGuire was a sergeant in the Chicago Police Department.

He is a graduate of St. Phillip High School and attended both Wright Junior College and St. Joseph's College in East Chicago, Ind., where he majored in criminology.

At 39, McGuire is married and has four children. He and his family are presently residing at 1727 W. Henderson Ave., Chicago. (B10

CHICAGO-AREA RESIDENTS will soon be seeing signs similar to this in front of Ford Motor Company dealerships. Such brand signs are part of a nationwide dealer identification program launched by the company to enhance the appearance of 7,500 retail outlets. The sign colors are different for each make: light blue for Ford, burgundy for Mercury, black for Lincoln and red for trucks. Each sign will feature the familiar blue oval trademark with the company name in script.

It's Action Galore At Northwest 'Y'

It's action and activities galore, according to program director Cliff Lothery at Northwest Suburban YMCA, beginning Monday, Sept. 12, when the new fall schedule begins. The 'Y'—aimed at family participation—has classes for all ages, and registration is open to everyone.

A new series of swimming lessons for anyone above age two will highlight the activities. The shallow water "teaching pool" will enable "Tiny Tots" (ages 3-5) to stand comfortably in the water, which is a great aid to learning. "Small Fry" (ages 6-7) also have an advantage in learning to swim in the shallow pool.

GYM ACTIVITIES offered in the fall schedule include skill gym for boys and girls, gymnastics, judo, hockey on roller skates, soccer, basketball and volleyball.

Outside the gym and swim areas, there are a variety of activities for recreation and hobbies, including archery, air rifle, baton, crafts, painting, bridge, dancing for all level and other special interest groups.

Northwest Suburban YMCA, located at 300 E. Northwest Highway, Des Plaines, is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily except Sunday. Further information is available by calling Cy 6-3376. (B10

State Grants College $3.4 Million for Campus

William Rainey Harper Junior College has been granted the $3,426,548 which originally was only tentatively promised it by the Illinois Junior College Board.

The amount is for first construction of an ultimate $29,500,000 campus.

The state junior college board Sept. 1 authorized the funding to all six Class I junior college districts in the state. The state board divided $20.5 million among the six districts which had requested $44,720,716 for construction funds.

Other college districts are the following: Triton Junior College, $3,756,003; Black Hawk College, $3,667,477; Sauk Valley College, $3,283,350; Rock Valley College, $3,691,541; and Chicago City College, $2,675,077.

Harper College plans to put $1 million with the state funds according to the three-to-one construction.

The student center with temporary classrooms and part of the physical plant is planned for use the fall of 1968. (B-10

Arlington Greens

A board meeting of the Arlington Greens Community Association was held in the East Clarendon home of Don McNamara on Aug. 31.

Late August ended a five-week vacation for the Ed Farnan family of North Hickory. The month's stay at the farm home of grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harris near Vassalboro, Me., included trips to coast towns whose origins date back to Revolutionary War days for historic sightseeing. Swimming, boating and life on the farm delighted the youngsters, Valerie, Eddie, Tammy and Heather, who celebrated her second birthday Aug. 14.

Before returning home, the family enjoyed a week's visit with the senior Ed Farnans in Larchmont, N. Y.

VACATION choice for the Tom McCook family of North Douglas the third week in August was at a summer cottage near Benton Harbor, Mich., as guests of a sister and family, the Stanley Magills of Indianapolis. Swimming, sailing and relaxing were part of the holiday fare.

August vacation for the Ken Jahnke family of North Belmont took them back to Gills Rock in Wisconsin's Door County vacation area for a week.

The George Roby family of North Beverly Lane returned last Wednesday evening from a five-day trip to Kentucky and Ohio. First stop was the University of Kentucky at Lexington, where Arlene remained to begin her freshman year. The rest of the family, after an overnight stay, headed for Ohio to visit relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George Demoody at Reynoldsburg.

Houseguests of the Robys during the last two weeks in August were Mr. and Mrs. John Schumann of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Saturday ended a two-week camping trip for the Don Bark family of North Hickory, covering 11 states and hundreds of miles, sightseing all along the way. Highlights were their three-day stay at Niagara Falls, both stateside and Canada, a week in Washington, D. C., where they toured the White House, Mt. Vernon, FBI Building and Kennedy's grave, among other points of interest.

After three days of camping in the Blue Ridge Mountain area and Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, they had an overnight stop at Danville to visit grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bark.

TWO-WEEK vacation for the Red Nolte family of East Olive began in mid-August, with a drive to Shelton, Conn., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eaton. To add variety to the return trip, they traveled to Niagara Falls and Canada and down through Michigan, stopping to sightsee along the way.

Saturday the Noltes hosted an "end of vacation, back to school" party for parents only. Guests at the outdoor affair were the Pete Johnsons, Dick Schwarzes, Sam Pizzutos, Harry Gildemeisters, Ron Roys, Jay Mothersheads, Ken Ulleniuses and the Jack Langhenrys.

The John Van Diggelen family departed from the Greens last Wednesday; after a three-month stay in their North Hickory home. They headed for southern California, where they moved two years ago, after enjoying visits with many friends and former neighbors.

HICKORY MEADOWS

"Summer's Last Blast" block party sponsored by Hickory Meadows Civic Association began as planned at 9 p.m. Friday evening. Torches on the parkway lit the Marion Street area, where 40 some couples gathered for an evening of dancing and getting acquainted.

PUPPIES AND KITTENS NEED DE-WORMING

The American Medical Association Journal reported that many eye infections have been caused by eggs or larvae from worm-infected animals. Parents are largely unaware of this danger created by infected puppies and kittens.

Among the many health-aids we stock for pets and animals are worm remedies which are safe and easy to administer. And, may we suggest that you bathe your dog with an antiseptic soap to prevent itching. Be kind to animals.

Books, Library Aids, Pouring into Schools

Federal Title II Liked by Districts

by KATHY GOSNELL
Staff Writer

SECOND IN A SERIES

Thousands of books and other instructional materials are pouring into area schools under a federal aid program.

The program, Title II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, allows students in both public and parochial schools access to materials they might otherwise not have.

Library materials, textbooks, and audio-visual materials under this Title are purchased by individual school districts with funds granted by the federal government.

Selection of the materials is in the hands of the local district subject to state approval.

MONEY IS allocated through the state on the basis of school enrollment at the date of the most recent reliable population figures. This figure is generally the 1960 census.

Each local district cooperates with the parochial schools within its boundaries, sharing the allocation in terms of materials available for purchase under the act.

In each case, however, ownership of Title II materials rests with the public school district.

No religious books or materials can be purchased with federal funds.

Most districts which applied for the program within the last year are now receiving the materials. Some, such as High School District 214, are aiming at strengthening different areas in each high school's library, while others are concentrating on general improvement in all areas.

Materials purchased under the act must be available to every student in the district.

FOR THIS reason, most districts have set up inter-district loan systems, if they were not already present, to handle lending of materials between schools

Palatine High School District 211 received $7,000 during the last school year for materials which are now arriving. Distribution will be among the three schools in the district.

There are no parochial high schools within the 211 boundaries.

L. K. Shelton, assistant superintendent at 211, said the funds were split almost evenly between purchases of books and audio-visual equipment.

Wheeling District 21 received $10,000 last spring. Norman Geske, director of instruction, said it was used primarily to build library facilities for its nine elementary schools and the two parochial schools within its boundaries.

GESKE SAID the district hopes to concentrate next year's allocation in improvements for the district's audio-visual facilities.

Elk Grove District 59 received a $17,480 Title II grant for its 15 public and two parochial schools in the district. Purchasing was concentrated in library books.

One of the private schools involved in this allocation is the Elk Grove Pre-School operated by Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Palatine - Rolling Meadows District 15 received its allocation of $22,400 under Title II. Materials are now in use in the public and parochial schools in that district.

Arlington Heights District 25 received $22,116 for materials now being delivered to the 17 public and three parochial schools in the district.

ABOUT 75 per cent of the allocation was spent on books, said William Fritsche, director of instruction, while the rest went toward development of the audio-visual facilities.

Since the district is so large, a loan system was not put into effect. Instead each school was allocated an amount on a per pupil basis and allowed to build "critical" library areas, Fritsche said.

Parochial schools accounted for about $5,000, he said.

District 214's $21,000 allocation was split six ways between four public and two parochial high schools in the district.

Charles Miller, coordinator of the district's federal aid programs, explained that each school strengthened one area of its library through the program.

That district's existing inter-district loan system has been expanded to include the parochial schools as far as Title II materials are concerned, Miller said.

ONE PROBLEM he has encountered is the rush on manufacturers of the school materials available under the Title. Some orders are arriving late, he said, because so many schools can now afford to buy. But "It's working pretty well," he added.

Prospect Heights District 23 received a $3,000 allocation for its four schools. There are no parochial schools in that district.

Supt. Louis Pansino said he is not happy with the way in which the allocations are made to school districts. Allocations are based on the 1960 census, and Pansino noted a growth in the past year of five per cent in finances and 27 per cent in enrollment.

SCHAUMBURG District 54 has received an allocation of $14,000, which has gone into general library improvement.

Acting Supt. Wayne Schaible said the books have been received.

Mount Prospect District 57 has refused to participate in Title II, as it has refused participation in any of the programs available under the Act.

Supt. Eric Sahlberg would not comment on the decision of the board of education in voting against the programs.

In the northeast corner of DuPage County Title II programs are not being established as quickly as in Cook County.

ITASCA'S DISTRICT 10 has set up a program with $2,792 federal grant which serves three public and two parochial schools.

Supt. Arnold Rusche said the parochial schools concentrated on building their general libraries while the public schools split funds at about two-thirds for books and one-third for filmstrips and records.

Both Districts 4 in Addison and 7 in Wood Dale will apply this year for funds for library materials.

Addison Supt. Lester Przewlocki said he hopes to have a program prepared for the October school board meeting.

Roselle District 12 officials filed too late last year to qualify for materials. Supt. E. W. J. Bagg said application will be made this year.

AS WITH OTHER programs established under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, few are ready to make an assessment of the worth of Title II at this time.

One indication of the acceptance in this area, however, is the fact that every district now using an appropriatior under the Title plans to reapply. Those districts in DuPage which do not have an allocation are eager to receive one.

Apparently Mount Prospect District 57 is almost a loner in its traditional stand against federal assistance in education.

Offer Professional Engineers' Courses

Arlington High School this year will be one of 11 centers at which the University of Illinois will offer special courses for professional engineers.

The same courses will also be offered at the Chicago Circle campus of the university, at York Community High School in Elmhurst and at Elgin High School, and seven other centers throughout the state.

Designed to help graduate engineers update their understanding of their field, the course will include engineering mathematics, statis and strength of materials, dynamics, machines and heat transfer, basic electricity, fluid mechanics, gas laws and chemistry, civil engineering, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering and engineering economy.

At Arlington High, the course will be offered from 7 to 9:50 p.m. Mondays beginning next week.

Enrollment information is available from W. L. (Pat) Randle, adult school director for High School District 214, at 259-5300.

COURSES AT York and Elgin started Wednesday, Sept. 7, and the first sessions of the Circle campus courses will be tonight and Saturday. Evening hour are 7 to 9:50 p.m. while the Saturday classes are scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

Information about the professional engineers courses may be obtained from the schools themselves or from the Director of Extramural Classes, 101 Illini Hall, University of Illinois, Champaign. (A15

"You can't tell me Paddock is a local paper, it's printed in Arlington Heights."

Weekly Ritual

Monday, or any day of the week, Paddock Publications proves its merit as a local newspaper, telling the inside of the news about your town, your schools, your parks and villages. Covering this beat has been its job ever since the turn of the century when 'old H. C.' first pulled his buggy into town.

The press has changed since then. The old flatbed became a Miehle, then a Duplex, then a Rotary that grew from 16 to 32 to 40 to 48 pages. But it's always been mounted in Arlington Heights, as 15 additional editions sprang from the granddaddy Cook County Herald. It's cheaper that way, printing 17 suburban newspapers from one plant.

It's our responsibility to serve all of our communities in the best way possible — local news presented in interesting manner, written by editors who understand the local scene. And it takes a lot of pages to do the job, as well as determination to read it all.

Thanks for trying.

Small Staff Hurts Reps: Schlickman

"The biggest problem that seems to confront state legislators is lack of adequate staffs to help them make their work more meaningful," said State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, Arlington Heights.

Schlickman, who recently returned from a week-long legislative seminar sponsored by the Eagleton Institute of Politics of Rutgers University, commented on the problem further.

If Illinois poses problems to its legislators, Schlickman said, Massachusetts is impossible. "The legislature there meets five days a week, 52 weeks a year, every year," Schlickman said, noting that state's salary for legislators is $7,500 yearly.

"The lament from that state is that you have to be very rich or very poor to take the job," he added.

Schlickman was one of 36 legislators from the 18 most populous states chosen to participate in the seminar. He is seeking re-election to the Illinois legislature. (B10

Psychologists Report On Head Start Results

Psychologists have submitted reports on the initial results of Operation Head Start—a program designed to fill in the gaps in the backgrounds of culturally deprived children.

One of their findings was that the pre-schoolers in the program increased their "mental age" after one month of the program.

In another aspect of the program, the psychologists, who tested 155 children at six different centers, found that language difficulty rather than intelligence seemed to account for lower scores by the Mexican-American children as compared with other children.

The psychologists hope that further research in the fall will clarify the differences in the scores between Mexican-Americans and the others, between girls and boys, and between morning and afternoon students. The girls did better than the boys in the testing.

THE PSYCHOLOGISTS used the Peabody picture test to measure the students' achievement. In this test, the psychologist asks children to find in pictures things he names.

One of the major recommendations the psychologists made was that teachers must read regularly and often to children. Their evidence in testing suggested certain activities such as small group reading had not received enough emphasis.

A section of the classroom should be allocated for a book corner where children would be encouraged to look at and handle books, the report recommended. Books should be geared to the mental rather than chronological age of the children and they should have large, colorful pictures and few words.

The use of audio-visual aids must increase, the psychologists believe. Films, filmstrips, records, and other aids are new experiences to many children and help increase their attention span.

Word games were also waged as an aid to increasing vocabulary. The psychologists pointed out that creative teacher can use snack or quiet activity periods to play word games.

The classroom also has an effect on the children's learning, the three testers said. The classroom should be light and have bright pictures hung at a child's eye level. Furniture arrangements should be functional and attractive. During snack time, table cloths and place mats should be used for each child.

THE REPORT stressed the importance of direct, personal child-adult interaction. Teachers, aids and volunteers should participate in the play. They should look upon the children as individuals and use all means to communicate with them. Adults must be sensitive to the needs, questions, and problems of the pre-schoolers.

The testers found the average mental age of Caucasian children was 4 years 6 months while the average Mexican-American's mental age was 2 years 9 months.

Certain conditions that might have affected the testing situation were noted in the report. Testing in some places, for example, had to be done in a hallway where children were distracted.

The report gave a brief description of some of the families whose children are in Operation Head Start. The Caucasian group often has poorly developed family structure and "multi-problem" environment. Many Mexican-American children are from migrant families where both parents work and care of the younger children often is entrusted to older children in the family. Many of these families speak Spanish; some are bilingual.

IN THIS preliminary test, the examiners wanted only to study the effectiveness of the academic portion of the child's development after Operation Head Start enrollment. The report noted that Operation Head Start's program is concerned with the development of the whole child.

In a report to the Northwest Cook Opportunity Council (Norwesco) board, area sponsor of the Head Start program, Director David Fankhauser last month noted that about 80 per cent of the children were found to have some medical problem.

"Head Start is not a program of play or babysitting service," Fankhauser emphasized in that report.

Operation Head Start's fall-winter-spring program started this week. Approximately 270 children are to participate in the program. (B10

'Group' Keyboard Instruction Set

"Group" piano method utilizing Dr. Duckworth's "Keyboard Series for Children" is beginning at Karnes Music Co. Sept. 22.

The instruction program is under the supervision of Don E. Graichen, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass. Graichen has done graduate work at Northwestern University and is presently assistant to Dr. Guy Duckworth, chairman of the department of preparatory piano at Northwestern.

His experience in teaching piano has included music schools in the Boston area as well as private teaching in both Boston and Chicago. This form of teaching is unique because it emphasizes music as a language development program concerned primarily with a conceptual learning experience built upon a broad base of transposing, playing by ear, harmonizing, sight-reading, technical skills as well as general performance.

Graichen states that results are "amazing" and that with this sytem children learn more rapidly and retain their interest longer. The "group" method is proving to be one of the most important developments in this field during the past 20 years.

Dr. Hoffman to Speak Sunday at Lutheran Rally

Dr. Oswald Hoffmann will deliver the address at the Lutheran Hour Rally to be held Sunday, Oct. 16, at 3:30 p.m. at Maine Township High School-East, Dempster and Potter Roads, Park Ridge.

Dr. Hoffmann, Lutheran Hour speaker, has served the church for more than 25 years as parish pastor, college professor, film production advisor, public relations executive and radio speaker. He was appointed Lutheran Hour speaker in 1955. For the first eight years, he served on a part-time basis, also continuing his service in public relations for the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, with offices in New York City.

MODERN BREAKTHROUGH IN PIANO METHOD

OLD-FASHIONED METHODS OUTMODED

The boring finger drills and "panic" recitals that marked childhood piano lessons for about 25,000,000 adults in this country are fast becoming a thing of the past. Some 16,000,000 adults are still playing, but why did 9,000,000 people end up saying, "Oh, yes, I took piano lessons but I can't play a note." Did they lack in talent or ability? No. They remember the pain of learning more than the joy, because the emphasis was on the mechanics of playing instead of the music played. These students missed the true meaning of music and lost interest. Why? . . . the fault lay in the method of teaching and that is why piano is not taught the way it used to be.

INSTRUCTOR

Mr. Graichen

The instruction program is under the supervision of Mr. Don E. Graichen, B.M. New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. Mr. Graichen has done graduate work at Northwestern University and is presently assistant to Dr. Guy Duckworth, chairman of the Department of Preparatory Piano at Northwestern University. His wide experience in teaching piano has included Music Schools in the Boston area as well as private teaching in both Boston and Chicago. The same method utilizing Dr. Duckworth's "Keyboard Series" books for children is taught in our studios.

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

To be accepted as a student an audition is required which tests musical readiness and aptitude and also provides the necessary information required for proper grouping procedures. This test also answers the question many parents ask, "How do I know if my child is ready for piano?" Achievement tests are periodically given and close parent-teacher contact is encouraged. A parent orientation meeting is required with BOTH parents at the beginning of the child's term of instruction. The aptitude test is free to anyone wishing to determine readiness.

GROUP METHOD

Group instruction is considered by most music educators to be one of the most important single developments in this field during the past 20 years because today they realize that psychological principles and group dynamics can most effectively be applied to the teaching of music in small groups. These ideas have taken the country by storm with statistics showing amazing results. This form of teaching is unique in that it emphasizes music as a language development program concerned primarily with a conceptual learning experience built upon a broad base of transposing, playing by ear, harmonizing, improvising, sight-reading, technical skills as well as general performance. The student learns by discovery and experience in activities which encourage critical thinking and problem solving.

ADVANTAGES

There are distinct advantages to group instruction. Some of the outstanding ones are that children, used to group instruction methods in regular school classes, are able to transfer their experiences to learning music. The students profit by the accomplishments and mistakes of others in the group which promotes faster progress. Children generally overcome shyness in a relatively short period of time. There is greater incentive for practice when the lesson period is no longer a "lonesome" experience and thereby interest is sustained longer. Pupils tend to learn more from one another than from a teacher since peer consensus is an important criterion in the child's development.

TUITION

The year is divided into 3 quarters and a summer session. The fee for the complete instruction program is $42 per quarter and $22.00 for the summer session, payable monthly if you so desire. Auditions are currently being conducted for the First Fall Session scheduled to start September 22nd.

INSTRUMENT AVAILABILITY

Pianos for home use are available in conjunction with this program at a nominal charge.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

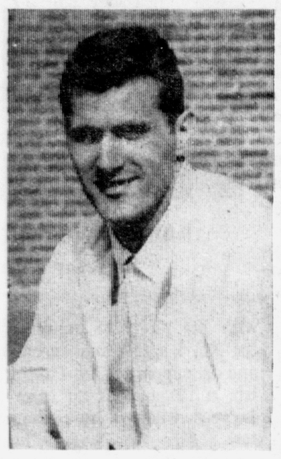
Bader Returns To Area Scene . .



RICH BADER

Rich Bader is sincere when he says, "It's great to be back."

Bader, a 1959 graduate of Arlington High and one of the finest dash men in Paddock area track history, is now on the coaching staff at the new Elk Grove High School after spending three seasons at East Leyden.

And he couldn't be happier.

"I wanted to coach in the area where I grew up and went to school," admits the 25-year-old Bader whose return to District 214 didn't come quite as soon as hoped for.

"But I did enjoy my three years at East Leyden and welcomed the challenge of helping build up their track program and working in football."

Bader, who is married and the father of a 15-month-old boy, is faced with a new challenge at Elk Grove as he assists head man Dick Mudge in football and personally directs the school's first track and field team.

Rich welcomes the opportunity to work in a school which opened its doors for the first time this week. He's enthusiastic about prospects for the future although he would be the first to admit that, as in any new school, it takes time to develop the athletic program.

"The town is behind us and that's important," Bader points out. "They're enthusiastic, they want to help out as much as they can, and I can see where a real identity is going to develop beteen Elk Grove itself and the school."

Bader, who grew up in Mount Prospect, brings an interesting athletic background to his new assignment at Elk Grove. He had a football and track career that had its high and low points, its moments of success and moments of disappointment. He remembers them all.

Who can forget that Arlington Homecoming football game in 1957?

"That's one night I'll always remember," Rich says today. "It was Homecoming, we beat an unbeaten Hinsdale team by one touchdown, and I was fortunate enough as an end to score one touchdown on a jump pass from Tom Grey.

"I was only 16-years-old and was lucky enough to be one of the few juniors to play regularly. Hinsdale, as usual, was a fine ball club, but we also were having a pretty good year.

We recovered a fumble around their 30 and moved down within the 10 yard line when we came up to a fourth down play. Grey called for a pass and I got into the end zone with a touchdown that put us ahead. That was one of the biggest thrills I ever had in sports."

Bader, who carried 160 pounds on his 5-10 frame in high school, was anxious for his senior year of football, but he only played part of the first game.

"I suffered a crack in the ankle bone on the first pass I caught from Gene Dahlquist and the cast didn't come off until the Monday after the season ended. It's ironic that I got the injury against Leyden, the school where I had my first coaching job."

Although Bader enjoyed a fine junior year in football and was touted for possible post-season honors as a senior until shelved by the injury, it was in track and field that he made his most memorable contribution to the area sports story.

"I didn't intend to go out for track when I got to high school but was cut from the freshman baseball team," Bader explains. "I didn't know quite what to do then, waited for a week or two, and then went out for track. I didn't do much as a freshman and a back injury made me turn to managing as a sophomore."

As a junior and senior, Bader emerged as the finest dash man in Arlington High School history.

Rich earned trips to the state finals in the 100 and 220 yard dashes as a junior and senior and placed third in the Illinois furlong as a senior. He reached the finals in the century but was overlooked in a blanket finish. We saw that race and to this day will argue that Bader finished in the middle of the pack, not sixth as the judges claimed.

When Bader graduated, he took with him the school marks in the 100 yard dash (9.9), 220 yard dash (21.8), and 50 yard dash (5.4). They still stand. He also worked on three relay teams that set school marks: 880 yard relay

Intrasquad Game Saturday

Palatine Will Play To Aid Little City

Palatine High School's 1966 football varsity will go on view for the first time this Saturday, for a workout and a good cause.

The varsity Pirates—under headman Arv Herstedt and assistants Tom Hillesheim, Bill Pelkey and Gary Duff—will divide into Red and White for their annual pre-season intrasquad game.

There'll be one game—varsity only—starting at 2 p.m. on the Hale Hildebrandt Field at the Fremd high school, 1000 S. Quentin Rd.

THE GAME WILL be something apart from the usual intrasquad game in that it will also be staged to call attention and lend assistance to Little City, Palatine's school for the retarded. As part of the effort in behalf of Little City, the coaches are asking an "admission" of a bar of bath soap or a book of S & H Green Stamps, to be turned over to Little City.

The coaches are encouraging all parents, interested Pirate boosters and people associated with Little City to attend the game, and view the boys who will try to defend Palatine's 1965 Mid-Suburban League football championship.

The coaching staff has also arranged for a "get-acquainted" session between coaches and parents of all Palatine football candidates for after the game. It'll be held in the Fremd gym, with parents of freshman and sophomore as well as varsity players invited. Coffee and donuts will be served, but the primary purpose of the gathering will be for the parents to get to know the coaches and ask any questions they may have regarding the Palatine football program.

Striking, Beverly Host Bowlers

Paddock Classic Play Begins Saturday Night at Two Sites

The men go to Mount Prospect and the gals head for Arlington Heights.

Striking Lanes in Mount Prospect and Beverly Lanes in Arlington will serve as hosts Saturday evening as league play officially gets under way in the two Paddock Classic Traveling bowling divisions.

Fourteen teams, featuring the high-average men and women bowlers in the Northwest Suburban area, will move into action at 6:30 for the initial night of competition in a season that runs until April 30.

The glas will vie for first-night honors at Beverly Lanes, shooting across lanes one through six, and the men will journey to Striking Lanes, firing on lanes 25-32.

THE PUBLIC is invited to watch the unfolding of the schedules for the two highly-regarded leagues.

A special warmup sweeper was held two weeks ago at Rolling Meadows Bowl, and the Paddock Classic keglers exhibited some fine early-season form, indicating another banner season ahead.

Ward Siewert, one of the men instrumental in forming the Paddock men's league, and Neal Domin, a division newcomer, paved the way in the sweeper with identical 636 efforts.

Siewert and Domin will both be operating for the Gunnell's Lanes entry in the 1966-67 season, the tenth anniversary year of the men's loop.

SHOWING THE top efforts for the women in the sweeper were Harriet Fuchs with a 568 and Jean Ladd with a 567. They'll both be bowling for Sylvia's Flowers this season.

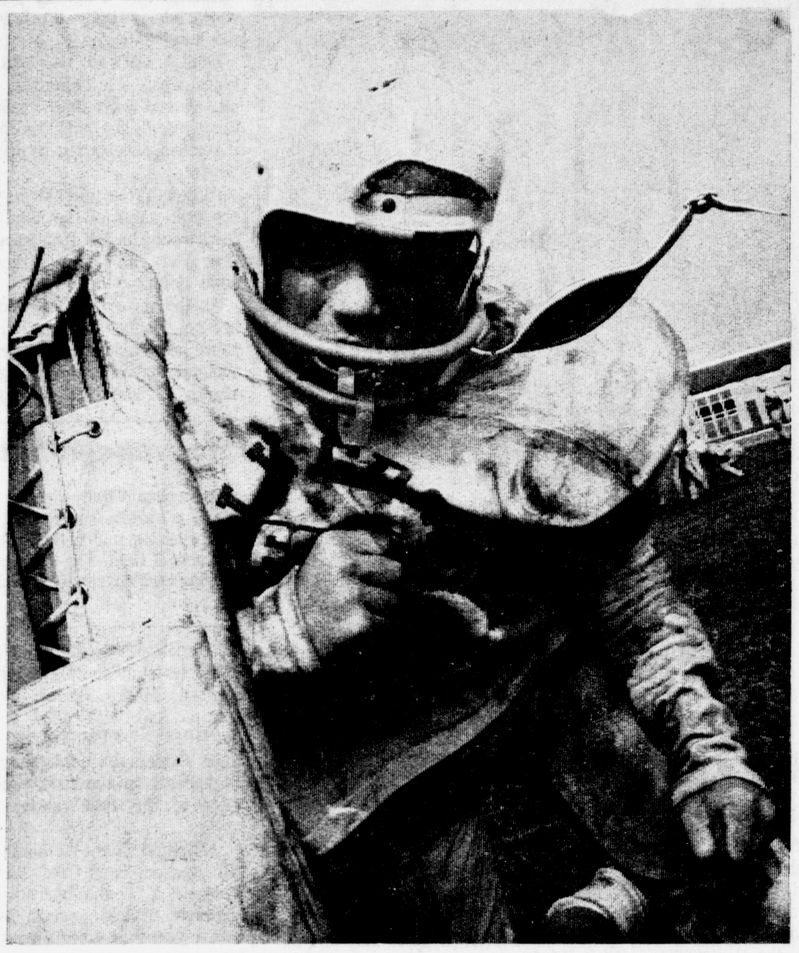
Top individuals back for another campaign are Joe Simonis of Striking Lanes, a 199.44 average performer last year who bagged the highest average in the state of Illinois with a lofty 212 mark in a Striking division.

In the gals' league the average leader last season was Peggy Harris of team champion Lattof Chevrolet. She fashioned a 178.2 for 90 games in the women's competition.

LATTOF IS back intact in defense of its Paddock championship with Donna Reinhardt, Vi Douglas, Joanne Christensen, and Rose Kraft joining Peggy Harris. This unit topped both rounds, taking Steve's Restaurant in a position-night showdown for the second half title.

Concourse Sports Chalet bagged the men's crown last season, but they've broken up that winning combination.

Watch these sports pages each week for the highlights and scores of the Paddock Classic competition.



DRIVE, BOY, DRIVE. Keep those legs moving. As the season openers approach, the tempo of drills increases in the area high school football camps. They're blocking a little harder, tackling with more authority, and running with more determination with the awareness that the first kickoff of 1966 is only a few days away. The opening contests for Paddock area entries will be played on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 16-17.

Falcons Have Promise

No Super-Stars But Don't Overlook FV

by BOB NORDIN

The Falcons of Forest View under the tutelage of head coach Bob Scott and staff have been learning things these past couple of weeks.

One thing they're learning is that they can play football without All Conference—All State Pat Dunnigan, the lad who did everything but line the field before each game last year.

They're also learning the basic fundamentals of football because this year's Falcon squad can boast only four returning lettermen.

But this year's team must be just that, a team, because there are no standouts, no super-stars and the young birds must learn that to win they will have to pull together. They have all the stuff for a fine season. The question is whether or not they can put it all together and have it come out spelling win.

MOST STUDENTS of the game will readily admit that football is a game that is won or lost where seven men from either side meet nose to nose across the line of scrimmage. This is where the work horses of football help make names for the flashy runners of the backfield and Forest View may have some tough horses.

At present 6-1, 185-pound Mark Frankel and 6-1, 225 pound Chuck Pender are vying for the center spot. Both boys can move well and get the job done.

A pair of converted backs lead the candidates for the guard slots. Both Spence Dreischarf, 5-9, 195, and Dave Kaspari, 5-11, 195, have great speed and tremendous strength for schoolboy guards. Behind them are Bruce Stevens, Ray Vitha,

In Prospect's Camp

Scrimmages Slated

by KEITH REINHARD

Trimming down to 40-45 possible candidates, Prospect head coach Don Williams will take a good look at some of his younger talent and concentrate on defensive tactics in rehearsing for the Knights' upcoming opening day grid invasion by North Chicago Sept. 17.

On the agenda are four sets of scrimmages slated for this Saturday morning and a general polishing of the Prospect offensive game according to Williams, who terms the progress of his squad "very satisfactory" after one week of daily drills complete with pads and an abundance of rugged head-to-head contact.

"We've just started working on our defensive game," Williams stated earlier this week. "And we've moved some juniors up to the varsity team whom we feel may work in well."

ALTHOUGH HE has not yet determined exactly where some of the newcomers may play, Williams is high on at least seven juniors now making cracks at varsity berths.

"Ken Nehmzow and Mike Anderson both look good at ends," Williams reports. "Another good prospect is Butch Leonard at one of the tackle positions."

Other shining rookies are Mike Sanders, who could win a center or guard slot; Jim Gumz, at end or flankerback; Gary Cobe, at fullback or running back; and Joel Martin, at end or on the defensive lineup.

IN ANY EVENT, the Knight eleven looks like a passing team. Along with veteran Tom Lundstedt, the Knights have another capable signal-calling prospect in Bob Youngquist, a sturdy six-foot senior who transferred into Prospect after last football season.

With two quarterbacks to pace the Knight attack, Williams is not worried about this position.

Lundstedt, also a basketball and baseball standout at the Foundry Road school, came on fast last fall after getting the

103-Day Meeting Closes With Tri-State Feature

As a fitting climax to the successful 103-day racing season at Arlington Park, the popular Northwest Suburban plant will feature the richest thoroughbred race in the world Saturday when a top-flight assembly of two-year-olds tours seven furlongs in the $350,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity.

And this summer's edition takes on the most wide-open aspect in the short history of the race which was inaugurated in 1962 and which evolved from the old Arlington and Washington Park Futuritys.

Arlington Park officially closes its doors Monday with the $30,000 Tri-State Handicap for three-year-olds and upward at one mile, but the big one is the Futurity.

As is generally the case, the Futurity is certain to go a long way in deciding the juvenile championship.

YOUNG upstarts from East and West, as well as the strong local assembly, will tackle the event, with more than $175,000 expected to go to the victor. Previous winners, all of which ranked among the top choices in the race, include: Candy Spots (1962), Golden Ruler (1963), Sadair (1964) and Buckpasser (1965).

Wheatley Stable entry of Great Power and Top Bid, Fred W. Hooper's Olympia Site, Thomas B. Stewarts's Turma-Now, Harvey Peltier's Diplomat Way, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Bensinger's Zip Pocket, Reverie Knoll Farm's Lightning Orphan, Herbert Allen's Favorable Turn and E. R. Scharps' Native Prince are leading candidates among the roster of eligibles to the seven furlongs encounter.

Yet a trio of outstanding colts are being seriously considered as supplements by their respective owners. They include Harbor View Farm's Forgotten Dreams, George D. Widener's Bold Hour and Patricia Willis' Willow Cage and would each require a $25,000 payment.

ALTHOUGH a disappointing runner-up in the Hopeful Stakes Aug. 27, Great Power has nevertheless enjoyed fine fortune in the East this summer, and comes into the race sporting impressive credentials.

He also finished third in the Juvenile at Aqueduct, and is certain to have the services of Braulio Baeza, one of America's top riders, in the irons. Great Power has proven to be quite versatile in either moving directly to the front or coming from off the pace.

Stablemate Top Bid is quite capable in his own right. The bay has finished third in the Sanford, Saratoga Special, and Hopeful Stakes, and also won maiden and allowance events with ease. He generally prefers to move late, and sports a strong stretch kick.

ONE OF THE most promising runners to carry the Hooper colors in recent years is Olympia Site, hero of the Hyde Park Stakes July 13. The chestnut son of Olympia won his first two outings with authority, then continued the remarkable success in the Hyde Park, speeding home two-lengths in front of Rasic in 1:10 1/5 for six panels.

However, the skein ended abruptly Aug. 5 when he finished third in the Arch Ward after holding command until the sixteenth pole. Yet he's been training extremely well during the past two weeks and figures to prove a formidable contestant. Laffit Pincay, Jr., the red-hot Panamanian jockey, is slated to ride Olympia Site, who has posted a bankroll of $37,050.

Rapidly - improving Turma-Now staged a strong drive to win the Arch Ward Stakes. The roan has shown gameness in each bout to date, and also ran third in the Joliet and Hyde Park. He earlier captured a pair of events in Florida, and will be piloted by Leroy Moyers.

NATIVE PRINCE has captured the Gulfstream Park Dinner Stakes, Juvenile, and Great American, Favorable Turn annexed the Saratoga Special by seven lengths, Diplomat Way ran second in the Arch Ward and the upstart Zip Pocket won two of his first three outings.

All of the possible supplements have done extremely well. Forgotten Dreams was a smashing 3½ lengths winner of the Hollywood Juvenile Championship July 23, and also ran second in the Portola Stakes and third in both the Howard Stakes and Golden Gate Juvenile.

He is currently stabled at Arlington, and his presence in the Futurity depended upon his showing in the Futurity Trial Stakes Aug. 31.

Bold Hour comes off a two-lengths score in the Hopeful, and earlier won the Flash Stakes. He also ran second in the Tremont and Saratoga Special. And Willow Cage captured the Bashford Manor by four lengths May 21.

Luebcke Champ

Local Golfers Star in Meet

Two golfers familiar to Paddock area fans finished first and third, respectively, last Saturday in the 23rd annual Chicago Tribune All-Star Golf Tournament.

Warren Luebcke, a former Prospect High School golf standout and presently a 20-year-old student at North Texas State University, topped the field with a sharp 66. He was followed by Len Fiocca, golf coach at Fremd High School in Palatine. Fiocca took the Palatine golf squad downstate last spring.

Luebcke and Fiocca were in a select field of 12 of Chicago's best amateur golfers in an 18-hole medal event sponsored by the Tribune and the Chicago park district.

Luebcke, who had placed third in the Al MacLean Junior Open in Wilmette earlier in the week, played steady golf en route to his three-stroke victory.

Warren's only bad hole was the 11th, a 295-yard par 4 with a small pond in front of the green. He recovered for a bogey after his second shot hit a tree.

The key hole and turning point, according to Luebcke, was on the 200-yard 13th. He nearly eagled the hole as his second shot, a three-iron, lipped the cup and rolled three inches out. He then holed out for a neat birdie.

"After that, I knew I could win if I played conservatively," said Warren. "I was only trying for a par on the 18th, but my chip shot stopped a foot from the pin and I made the putt for a birdie."

Fiocca tied Gene Reiland with a 69 in the regular 18 holes before falling in a sudden-death playoff.

Both golfers parred the first hole of the overtime before Fiocca's drive on the second hole strayed to the right under trees. He then had to settle for a bogey while Reiland took a par to claim the runner-up throphy.

Fiocca is a Thornton High School graduate who twice earned small college All-America laurels while a golfer at Western Illinois University.

Trophy Night

The 8th Annual Trophy Night for the Wheeling Boy's Baseball League will be held Friday, September 9, at 7:00 p.m. in the Wheeling High School Theatre. The 1st place team in each division and the All-Stars who participated in the July 4th All-Star Games will receive individual trophies.

(1:30.0), 440 yard relay (45.0), and mile medley relay (3.43-.9). They're also still on the books.

Bader went from Arlington to Northern Illinois University in DeKalb and although his college career wasn't an instant success he still experienced many big days in football and track.

"I didn't go out for football my freshman year at Northern because my leg still gave me some problems," Bader remembers. "They let me try out near the end of the season and did invite me back for the following year."

Rich cracked the lineup at a flank as a sophomore and didn't leave the starting alignment for the next three seasons.

"We started with the shotgun offense my sophomore year with Tom Beck, an excellent football player, at quarterback, and we were lousy," Bader candidly offers. "We were small and young and didn't come around until the following year.

"We stayed in the shot-gun my junior year and when George Bork moved in at quarterback Beck went out to the slot back. We threw all the time and that was fine with me as an end."

The Bork to Bader aerial act that never had a chance to operate in high school because of Bader's injury was a smashing success at Northern for two seasons as both boys earned all-league recognition.

There was a natural story in this passing combo because Bork and Bader grew up together as neighbors in Mount Prospect. Their families still live there.

"We had a lot of fun playing football at Northern," Rich emphasizes. "There never seemed to be any drudgery involved. I really enjoyed those three seasons."

Bader, who had some feelers from professional football teams, never tried to make the pro game. "The San Francisco 49ers made the biggest pitch, but I never had much interest in trying to make good in pro football," he says.

Bader was the school's top sprinter in track and he posted such sizzling clockings as 9.8 in the 100 and 20.8 in the 220. He hit 21 flat several times in the 220 which he always considered his best event.

When Rich graduated from Northern, there was an opening on the East Leyden coaching staff and he accepted the position.

"Even then I wanted to get back to the Arlington area," he admits, "but nothing could be worked out. That's all changed now, and I couldn't be happier."

Mike Griesman of Rolling Meadows, who passed for over 800 yards as a senior at Forest View High School, is bidding for the No. 1 quarterback slot at Northern Illinois University. Griesman, a junior at NIU, filled in for the departed Ron Christian last year and did an excellent job. His main competition is coming from a sophomore. Dan Meyer of Arlington is the defensive captain for the Huskies.

Luebcke fired a three-under-par 66 to top Gene Reiland and Len Fiocca by three strokes. Fiocca is the golf coach at Fremd High School in Palatine. The two Paddock area golfers earned their spots in the All-Star tourney by placing in the top four in the Midwest Amateur.

Tough Assignments

The Defenders Prepare

by BOB FRISK

Ask a lawyer what he means by defense and he'll say to vindicate one's legal rights by force of argument or evidence.

Ask a football coach and he'll say that to defend is to keep your opponent from scoring.

A lawyer puts in many hours preparing his case, and a football coach puts in many hours molding his defense.

They both know just how important a good defense can be.

For the coach, the boys who prevent the touchdowns are just as important as the boys who score the touchdowns.

And there's a special type of camaraderie built up between the two units.

IT'S A GREAT boost to any team when the defensive eleven, shoved with their backs to the wall, fights back to thwart a serious penetration by the opponent.

Although the offensive players grab most of the headlines, they would be the first to admit that you can't win without a solid defense.

As the days race by and the season opener draws closer, there admittedly is some serious thought given to that group known as The Defenders (with due apologies to the once-popular television show) in the Arlington High School football camp. And with good reason.

THOSE DEFENDERS will face extremely challenging assignments in the first two outings of the 1966 varsity campaign.

Arlington opens at home with Barrington, and the Broncos feature a double-barrelled offensive attack geared around the passing of Greg Brown and the running of Tom Wood. You look for a Brown aerial, and Wood explodes up the middle. You wait for Wood and Brown goes to the air lanes.

The Cardinals saw almost too much of both boys last year. Brown completed 11 out of 17 passes for 146 yards, and Wood, whose brother Kim earned All-State ranking and now plays for the University of Wisconsin, ground out 72. Brown also ran for 38 yards so the pair accounted for 256 of Barrington's 264 total yards in a 27-20 loss to the Cards.

FOR THE SEASON Brown threw for 901 yards on 72 completions and Wood picked up 689 in 112 carries, a 6.1 average.

The Brown-Wood combo is tough enough, but the next weekend—Sept. 24 to be exact—Arlington runs into another rugged opponent in Palatine. The Pirates don't use the pass as much as Barrington, but the defending Mid-Suburban League champs thoroughly enjoy chopping their way up the field on the ground.

And the leader of these time-consuming marches is All-State candidate Johnny Ekeberg, a 5-10, 170-pounder who collected 699 yards rushing and scored 12 touchdowns as a junior. He topped the MSL in rushing with 462 yards, a 5.25 average.

So that's what is ahead for The Defenders at Arlington High School. Greg Brown, Tom Wood, and Johnny Ekeberg . . . a tough trio to hit in the first two games of the season. And what boys will be called on to stop them?

THERE'S A mixture of experience and inexperience on the Arlington defensive unit as it stands today although head coach Al Allen said early this week that no definite alignment had been settled on yet. There's still work to be done.

One of the leaders of the defensive group will be co-captain Kim Markshausen, a 6-3, 240-pounder who can run with anyone on the team for 50 yards. Kim, who's looked good both offensively and defensively thus far in the workouts, will plug the all-important middle-linebacker slot. He's a two-year varsity vet who slumped a little last fall after an outstanding sophomore season, but who's college material.

Up front right now on defense are sophomore stickout Dan Selleck (195), brother of a former Arlington gridder and wrestler; Bruce Weber (190), Bob Miller (190), and Jim Donchess (200) with transfer Tom Chandler (185) and letterman Mick Wadzita (180) bidding as cornermen.

BRAD SOMERS (180), who backs up veteran Steve Allen at quarterback on offense, fills in as linebacker on defense with Brad Philo, a fience competitor despite his lack of size (155 pounds) also looking for some action on defense.

Steve Conley (185), the squad's top ground-gainer as a junior, also knows his way around in the defensive backfield, and he could see duty there with vet Dave Lockwood (190), the split end on offense who would like to grab some enemy aerials as well as those from teammate Allen this fall.

Ron Horcher, a rugged 175-pounder, is also a possibility at corner back to give Conley some occasional or permanent relief on the defensive unit.

Quarterback Allen, who continues to impress in workouts with his pin-point passing, is the No. 1 safetyman on defense and is supported by Paul Parish, a 150-pounder up from the jayvees who's a fine competitor.

That's the way the defensive alignment looks today although, as the head coach emphasized, several changes are possible between now and the season opener with Barrington.

Regardless of what boys fill those eleven spots when the curtain goes up on Friday, Sept. 16, one thing is definite.

The Defenders have some demanding assignments ahead.

Injuries Sock Conant; Conditioning Accented

by KEN KNOX

There have not yet been enough casualties to call Conant's football players the walking wounded, but there have been enough to create furrows in the brow of headman Ron Rio.

One in particular has ingrained a furrow that may remain for the duration of Rio's first season as the Cougars' varsity coach. The team has lost—for the campaign—one lad who may have been a fixture in the backfield, perhaps one of the best offensive threats Conant could offer.

Senior Mike Kennedy was felled in practice, sustaining a knee injury that required surgery for torn ligaments, ending Kennedy's prep grid career two weeks short of the opener at Lake Park.

With Conant's ranks already thin enough to raise the prospects of considerable two-way play, the loss smarts, and conjures up memories of 1965 when similar injury problems pressed Kennedy into multiple duty as quarterback, halfback and defensive back.

Those misfortunes indirectly benefited Conant for 1966, because Kennedy — a rugged, scrambling runner — also developed play-making and passing savvy. That advantage is now lost to the Cougars.

INJURIES were the word of the week at the Conant practice field, with two of the team's big linemen at least temporarily sidelined. Jim Lohff, a 6-3, 210-pound guard, had to sit out with an injured foot, and Terry Linskey, a 6-3, 218-pound junior tackle, was held out with knee trouble.

Otherwise, Rio and his crew pressed on with preparations for their Sept. 17 debut, and their effort to better last year's 0-8 standard and last place finish in the Mid-Suburban League.

"We are," the coach mused, "like the grass around here. Short and green. But the boys have been really putting out in drills."

Rio reported considerable contact work, now that his charges have had more than a week with pads on. He is accenting conditioning, because the Cougars generally lack heavy varsity experience, and because other than Lohff, Linskey and a few others, the Cougars are small. And the work on conditioning appears to be paying some dividends.

"THE PLAYERS are in better condition now than they were last year at this time," he said. "We're going to have to depend on that, and I'm hopeful that some cool weather now will help them along more."

The training regimen, of course, has now been reduced to a single session a day with the re-opening of school. But in those sessions, Rio will continue to lean on strict conditioning, and narrow the selections for the starting positions.

One bit of experimentation is being tried, with the switching of senior guard Mike Koertgen to fullback. The 5-11, 187-pounder will be given an extensive try at that position, in competition with junior Ernie Drummond and senior Mel Nelson, with Drummond the most experienced last year.

THE SWITCH involving Koertgen underscores the attention given the Cougar backfield, the area where Conant will need to blossom if 1966 is to be a success. The team, with its conditioning and the size at least in the interior line, should make opposition scoring a labor, but the key will be in Conant's ability to score.

So attention is centered on Paul Witkowski, the junior quarterback elevated to the varsity in 1965, and put out of commission with a broken collar bone. It's centered too on Larry Sicher, up from last year's strong freshman squad, and Paul Miller, a junior varsity player last year, because Conant must find someone who can make the team run.

There's new attention, too, on senior Larry Robertson, an ex-cross country man, who brings strength and speed but no experience to the varsity, and Barry Alexa, a proven rusher in two years of underclass ball, but now a hopeful junior.

RIO CAN build a stern line in front of those backs, given freedom from further injury. Paired with Lohff at guard could be John Armfield, a 5-11, 175-pounder considered one of the most improved players last year, and Dick Rogers, 6-0, 190-pounds and like Armfield a junior.

Besides Linskey at tackle, there is a hefty duo in Duane Smeryage (5-10, 230) and Hank Wellnitz (5-9, 220), and at center there is veteran Dennis Reynolds (6-1, 212) and junior Rick Robertson (5-10, 160) for backup. Rio is still shy for ends, with the only sure candidate there Greg Klopf, a tall senior (6-3½, 175) who came out for the first time last year, and learned the job quickly.

The peril for the linemen is that many of them are going to have to perform on defense as well as offense, so remaining sound is virtually a must. If they stay sound, they should be able to do the job. Then it's up to the backs, and it is not going to help their cause to have Mike Kennedy watching from the bleachers.

In Grid Perfection: Challenge

Pirates Don't Intend To Dwell With 1965

by KEN KNOX

"They don't," reflected Arv Herstedt, "want to be considered as less than the boys on the 1965 team."

That's a powerful motivation for a band of football players, and one of the best things Herstedt has going for him as he readies to shepherd Palatine's grid-men through the 1966 season.

"The practices," he noted, "have been going well. There is drive and hustle, and the morale and enthusiasm of this group is very high."

That, doubtless, is a reflection of the motivation, and further cause for Herstedt to dwell with some optimism about the admittedly stern challenge ahead.

There is no question that the youthful headman is in a position which is at the same time enviable and unenviable, and it's all because of the legacy left from 1965.

HERSTEDT AND the Pirates now building toward the Sept. 17 opener against Glenbrook North on the Fremd school field will follow an act that's left little for an encore: eight straight wins, scoreless play in conference action, a Mid-Suburban League championship. A season like that is hard enough to match, but it's inevitably harder because the school that compiles it is automatically the target for every other school on the schedule.

So Herstedt is thankful for attributes like high morale, and enthusiasm, and the yearning to be what the predecessors were. And he's also thankful that some of the boys with that positive mental commitment are also some of the boys who were part of the 1965 example.

It is around those veterans that Herstedt is now building, and after the first full week of contact work and the first genuine scrimmage, he's been able to bring into clearer focus who will carry the Palatine banner in 1966.

THE EARLY focus shows a team of size, speed and strength, with the major questions concerning development at certain backfield positions and on the defensive platoon.

By offensive position, Herstedt saw the squad shaping up this way:

Ends—Senior Bill Gill, a six-foot veteran who caught three passes for 82 yards and two touchdowns in 1965, will be at one, but the other is being contended between Allen Bisantz and Dick Scheuttner of 1965's once-beaten junior varsity team.

Tackles—A sturdy bunch is bidding here, led by 215-pound veteran Paul Dolik, one of three boys on the club seeking his third varsity letter. John Jensen (210) from the JV's is showing well, while pushing are Chris Green (200) and junior John Lang (210).

Guards—200-pound letterman Bob Salinas, considered the toughest of the linemen at this stage, is a sure bet, while Jeff Daniels (185) is being pushed by Mark Brennan and Rick McAllister for the other post.

Center—Stationed here is 270-pound senior veteran John Reed, unless 185-pound junior Pat Donahue—showing very well—can handle it, freeing Reed for another line position.

Halfbacks—All-state candidate John Ekeberg, a tough 162-pounder who led the MSL in scoring and rushing last year, will be at one side, while Wayne Render—sidelined half of 1965 with a broken arm—is likely at the other. Both are aiming for third varsity monograms, and both will be backed by Barry Fitzgerald and Jeff Teach from the JV team, and by Art Zajonc, just back from a summer of study and rugby in Argentina.

Fullback — Brian McCartney, a 6-2, 180-pound sprinter is now first in line, a veteran who could be dangerous. But he's being pressed by senior Pat Kinsella, who in any event will be a strong punting and placekicking threat for the Pirates.

Quarterback — One of the question mark positions, dominated last year by the graduated Ken Johnson, it looks to be the property of Bob Young, an accomplished short passer lacking only varsity experience. Pressing him: Howie Tuttle and Brian Scholl from the 1965 JV's.

OFFENSIVELY, Palatine will again operate mainly out of the slot T, but—as last year—considerable variations can be expected. Defense may feature a lot of boys going both ways, particularly with the loss of several of 1965's premier defenders, but Herstedt said he'd try to keep as many fresh boys as possible for defensive chores.

Defense, as taught last year under Herstedt, is a particular source of pride to Palatine, and a lot of new faces will be trying to uphold it in 1966.

At the ends, candidates are Green, 210-pound junior John Lang, 225-pound transfer Dave Dobbins, and 170-pound Bob Angleson.

DOLIK AND Reed are planned as a sizable tandem at the defensive tackle posts, though Jensen and beefy junior Tony Marceau are also in line.

At the guards, 190-pound Aaron Hughes—out with injury in 1965—is contending with Brennan and Donahue.

Salinas, another expected to work near full time both ways, leads the candidates at linebacker, where he was a standout last year. Daniels, McAllister and Jerry West are also vying. For cornerback, the candidates are numerous, with Render and Teach leading, and Zajonc, Kinsella, Bisantz and Dennis Lynch of 1965's JV also trying.

Back at deep halfback will be Gill and McCartney, a rangy duo. But Scholl and Ekeberg—who worked there as a sophomore—are also expected to see action.

Falcon Eleven

Paul Traficanto, and Tom Govederico, all eager for a chance at a starting spot. Both Dreischarf and Kaspari are returning lettermen. The tackle candidates are Bob Savage, 6-2, 205; Rick Stenberg, 6-3, 205; Hubbard Helms, 5-11, 225; Phil Rider, 6-2, 200; LeRoy Stevens, 6-0, 195, and Cris Bosel, 6-0, 225. It's still anyone's guess but Savage has shown promise and the others are in the thick of the battle for position.

RETURNING letterman Howard Brasch leads the list of hopefuls at the end spot. The rangy Brasch is joined by Steve Allen, Dan Smith and Mike Messer all of whom would like a shot at the job. They all have the attitude needed and enough speed to get to the right spot at the right time. Without having game conditions it's difficult to tell who has the all-important ability to hang onto the football.

In the backfield the generalship of the team will go to either letterman Bob Arnold or Dick Gillespi. The fact that these two boys were named co-captains by mentor Scott speaks well for their leadership abilities. Both boys are capable ball handlers and signal callers.

Backing them up at running back will be Denny Lynch, Frank Cavello, Jeff Jacoby and junior John Webster. At fullback is Henry Tasch at 6-2, 195, along with Frank Wasilewski and Doug Fink. Fink lettered at Arlington High School as a junior split end.

IT IS HARD at this point to even guess what kind of season Forest View will have. Injuries may play a role but a healthy Falcon eleven could be a tough team to beat.

There is not an excess of size but neither is size an absolute prerequisite to a winning ball club. Team work and desire can often compensate for other things that are lacking and the Falcons may well have these two assets this year as they do battle with their opponents.

It is not out of the question that the Falcons could be a definite factor in the MSL race.

Prospect High

call as the varsity quarterback.

THE POISED 6-foot-4 senior hit on 19 passes in league play for 406 yards and three touchdowns, and those 406 aerial yards topped the conference quarterbacks. His biggest afternoon came against Conant when he threw for 150 yards and two touchdowns, connecting on scoring strikes of 72 and 33 yards. Tom was fifth in total offense in the MSL.

The Prospect crew is slated to get their scrimmages under way at 8 a.m. this Saturday with a freshman clash followed by sophomore, junior and varsity skirmishes.

The following Saturday they will host the Warhawks in a non-conference tilt that launches their '66 season.

KEITH REINHARD

BOB NORDIN

Bob Nordin and Keith Reinhard have accepted positions on Paddock Publications' sports staff, Sports Editor Bob Frisk announced this week.

Nordin, 26, will cover the athletic programs at Forest View and Elk Grove high schools.

Reinhard, 28, will handle the coverage of the sports year at Wheeling and Prospect high schools. He replaces Michael Hess who resigned to take a position with the Dover (N. J.) Advance Day.

Nordin is a former football and wrestling standout at Palatine High School. He was an all-league selection as a halfback in football and finished fifth in the state at 154 pounds in wrestling.

He is completing work toward his degree at Northern Illinois University and formerly covered sports on a part-time basis for Paddock Publications.

Bob is married to the former Terry Barbour, also an area resident.

Reinhard is a veteran of five years in the Air Force. A graduate of Highland Park High School, he spent 19 months in Korea and three years in Germany where he was sports editor for the weekly base newspapers.

Reinhard has worked for the Deerfield Review and Waukegan News-Sun sports departments.

He is married and has two sons.

The addition of Nordin and Reinhard completes Paddock's sports staff for the 1966-67 school year.

Bob Frisk has been sports editor of the chain of suburban newspapers since June of 1958. He has been associated with Paddock Publications since 1952 and has followed the area sports scene 21 years.

He will continue to cover the athletic programs at Arlington and St. Viator high schools, write a weekly column, Kickin' It Around, and supervise the over-all planning of the three Paddock sports sections.

Associate Sports Editor Ken Knox has been on the staff since March of 1965. He will cover the District 211 schools, Palatine, Conant, and Fremd, and write a weekly column, Knox Notes, for the Palatine Enterprise, Hoffman Herald, Schaumburg Herald, and Hanover-Streamwood Herald.

Knox also serves as outdoor editor of Paddock Publications, writing a bi-weekly column, Sportsman's Notebook.

Larry Everhart, who has worked in the sports department during the summer months, will return to Cornell (Iowa) College in two weeks to begin his sophomore year.

For 'Cat Harriers

Eaton, Black Top Returnees

by KEITH REINHARD

Take away all the senior members of most varsity high school teams and not much would remain. Try this at Wheeling next Tuesday when the Wildcats open their cross country slate by hosting Leyden East and nobody will know the difference.

Head harrier coach Ken Carter and his assistant Gary Tjarks have this unusual situation to contend with as they ready to enhance a 2-3 mark in Mid-Suburban League action of a year ago. With practice sessions about to enter their final full week prior to loop competition, the cross country squad is still void of last-year men.

A total of 25 runners has already turned out with more expected when school gets under way. Even so, Carter has a select ledger of experienced harriers to draw from.

ON TOP OF the list of Wildcat returnees are two who gained varsity letters as sophomores and should provide Wheeling's one-two punch in '66. The two, Len Eaton and Andy Black, were among a quintet of runners Carter relied on most during the previous season.

Other members of the top five, now graduated, were Bill Lytle, Paul Fiegen and Doug Steinman. Lytle went on to finish seventh in the district meet at Deerfield in 1965.

To replace the three lost lettermen, Carter will have his choice of any number of harriers — juniors of course — who have shown promise in practice sessions. Among these are Phil Smith, Bill Martin and Steve Mykytiuk, all with excellent sophomore showings under their belt.

Other potential front liners include Gary Ald, a transfer from Leyden West; Tom Pataruski; Ken Ball, and Jim Weber, whom Carter describes as one of the hardest workers on the squad.

Pirates Are Thin, But Maybe Mighty

by KEN KNOX

It might be better to substitute "Spartans" for "Pirates" when referring to Palatine High School's 1966 cross country aspirants.

The question that comes immediately to mind is this: can a small but sturdy band—like the legendary lance-carriers of Greek history—hold out against the ravages of fierce competition?

Headman Dick Storm — his responsibilities now compunded by his appointment as Palatine's athletic director — thinks they can, given a few conditions.

THAT STORM — with assistant Joe Johnson — is working with slim ranks can't be disputed. It's a sober truth at a school where the running sports are king, a truth born of the split this year with the William Fremd High School.

The division is something of which the best must be made, but it's caused some problems for Storm. For one — by the quirk of boundary lines — Fremd has siphoned off most of a Palatine frosh-soph team tha was 12-3 over-all last season and just missed the Mid-Suburban League crown. For another, because all the freshman will attend Fremd for 1966-67, Storm and Johnson have found themselves with no freshmen out for Palatine, and only a handful of sophomores.

IF IT'S TRUE that the Palatine numbers are few, it's also true that there is a talented nucleus for the 1966 varsity. The situation is similar to that in 1965, when there was another good nucleus, but one weakened by both illness and discipline. Even at that, the team ended 10-4-1 over-all, the losses including early setbacks to traditionally-tough York and Evanston, a squeaker to Arlington, and one to league champion Forest View. The team was a strong third in the MSL.

This year, things may be even much better, with a squad built around co-captains Mike Ferguson and Bill Bahnfleth. They'll lead a half-dozen returning lettermen.

Ferguson, regarded as one of the school's most competitive athletes, turned in the best team time on the Palatine course last year, won the 100 Per Cent Award, and was designated the most valuable junior.

BAHNFLETH, OF course, is not far removed from his greatest triumph: the establishing of the Illinois record for the 440 yard dash in the spring's state track meet. He was high point man for the cross country varsity last year, had the second fastest time, and needs only to gear himself for the longer harrier grind to be one of the area's sensations.

The surprise among the veterans may be Dennis Denton. Though not among the top five harriers last fall, he blossomed in the track season, with credits including a 4:24.1 mile and 9:43.5 two mile run.

Three other letter-winners will be back, boys who gave the squad some depth last year and are working to be among the leaders now. They include Jerry Weyrich, rated the most improved last year, and said to be in excellent shape; Bruce Atkinson, who had the ninth best team time last year; and Tim Sullivan, who had the eighth best time and was another who just missed the scoring.

MISSING IS Keith Wojtas, a varsity runner as a sophomore in 1965 who's now at Fremd. But up from the soph team are Mark Visk, rated the best freshman last year, and Noel Eggebraaten, a consistent scorer who's been temporarily sidelined by surgery.

This year's sophomore squad will be hurting, unless some freshmen come out. At the moment, Storm and Johnson are building with a nucleus of Scott Smith, Howard Weld, Jim Wehenmeyer, Jerry Hoffman and Tom Schrenkel, but more numbers are needed.

The season —to again include the big meets at Janesville, Wis., and Rockford — opens this Saturday morning (10:00 a.m.) against defending state champion York.

Warrior Star Returns

LEE LABADIE OF MAINE WEST, one of the state's finest milers last spring as a sophomore, is also a standout in cross country. The Warrior junior was second in the Mid-Suburban League run last fall behind Forest View's Craig Brown. Author of a 4:20 mile run as a sophomore, Labadie is working toward impressive seasons in both track and cross country. He's the mainstay on a Maine West team that will be among the leaders in the Mid-Suburban harrier competition. (Staff photo)

Conference Champ Boasts Veterans

by BOB NORDIN

The defending conference champs have launched their workouts.

The harriers of Forest View High School, guided by a new head coach John Heenan, are involved in daily drills as they prepare for another cross country season.

It takes a special kind of courage to be a long distance runner and a special type of dedication.

There is nothing very exciting about running anywhere from two to six miles a night and perhaps the only satisfaction would be in knowing that you are working yourself into top condition.

But there are these special, dedicated young men who do go out every night and work very hard for very little recognition. No one could probably give a sound reason for why they run except for the competition involved. To be a success at cross country you must begin by overcoming yourself first and then your opponent.

AT FOREST VIEW this year the team is short on numbers but long on experience. The squad will be led by returning letterman and two-year veteran Ted Lambert. Lambert is a senior this year but as a junior last year he placed 4th in a tough conference. This year he will be the team leader Heenan will look to.

But Ted has able support from some of his teammates. There is Bucky Jones who is going to miss some practice because of an injury. Joe Branka, only a junior, but 7th in the frosh-soph conference last year is also available. Also returning is Cliff Kuhnlohe who placed 17th last year in the conference meet. Joe Joyce and Bruce Fince, both juniors, will also be in the run for team slots as the Falcons attempt to equal their fine 1965 performance.

Oscar Pequeno, the young man who ruled the frosh-soph harriers in the Mid-Suburban last fall, has not reported yet and may be lost for the season. This loss would be sharply felt as they were counting on Pequeno to help out on a varsity level.

THE MAJOR graduation loss at Forest View was Craig Brown, conference individual champ with a six-second cushion over Lee LeBadie of Maine West. Brown finished second in the district run and went on to place 17th in the state finals in Urbana.

Can the Falcons repeat their outstanding 1965 showing?

Although they're few in numbers, there's quality in the returnees.

With some help and some luck Forest View could make another strong run for Mid-Suburban honors.

Three Vets Return For Card Harriers

By BOB FRISK

Bruce Samoore spent his first season as Arlington's cross country coach getting acquainted with the West Suburban Conference. He was impressed.

Samoore expects to be equally impressed this fall as he sends his varsity Cardinals through their first Mid-Suburban Conference excursion.

"Over-all, the Mid-Suburban should be stronger this year in cross country than the West Suburban," says Samoore who handles both the harrier and track and field programs at the oldest District 214 school.

"Maine West and Forest View look like the teams to beat, and you can't overlook Palatine. It should be an interesting year."

SAMOORE, who lost some talented youngsters from an outfit that finished 8-3 over-all in duals and fourth in the district run, feels his Cardinals have some promise although admittedly there are some question-marks after his three returning monogram winners.

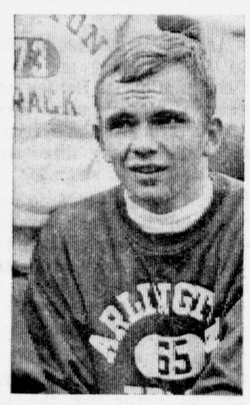
Greg Busch, senior and captain, is the key returnee with Busch closing his junior year with a big splash by placing tenth in the district harrier meet, only six seconds out of sixth.

Busch, who is in his third year on the Arlington varsity, worked in both the No. 2 and No. 3 slots on Samoore's 1965 squad, trailing senior standout Bob Yeazel, the major graduation loss.

JUNIORS DAVE Dieters and Rory Cassidy also earned major letters in cross country last fall, and these two bright prospects enjoyed impressive track campaigns in the spring.

Dieters, who was Arlington's fourth man across the line in district action, ran mainly in the No. 5 slot with the varsity harriers as a soph. Dave could have a big year. He won the 880 yard run on a frosh-soph level in West Suburban ranks.

Cassidy, fourth in the league mile run last spring, was primarily the No. 7 man as a varsity harrier although he did earn enough points for a letter. He'll play an important role on the 1966 varsity.



GREG BUSCH
Card Captain

OTHER BOYS who show promise on the Arlington cross country team are senior Larry Malcolmson, a member of the school's swift mile relay team in track; junior Rich Saxton, out for cross country for the first time; junior Jim Bergstrom; sophomore Tom Swanson; and promising frosh Ken Malcolmson, Larry's brother.

Swanson didn't show much in cross country last fall as a frosh but was a bright spot in the track campaign. He broke the school frosh mark for a mile with a fine 4:45.9 clocking in the conference finals.

Twenty boys currently are out for cross country at Arlington with John Gardner assisting Samoore. Gardner will coach the frosh-soph squad.

"We're still interested in having more freshmen report for cross country," Samoore said this week.

"Any freshman who would like to try out for the team should see me at school."

Arlington will launch its cross country schedule next Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 13, at Pioneer Park against a veteran Maine East team. The meet will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Bob Rees At Grove CC Helm

Bob Rees, who guided Forest View to the Mid-Suburban Conference cross country championship last fall, has taken over as head man of the first Elk Grove varsity squad.

Rees greeted 21 candidates at the first practice session.

It will be a building year for Rees who is working without a senior class.

Experienced runners reporting were Scott Jones, Wayne Wille, and Dennis Jones, who earned sophomore awards at Forest View. Jones was 27th in the conference run.

According to Rees, the only time trials run this year have compared favorably with similar trials held at Forest View when it also was a three-year school.

Knights Have Young Squad

by KEITH REINHARD

If their frosh-soph record of a year ago is any indication of their present capabilities, the Prospect cross country team could be the one to watch this fall.

Coach Joe Wanner and his assistant Dick Kinneman may not view the up-coming MSL race quite as boldly but they should have little difficulty improving on the Knights' varsity showing of 1965.

Last season, while the varsity harriers slipped to a 2-8 over-all record and were blanked in MSL outings, the younger squad was going undefeated including a blue ribbon in the conference meet and another first in the circuit standings.

BETWEEN 25 AND 30 runners turned out for initial practice sessions including four who placed among the top 15 in the '65 sophomore conference fray. Steve Holmes, who placed fourth; Dave Baker, sixth; Bruce Oswald, ninth, and Owen MacBride, 15th; could form the axis of a powerful squad this season.

"We'll need help though from our returning lettermen," Wanner concedes. They are Chuck Forbes and Leroy Rateike.

Six of last season's lettermen will not be able to help. Jack Pollard, who finished sixth in the 1965 varsity conference meet, along with Dick Braunschweig, John Jacobsen, Dennis Breen and Vaughn Pedersen have all graduated.

In their place, two out for the first time who may show sparkle are junior Tom Long and senior Tom Walter. Sophomores who may be able to help include Dave Proudfoot, Jeff Brauchle, Doug Bach and Dick Paulson.

Bach finished 16th in the sophomore conference showdown as a freshman.

The varsity Knights in 1965 possessed an 0-5 mark in the Mid-Suburban league and placed last in the loop meet. The sophs were 5-0 in their race.

Both squads open Sept. 13 at Barrington.

Conant Needs Harrier Depth

by KEN KNOX

If only three places counted in cross country—or perhaps four—Jack Ary could look more confidently to the campaign shead.

But five count, and that's what has Ary concerned.

Back again at the helm of Conant High School's harrier squad, Ary has that problem too familiar to numerous cross country coaches: outstanding individuals, but not enough of them.

Around that problem circulates the answer to the 1966 campaign for the Cougar cross country campaigners. If someone can be found to keep pace with the team's front-runners, Conant, too, can be in the thick of what is formulating to be a fierce Mid-Suburban League competition.

There is no question that Conant has front-runners, with three boys back from a team that finished 5-6 over-all last year and in a tie for fourth in the MSL.

THE RETURNEES include 1965's No. 1 and No. 2 men, Dick Ledford and Dave Troy, and they — after a summer of stiff work — are running so closely that Ary would be hard pressed to pick one over the other. Both lads cracked Ary's 400 mile club over the summer, with a lot of distance to spare. Troy cranked out some 800 miles during vacation time, and Ledford more than 600. Now both back for their senior years, they could be formidable contenders for the league's individual honors.

Back also is the boy who as a freshman last year ran a consistent fourth for the team, Glenn Lee. He, too, is expected to do well on the harrier circuit this autumn, and he this summer logged 400 miles.

Thus, with Ledford — first in four duals, 10th in the Maine West Invitational, 12th in the conference and 13th in the district — and Troy and Lee back, Ary has a strong nucleus for harrier success at the Hoffman Estates school.

IT'S WHAT IS NOT back that hurts, specificially the loss of two lettermen. Larry Robertson, No. 3 man as a junior last year, has made the switch to football, and Sam Culpepper, who ran fifth and sixth for the team last season, has declined all athletic activity.

So Ary, in the workouts around Conant, is making the search for some backup, and there is some optimism about the possibilities.

A sure bet — were he not just recuperating from foot surgery —would be junior Jim Kramer, the leading runner on the frosh-soph a year ago. He had a taste of varsity competition in 1965, and if he mends well can be a factor.

RUNNING HARD for a position in the top five is another junior, Ray Iehl. He's another who loped 400 miles over the summer, and was generally No. 4 man on the 1965 frosh-soph.

The second and third men from that team — both sophomores now — are being elevated by Ary.

They are Bob Lesher and Sam Burns, who pressed Kramer in the competition for team supremacy. Both, if they can overcome youth and lack of varsity experience, could be potent runners.

Two other seniors may help out. One is Bill Lee, having some trouble getting back into shape after an accident in the spring, and the other is Bruce Scholler, a veteran with the team though he didn't win a letter last year.

How well the experiments work should be evident quickly for Ary, because the Cougars have scheduled a dual, a triangular and the Maine West Invitational in the first five days of the season. It begins at Maine South, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 13.

JUST DOGS

By Dave Terrill

Watch Dog—....

More than one family buys a dog these days with the thought in mind of not only having a pet but also a watch dog. Along with this thought there is also a demand for larger breeds of dogs. Those who buy larger breeds must realize that such dogs can present big problems unless owners are willing to meet a dog's needs for training and care.

Start out early in a young pup's life to teach him what is expected of him. Barking or howling is common to puppies of all breeds when they first come into the home and miss the companionship of their littermates. It may not annoy you, but it may bother the neighbors. You had better start correcting him, and it can be done so as not to inhibit his value as a watch dog later in life. Correct the dog only when he barks continually, or for no reason. Hold his muzzle shut with one hand and with the other finger point your command "quiet." If this doesn't work, startle him into silence by dropping a pan or tin near him, followed by the command. You may have to repeat this a number of times, but don't give up, and praise him when he obeys.

Above all, don't let him run loose without supervision. Even if he doesn't become the neighborhood tramp, he will be less "your dog." Keep him at home where he is supposed to be and where he will learn that "home ground" is the area that he should keep an eye on. Many puppies of the large breeds look full grown and threatening to strangers and children. Not everyone will understand that the pup is only playing if he leaps toward them to greet someone new. Walking on leash provides a chance to train the dog to "heel" and to refrain from such antics.

As the dog gets older, he will learn from you who is and who is not to be greeted as a friend. Your voice and your commands will give him the answer.

No Water—

Recently, during the summer heat wave, a condition was brought to the attention of your editor about which he can't help but make some comment. The condition is that of thoughtless dog owners who have their pets tied out in the hot sun with no shade and no water.

In one instance the dog became ill and the owners could have cared less. Such people should not own a dog, for they have little regard for the animal and they themselves show a decided lack of responsibility. If they take care of their own house and run their family the same way, it must be a mess.

Just like people, a dog or any other animal needs water in varying amounts. The wild animals get theirs from streams and lakes, however, a dog that is around a home must depend on his owners to keep that water pan full, and if he is in an outdoor run or tied to a dog house, there must be some shade. If you own a dog—the next time you take a drink of water, ask yourself, "I wonder if the dog has some?" and then check to find out.

Eating Habits—

Dogs soon learn to take advantage of the fact that they are lovable, and hard to stay mad at. Puppies make slaves of their owners if correction of eating problems is not applied before they get out of hand.

The cure is simple. Put the food in his dish. If he refuses to eat and walks away, remove the dish. Wait until the next feeding time and repeat the process. Remember, his fast is self-imposed. You aren't starving the dog. He will eat the proper diet you put before him long before he does harm to himself. Once he does eat, take a stand and don't revert to your pampering ways of always having food in the dish.

Barks & Bays—

National Dog Week will be celebrated this year from Sept. 18-24.

On Custardo's Passes

Travelers Break Hex; Shatter Racine, 47-14

Fred Custardo, a quarterback from the University of Illinois, quit the Baltimore Colts' training camp recently. Little did the Elmhurst Travelers realize at the time that this walkout could turn out to be their biggest break of the season.

Custardo joined the Travelers' squad just in time for last Sunday night's match against the powerful Racine Raiders at Racine, Wis. His car broke down in Deerfield, but he rented a Hertz auto and arrived on the scene just in time to rescue the Elmhurst eleven in a Frank Merriwell-type story.

Racine, which had won 25 straight games until two weeks ago and had beaten Elmhurst five years running, finally had its hex over the Travelers shattered and Custardo was primarily responsible.

HEAD COACH George Kulton had earlier stated that "we have some of the best receivers in the league but no one to throw to them." Such is no longer the case.

When Custardo finally made it to Racine, it was the second quarter and his new teammates were on the short end of a 14-7 count. (Charles Derden had blocked a Racine punt early in the first quarter and recovered on the enemy three-yard line, setting up a score.)

But by the time Custardo was through for the night, he had ripped the Racine secondary for two TD passes, set up two others, and led the Travelers to a resounding 47-14 victory.

Custardo went to work in the second stanza after a Ken Stone pass was intercepted and returned 56 yards for the go-ahead touchdown. Fred "made a tremendous difference in the offense," as Kulton said, immediately driving the team down the field and scoring himself to cut the gap to 14-13.

PASSES OF 30 and 33 yards later in the second quarter set up a five-yard touchdown run by Pat Toye which put Elmhurst in the lead. Luke Reckamp converted to make it 20-14.

The next time the Travelers got the ball, Custardo unloaded a 43-yard bomb to Rice on a picture-book play for another tally. Reckamp again converted to set the halftime count at 27-14.

Midway through the third quarter, Custardo tossed 37 and 18-yard aerials, the latter good for another TD. After the ensuing kickoff, Elmhurst recovered a fumble on its own 41 and quickly moved in for its sixth score, Ben Ward doing the honors from the six. Reckamp kicked the extra points after both scores.

In the final quarter, Ken Stone passed 15 yards to Dave Casey for the Travelers' final counter. The PAT attempt was blocked, but Elmhurst had a convincing 47-14 victory.

THE TRAVELERS have now won two of three games in the young season, equaling their win output for 1965 when they posted their most dismal record in history—2-8.

The statistics were as lopsided as the score in Sunday's encounter, as Elmhurst gained 94 yards on the ground and 252 through the air to Racine's meager 12 yards running and 68 by aerials.

With Custardo at the helm, the Travelers must now be considered one of the favorites for the Central States League crown.

Local fans can see the exciting new quarterback in action this Sunday afternoon, when Elmhurst is at home against the Manitowic Chiefs. Game time is 2 p.m. at the York High School Field.

Pondel Makes Rout Of Bartlett Meet

Lou Pondel of Bartlett won the Bartlett Hills Country Club golf championship last week.

Using a brilliant 68 to get off to a fast start, Pondell won the annual 36-hole medal play event in a rout, finishing 19 strokes ahead of his nearest pursuers.

Lou put together a 76 on the second day to give him a 144 total or even par golf for the 36 holes. This is sparkling golf for any amateur, but two eagles —one in each round -- made Pondel's performance glitter even more.

Pondel had an eagle deuce on the 17th hole of the first round and shot a three, also good for an eagle, on the par-5 18th in the final round.

Bob Lavin of Streamwood and Harry Grover of Hoffman Estates carded 163's to finish in a tie for second. Lavin had rounds of 77 and 86, while Grover recorded an 80 and 83.

Most of the scores in Sunday's final round dropped because of a tricky wind and chilly weather. Prizes were awarded to the top three finishers.

In addition to the regular 18-hole event, a special driving and putting contest were held. Lavin won the driving event with a shot that carried about 290 yards, and Art Thorpe of Hoffman Estates was the putting champ.

Wheeling All-Star Nine Splits in 2 Tournaments

The Wheeling National League All-Star squad took on teams from Waycinden Park and Buffalo Grove recently.

Waycinden took the trophy from Wheeling in a three-out-of-five tournament, but the locals came back to triumph over Buffalo Grove, two games out of three.

In the deciding game against Buffalo Grove, the Wheeling All-Stars trailed until Ronnie Henricks belted a home run with David Anderson and Mark Torp on base. This blow was the difference as Wheeling went on to win the game and the tourney.

Ronnie Henricks was voted Most Valuable Player by his fellow All-Stars with Steve Rymer coming in a close second.

Other trophies were awarded to Pat McGinn for most RBI's and Scott Olson for highest batting average. Scott Cole was the winningest pitcher.

Mr. Ron Henricks was Manager of the Star squad. His coaches were Bob Westrich and Jim McDaniels.

Besides those mentioned above, other boys on the tournament team included Mike Hyde, Allen Neuman, Mike Schomer, Roy Lipovitch, Bob Westrich, Rick Loomis, Mark Rohloff, Mark Nieween, John Walsworth, Dennis McGowan, and George Kaage.

Three teams tied for first place in the National League Standings this summer in the Wheeling program. In a playoff, Delta became the league champ with Ritzenthaler and L. B. Andersen close behind.

That's Elk Grove Squad

Lacking in Numbers But Not in Desire

by BOB NORDIN

Soon the colors of autumn will be coming into view, but the predominant color at Elk Grove High School this season will be green.

Coach Dick Mudge is faced with the lightest turnout of football candidates of any school in the area and he has no seniors at the infant school.

At present he has a total of 31 boys out for practice. Of this number seven are sophs. From this number we must subtract six more lost for a number of days last week because of illness and light injuries.

The situation at Elk Grove is, to say the least, disappointing, but the boys Mudge has out for football are eager and have come to play the game. Mudge, assisted by coaches Rick Bader and Bob Walther have been working hard with the boys and progress is being made.

THE OFFENSE has been working to satisfaction but the defense for the season ahead is a definite question mark. There are no big boys at Elk Grove and the Grenadiers will have to depend on speed and aggressiveness to overcome superior size.

With as few boys as there are out though, all boys will have plenty of individual attention and it will be an easy task for the EG coaching staff to pick out available talent.

The Grenadiers have two candidates for quarterback, Jim Veltri and Larry Pahl, but Pahl has missed three days with the flu bug. Both boys have been working well and it is still a tossup at this position. They're able field generals but both need seasoning under fire.

AT FULLBACK Mudge has Ray Bauer, George Taylor, and Gruber. The Gruber lad is only a sophomore. The running backs are Don Knopf, Jim Shipley, Jim Hoffman, Bill Austin, and soph Juan Garcia. There are no big, blockbusters in this entire group but there is plenty of speed.

At the end slot will be hopefuls Glen DeBerge, Tom Pomey, sophomore Joe Kalisz, Roy McClellen and Rick Radyke. Pomey is the younger brother of George Poney, area basketball standout and according to coach Bader, the young Pomey likes it tough.

Tackles Bob McFarland, Bruce Spada, Jim Ophl, and Mark Karafa are all shooting for a starting berth. The guard spot is wide open with Mike and Dave Ernst, Bob Shera, soph Jim Holmes, Dave Wheeler and Mike Swanson all in the running. The lone center candidate at present is Chuck Raffaele.

AT A SCHOOL with an enrollment of better than 1400 students, it is disappointing to Mudge to have so few turn out for practice. But Dick feels that the boys he has will give maximum effort in the opener against Addison Trail. The Blazers average around 215 in their defensive line and the Grenadier line may have a busy afternoon keeping them at bay.

With a new team, at a new school, without any tradition to draw from the Grenadiers may be faced with many minuses for the year but the support from the parents is already being felt and shown in some of the finest equipment of any school in the area.

The team has the only blocking and tackling machine of its kind that is owned by a high school and the boosters club is responsible for this.

The coming season may be a very definite question for the Grenadiers but it is certain that those involved with the team are going to give 100 per cent at all times.

FUN and FACTS About Bowling.....by Dick Ericson

THE RELEASE: Freedom from boredom and tensions is automatic in a fun-filled bowling center. Glee and exuberance explode quite naturally.

THE RELEASE: The ball is released by removing the thumb first. Fingers remain in the ball momentarily, providing the lift that produces a forward, or side roll. This role determines the effectiveness of the ball when it hits the pins. The fingers, in a sense, are the crowning touch, and the thumb must be released first to enable the fingers to lift the ball.

As Beck Is Sidelined . . .

Tuminaro Moves Into No. 1 Fullback Slot

by BOB FRISK

Stiff competition is healthy for any football player.

If you know you've got the position won, you may unknowingly relax and fail to consistently turn out maximum effort.

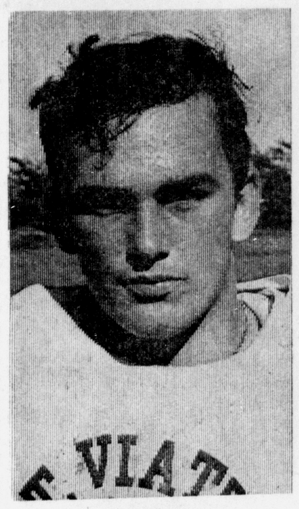
That's why coaches, realizing that team depth is also involved, relish the prospect of some interesting arguments for positions where more than one boy can be inserted with no reduction in the quality of performance.

AT THIS STAGE of the drills one of the top battles for first team status at St. Viator High School is at fullback where Tim Beck, a letterman, and Phil Tuminaro a fast-improving senior, are the contenders.

Beck's experience had him running No. 1 with Tuminaro right behind when a knee injury shelved the monogram winner last week. Now, Tuminaro is in charge, and he's intent on holding on to that first string slot.

"We don't know yet the extent of Beck's injury," head coach Joe Gliwa said this week, "but it looks like he'll be out for about two weeks which probably would keep him out of the opener with Glenbrook South."

GLIWA, WHO is in his fourth year in the head coaching position at the Arlington Heights



TIM BECK

school, had been pleased with the work of both Beck and Tuminaro at the fullback post in the workouts.

"We've seen Beck before under game conditions," the head man pointed out, "but can only wait to see how Phil reacts in an actual contest. He's been coming along well though and we've been pleased with his performance in scrimmages.'

If St. Viator were to open its season today, Gliwa would probably go with a backfield of Tuminaro at full, Larry Snyder and Kevin Coulter at the halfback slots, and Bob Stevens at quarterback.

STEVENS, a lefty, who looked good in the signal-calling slot as a junior, stands 6-1 and weighs in at 180 pounds, and he dwarfs his halfbacks.

Snyder is a pint-sized 155-pounder, who makes up for his lack of size with good moves and quickness. Coulter, a 5-9, 145-pound junior, can also scamper, and he's impressed in his first shot at a starting varsity position.

Tuminaro stands 5-10 and carries 180 pounds on his thrusts through the line.

JOHN COOK, a 165-pound transfer, and senior Dan Howard (145) are other halfback candidates in the Lion backfield. Denny Palubicki, a junior, backs up Stevens at quarterback and has shown he can step in and move the club.

"We've been scrimmaging regularly," Gliwa said Monday afternoon, "and are finally getting things put together. The kids are in great shape and they had to go through some rough workouts in the heat last week."

Gliwa has made some position switches as he attempts to put together his strongest alignments for the season opener Saturday evening, Sept. 17, at the Arlington High field.

LETTERMAN Paul Rocca (200), who had been tried at an end berth, is back at his familiar guard slot. "We felt Paul could be of more value to the team at guard where he played last year," Gliwa explained, "although he can move outside again if we need him there."

With Rocca back in the center of the line Frank Bianca (170) and Casey Greasey (170) are running at the top end positions.

Lettermen Rich Loner (220) and Denny Forston (220) are still the top tackle candidates with Rocca and letterman Mike Miller (190) at the guards. Jim Dahl (180), a regular as a junior, is the man to beat out at center.

"The line looks good," Gliwa summed up. "We've got some experience there that should help as we get under way in our schedule."

As Workouts Continue

Size Isn't Lacking On Wildcat Varsity

by KEITH REINHARD

If they stay on the ground, Wheeling's eight opponents this fall might feel akin to the reknowned stereotype who batters his head against a brick wall.

At least that's the way Bill Daletski sees it.

"Pleasantly suprised" during the past week by several new heavies to cast among his capacious pigskin production, coach Daletski need not fear being outweighed in his Wildcat's upcoming encounters. He can even go so far as to relegate a 223-pound two-year letterman to a secondary berth on the team.

BUT BEING outweighed and being outplayed are two different matters. It is with this in mind that the Wheeling eleven concentrates on one key weakness in anticipation of their Sept. 16 opener at Maine West.

"We've had some doubts about our defensive secondary" Daletski explains in speaking of the Wildcats' Achilles heel. "We were fairly strong in this department last year but there's still room for improvement. Our pass resistance is still the weakest portion of our over-all defensive unit."

BILL SURMIN
Valuable Vet

To thwart opposition air attacks the coach has come up with a quartet of defenders he plans to use quite frequently, including two slated for offensive duty as well.

BILL SURMIN, a lanky veteran, and six-footer Steve Sanelli are two of the likely candidates. And since the other two, Rich Haddock and Tom Bastable are already quite prominent in Daletski's offensive lineup, Surmin and Sanelli might be important cogs in slowing down Wheeling's foes from the air.

Other defensive measures include the insertion of brawny George Legh-Page into an already heavy front line comprised of tackle Gary Krueger and guards Mike Nenry and Paul Berwanger. Jon Hittman and Tom Traversone, another pair of two-way players are Daletski's nominees for first string linebacker slots.

At starting defensive end positions could be Tom Robinson and Ford Droegemueller. The latter, a newcomer to Wheeling, is one of those "pleasant surprises" and at 175 pounds the lightest man on the potential starting frontal defensive team.

WITH THE Wildcat Friday night opener little more than a week away, Daletski has pretty much firmed up the offensive crew he will start with. The backfield should display Hittman at fullback and Robin Melzer at quarterback with halves Haddock and Bastable.

Up front will probably be ends Krueger and Ray Pace, tackles Legh - Page and Berwanger, guards Henry and Droegemueller, and center Traversone.

Dan Devito, a 172-pound fullback will be one of Daletski's most capable replacements. "He's one of the fastest on the team," the coach explains, "and he's comparable to our first four in the backfield."

Devito will probably be utilized for kickoff and punt returns too, according to Daletski.

ANOTHER of the mentor's surprises came in the form of a 255-pound tackle with a sore leg. Dan Gribbon, a 6-3 bruiser on the mend, has progressed excellently and should be seen frequently in a defensive role.

Also playing heavily in Daletski's plans is center Ryan Sarti, a two-time letter earner, who at 223 pounds cannot be easily overlooked.

Also Al Reiger (160), Tom Cohrs (145), Larry McCranie (155), Melzer (185), Tony Martin (160), Sanelli (170), Phil Peet (158), Haddock (162), John Archer (163), Bill Walsh (145), Hittman (187), Devito (172), Tom Tisbo (140), Rick Bruce (175), Surmin (165), Bastable (172) and Bruce Hosmin (150).

Top Tennis Honors To Mesch, Jakubiec

The Arlington Heights Tennis Club held its annual post-season tournament last Sunday and Monday, with Dan Mesch and Jim Jakubiec earning top honors.

Mesch, a 27-year-old University of Illinois graduate, copped the Singles crown and also was on the Doubles team which grabbed the top prize, along with Jakubiec.

Lothar Peistrup and Mesch were the semi-finals winners in the Singles division. Each squeezed out three-set victories, Peistrup over Jim Esser and Mesch over Jakubiec.

Mesch then won the title with a 6-3, 6-2 win in the Finals over Peistrup.

In the Doubles semi-finals action, the duos of Larry Brown-Chuck Schunk and Mesch-Jakubiec took identical 6-4, 6-4 wins. The Brown-Schunk tandem beat Don and Dave Johnson and Mesch and Jakubiec eliminated Peistrup and Bob Fink.

In the Finals, Mesch and Jakubiec took a real cliff-hanger in two sets, 10-8, 8-6. In this match, the champs were down 5-4 and 40-love in the first set and down 5-3 in the second set before rallying from the very brink of defeat.

Brown and Schunk must be starting to feel like the well-known rent-a-car service—always second-best. It was the third year in a row that they have reached the finals in the Doubles tourney only to be knocked off.

Grid Feature

An intrasquad double header kicks off the Wheeling football season this Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m.

A preliminary game opens the twin bill with the junior varsity pitted against each other for two ten-minute halves. Following at 1:30, the varsity will be featured in four eight-minute quarters.

Both games will be officiated.

Sixth Annual Contest Slated

The National Football League and the Ford dealers of America have announced details of the sixth annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition for the nation's 8-through-13 - year - old football stars of the future.

"PP&K" pits the youths' punting, passing and place-kicking skills against those of other participants of the same age. Since its inception in 1961, the program has attracted more than 2,400,000 entries, including a record 715,000 last year.

Registration for this year's competition will be held at Ford dealerships, or at locations designated by them, Sept. 1 through Oct. 7. In Chicago, interested youngsters can register at the neighborhood parks.

The 12 finalists — one each in the 8-13 age groups from both the Eastern and Western Division NFL team areas — will go to Miami, Fla., for the final PP&K competition at halftime of the NFL Playoff Bowl Game in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 8, 1967. The all-expense "Tour of Champions" for the youths and their parents will begin with a visit to Washington, D. C., on Jan. 6. The Washington visit will be highlighted by a special tour of the White House.

Following the halftime showdown in Miami, the six national age-group winners will be crowned by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

There will be five levels of competition, beginning with local programs during the Oct. 8-16 period. Local winners will be determined in local dealer-sponsored competitions. The top six scorers in each Ford sales zone will be invited to represent their zones in a Ford district competition.

After competitions in the 37 Ford districts, the top six youths in each age group (a total of 228 boys) will qualify for Area competitions in each NFL-area city.

The area competition schedule for the 15 NFL teams is:

Nov. 13 — Chicago Bears, Atlanta Falcons, Minnesota Vikings and Pittsburgh Steelers.

Nov. 20 — Cleveland Browns, Detroit Lions, San Francisco 49ers and New York Giants.

Nov. 27 — Washington Redskins, St. Louis Cardinals, and Baltimore Colts.

Dec. 4 — Dallas Cowboys, Los Angeles Rams, Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers.

In the Division competition, the 42 Western NFL-area champions will compete in Baltimore, Md., on Saturday, Dec. 10, to determine the six Western Division champions. Similarly, the 48 Eastern NFL-area champions will compete in Dallas on Sunday, Dec. 11, to decide the six winners who will be the Eastern Division champions.

The six National champions will be determined in competition between champions of the Eastern and Western divisions at halftime of the Playoff Bowl Game in the Orange Bowl at Miami Jan. 8, 1967.

The awards for the winners will be:

Local competition — medal of achievement award.

District area and division — medal of achievement trophies.

National — special champion and runner up trophies.

Kunkel Crew Close To YMCA Golf Crown

Next Wednesday night will decide the Second Half Winner of the N. W. Suburban YMCA Twilight Golf League and at present the "Men From Kunkel" (Kunkel Realtors) must be considered the favorites. Trere is the possibility that the Allen's team could make a strong finish and upset Kunkels but the chances look slim. The honors for Low Net and Low Gross will be going down to the wire next week as at the present time there are two way ties for both. Should the situation remain the same after next week's play there will be a play off the following week.

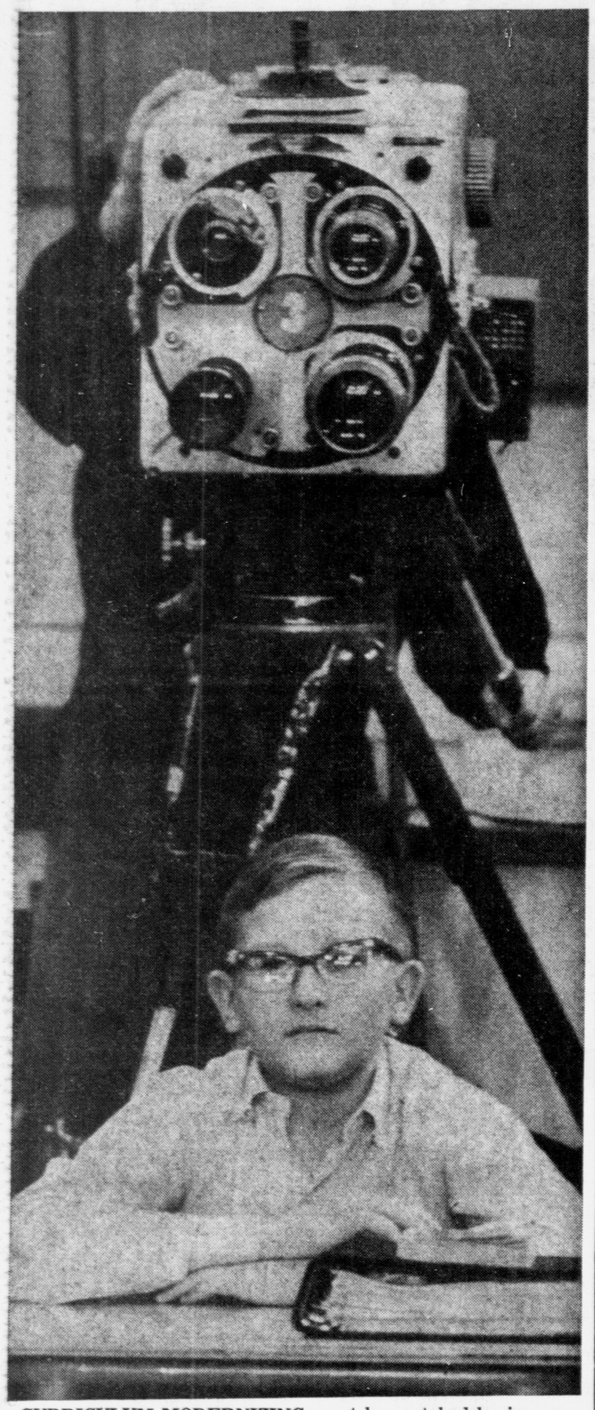
State Educational Task Force Reports



CURRICULUM MODERNIZING must be matched by innovations in school organization if Illinois' schools are to serve their children properly. That is the conviction of educators, lay citizens and legislators serving on an Illinois Task Force for Education that is considering radical changes—and hopefully, improvements—in school financing and organization.

See Fight on Board Members

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

There should be little argument—in theory—over Illinois task force proposals to unite all state education functions under a lay-directed state board of education.

Both political parties and most school-oriented professional and citizens groups favor such a step.

The task force hase set itself up for one potential disagreement by specifying the state board of education should be appointed.

They may still change that at later meetings of the committee, established 18 months ago with a budget of $210,000 and a skilled executive director who has been advisor to other states' reorganizational proposals in the past.

The executive director of William P. McLure, director of the Bureau of Educational Research at the University of Illinois.

THE 57-PERSON blue-ribbon committee included Ronald F. Campbell, dean of Northwestern's school of education; State Rep. Charles W. Clabaugh, longtime legislative education expert; Robert M. Cole, executive director of the Illinois Association of School Boards; John M. Fewkes, past president of the Chicago Teachers Union; Wayne Stoneking, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association, State Rep. and Chester R. Witkorski of Chicago, chairman of the school problems commission.

"These proposal have Bill McLure written all over them," said Wheeling District 21 principal Kenneth Gill of the tentative task force recommendations. Most suburban administrators who have studied with McLure agree; they say he's been preaching these changes for years.

The tentative proposals were adopted by the task force on April 23.

THEY COVER elementary, secondary, vocational and adult continuing education in public and private school systems and other agencies.

Persons familiar with the task force proposalsemphasize that the recommendations are intended to have long — not short —range impact. They remind reporters that it took almost 10 years for Illinois' last school restructuring to be carried out.

Reorganization of the state department of public instruction may be one of the easier steps.

A bill to establish an appointed state board of education to appoint a state superintendent of public instruction passed the House of Representative in 1965. It failed in the GOP-controlled Senate because of opposition to a Governor-appointed board from State Supt. Ray Page, as running for re-election as a Republican this November.

THE TASK FORCE tentative recommendation is for the governor to appoint a nine-man board with the state Senate (usually controlled by a different party than the governor's) giving its confirmation. The board members, chosen so that no more than five are from one party, would serve six-year staggered terms and would be chosen from persons not involved in school administration or teaching.

The task force tentative recommendations specify that the state board of education appoint the superintendent of public instructions.

The state board of education would have responsibility for all public education from kindergarten to eighth grade, and for all vocational technical education, regardless of level of instruction. All state vocational education functions would be transferred to the office of public instruction.

Other duties of the state board of education would be to set policy for administration of the public school system, to appoint advisory committees, to conduct statewide studies on education, and to cooperate with boards of higher education. (A15

Agree to de Shane Proposal

ROY DE SHANE

The Illinois Task Force on Education adopted a good share of DuPage County School Supt. Roy de Shane's recommendations when it proposed that his office be wiped out.

Veteran County Superintendent DeShane has for years been recommending that the county superintendent of schools' office be abolished.

HE HEADED up an "emerging role" committee that in 1964 recommended that the county superintendent's role be taken over by an intermediate—or regional—district, administered by an intermediate superintendent under the supervision of an intermediate district board.

The task force tentative proposals adopt this "emerging role" committee recommendations in part.

The task force tentative proposals, due for review on Sept. 16 and 17, call for no more than 40 regional (intermediate) districts to be set up throughout the state.

Persons on the Task Force staff expect Cook County to end up with three regional units—and three regional superintendents—instead of the single county superintendent we have now.

On the other hand, several downstate counties would be joined to form one intermediate district. Those superintendents would lose their jobs.

DeShane doesn't see this as a problem. He says good administrative people are too much in demand today.

The Task Force proposals do not see the intermediate units as independent. Rather, they would be dependent upon local school boards for policy direction, for staffing and for money.

Much as northwest suburban districts do now with the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization, the regional district would operate special education classes for local school boards.

The intermediate district would do the same thing with local school board approval—in vocational training and adult education. It could operate an audio-visual library, as DuPage County superintendent of schools does now for his elementary and high school districts.

THE REGIONAL board would include representatives of each local school board—or men chosen by the local boards.

While county superintendents now are administrative officers of the state—responsible to the office of public instruction, task force recommends that the regional district administrators be responsible only to their own district. Regional district support would come from local school districts, state aid and federal funds.

DeShane sees weaknesses in these recommendations.

He told a Paddock Publications reporter that he believes the new regional districts should be directly responsible to the state superintendent of schools, with the regional directors per-

A Quiet-Working, Influential Group

Almost unnoticed, an Illinois Task Force on Education is considering a radical revamping of our state's school setup.

The task force, made up of educators, legislators and lay citizens from throughout the state, has issued a series of tentative recommendations.

It has held hearings, many of them ill-attended, on these proposals.

On Sept. 16 and 17, the task force committee will meet in Chicago to consider revisions of these recommendations, based on their own re-evaluation of the proposals and citizen comment on them at the hearings.

So that readers can be better informed on these task force recommendations — which have great potential impact on both their children and their pocketbooks — this newspaper plans this week and next to go into the tentative recommendations in some detail.

Articles this week will cover proposals for reorganization of the state and county administrative structure of education. Other aspects of the task force recommendations will be covered next week. (A15

Tornado Can 'Sneak up'

by ED MURNANE
Staff Writer

It wouldn't be hard for a tornado to sneak up on the northwest suburbs, strike, and be gone before the United States Weather Bureau ever found out about it.

That was almost what happened when a tornado raced through the area last June. The only difference was that the weather bureau did find out about it before it left—because someone called up and told them.

The problem in locating tornadoes is that they show up on the weather bureau radar scope as a storm, no different than most other storms.

On some occasions, according to Joe R. Fulks, head meteorologist for the Chicago branch of the U. S. Weather Bureau, the storm will have aspects that might indicate a tornado.

WHEN THAT happens, a tornado watch or alert is issued for a wide area where the storm might strike.

But in most cases, the weather bureau must receive a report from someone who has seen a tornado to issue a tornado warning.

A warning is for a smaller area in the path of the storm.

Fulks pointed out that storms don't just sneak up unknown to the weather bureau.

The radar scope of the bureau's Chicago office is watched 24 hours a day, and weather conditions that are outside the 200 mile radius of the scope are very plainly marked on weather maps that are constantly changing.

But a storm appears on the scope as a small white light, regardless of its size or intensity.

DEPENDING on the conditions in the Chicago area, there could be five, 10 or more storm areas in range of the radar.

When the bureau is notified that a tornado has been sighted, it can pick out that particular spot on the scope and follow it from there. But until there is notification, the weather bureau is aware only of a storm.

Fulks said the tornado in the northwest suburbs was similar to the one that ravaged Topeka, Kan., a day earlier. A storm was moving in on the area and it developed as a tornado in the early morning hours.

"It's unusual when it happens in the morning," he said.

THE WEATHER bureau works closely with police agencies in the area. The police are generally the first to report sighting a tornado.

The Chicago branch of the weather bureau operates from several offices.

A downtown office is responsible for issuing all official reports to the press and radio and television. Offices at O'Hare and Midway Airports issue aviation forecasts to pilots, as well as taking official temperature and precipitation readings.

Then there are also observation points at Glenview Airport and Meigs Field. The bureau receives periodic reports of conditions and visibility from these two locations.

THE OFFICIAL temperature and precipitation recording office is at Midway Airport.

Because of the size of Chicago, and the frequency of highly localized rain, it is possible for a measurable fall to occur on the north side or in the suburbs while the sun is still shining brightly at Midway.

When that happens, there is officially no rain in the city.

During the winter months, the conditions are dramatized more. Fulks said the Lake Michigan shore line frequently gets heavy snow falls while Midway reports a very small amount.

All the actual forecasting for the Chicago area, as well as marine forecasts for the Great Lakes, is done at Fulks' office on the campus of the University of Chicago.

THE BUILDING itself is very deceiving. Formerly the home of the university vice-president, it became the weather bureau's headquarters in 1952.

Inside the three-story brick building is several hundred thousand dollars worth of equipment.

Besides the radar scope, which originates in a 220 foot dome about two blocks away, are several map transmitters and receivers and a row of teletype machines which allow the Chicago office to keep in constant contact with points throughout the world.

One of the latest additions to the equipment is a receiver which prints pictures taken by Nimbus, the weather satellite.

When pieced together, the pictures show weather conditions from a little south of Cuba to a little north of the Arctic Circle.

SOME OF the weather charts are prepared by computers in the office of the National Meteorological Center in Maryland.

The computers forecast what the weather maps will look like, and from there, the weather bureau forecasts what the weather will be like.

Since the computers were put into use, the weather bureau's forecast accuracy has risen from about 82 per cent to slightly less than 90 per cent.

That means that nine times out of ten, the weather forecast will be accurate.

Early this summer, the weather bureau began a new program of predicting the possibility of precipitation.

SO FAR, according to Fulks, it has been successful. The program is going to be a permanent part of the weather forecast and will continue through the winter.

The bureau also began a new harbor warning system for small craft in Lake Michigan. Fulks said it is mainly to let boaters know when there is the threat of squalls on days when the weather looks normal.

The hardest part of weather forecasting is telling what is going on right above the city.

Because of the high buildings in Chicago, there is no way for the radar to locate something close to the city unless it has been followed.

"I've been caught in the rain because of it," Fulks admitted.

On a sunny day, the weather is forecast.

The land area of the United States is two billion, 271 million acres — more than 11 acres for every man, woman and child in America. This land is worth anywhere from $1 per acre to $9 million per acre! Take your pick!

By the end of 1965 there were more than 60 million dwelling units, houses or apartments, on this vast expanse of land, and by the end of this summer we will have added 1.64 million more.

By 1975 there will be an extimated 19 million new housing units built at a cost of $100 billion a year.

This real estate explosion is the inevitable result of our population explosion, of course.

The Bureau of the Census says that we now number more than 196,500,000. This is an increase of 10,800,000 people since 1960. Assuming the current rate of population growth continues, we'll number 208,249,000 by 1970. That's 10,000 babies every day of the year.

You may well ask what all these facts and figures mean to you.

They mean a lot, for millions of you have plans for the next decade that include buying, selling or building a house, a summer place, or a farm, investing in land or apartments, or even moving to a retirement place of your own.

Knowledge of real estate and real property ownership can prove to be your most valuable asset. Young or old, real estate touches the lives of everyone.

After all, we're all in real estate — because we all live somewhere!

The Law Serves You

A Public Service of the ILLINOIS STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

A surprising amount of farmland in Illinois is rented on the basis of oral agreements — but such agreements have many shortcomings.

Oral agreements frequently fail to cover many of the situations that can arise during the period of the contract. And terms of the agreement often are recalled differently by the parties involved.

This does not mean that an oral agreement between landlord and tenant is not enforceable in court. It may be, if an impartial third party testifies as to the provisions of the contract. Or, if a pattern of behavior of both parties under the contract was established, this may make the agreement enforceable. However, a verbal lease for a term over one year is not enforceable in Illinois courts.

Some of the most common areas of disagreement arising from oral contracts concern payment for taxes, fertilizer, farm machinery repairs, and other operating expenses.

On the other hand, if an agreement is put in writing, both parties are obliged to consider important details they might otherwise overlook or treat only in vague terms.

Secondly, a written agreement does more than simply allocate duties between the landlord and tenant — it serves as a permanent record of the agreement. If a problem arises, it usually can be settled without bad feelings by reference to the lease.

The possibility of death of either party also makes a written agreement more desirable than an oral one. (RE

THE WORLD ... of Real Estate

Q — I AM just twenty-one and plan to get married this fall. My fiance and I have talked a lot about buying a home. Please tell me the basic things I should know about home ownership, and the reasons why we should try to buy a house soon after we are married.

—Curious Alice

A — Books could be written on the advantages of home ownership, and buying a home early is important for young couples. Many have waited years before even trying to buy a house and discovered they had made a serious mistake by waiting.

A small pamphlet issued by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers boils down these advantages to 10 basic ones, and my advice is take them to heart. Here they are:

Security. A feeling of safety comes with ownership, and the knowledge that your home is a safeguard against inflation. If prices go up, so does the value of your property!

Investment. Payments on your mortgage mean you are buying something, not just paying rent. You keep owning more and more.

TAX ADVANTAGE. Your real estate taxes and the interest on your mortgage or land contract are deductible when you figure out your income tax.

Financial independence. More people have started on the road to financial independence through home ownership than any other way.

Standing and credit. Home ownership gives you substantial credit rating. You are a solid part of the community and feel that you "belong."

Environment. Your children have a proper neighborhood in which to grow up, for you live among responsible homeowners with backgrounds much like your own. Roots are established.

CHARACTER development. The responsibility of ownership develops your business acumen, appreciation of financial independence, and self reliance.

Peace of mind. You know that provision has been made for your family, and they share in your pride of ownership.

Satisfaction. A home offers many things that make life worthwhile — vegetables from your own garden — the joy of large or small do-it-yourself projects — the backyard barbecue — the picture of your home on your Christmas card. You name it! Owning your own home is natually heart-warming.

The old saying, "they don't build them like they used to" is very true, according to an official of the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland.

"The truth is we build them much better," says Jim Nathenson, the association's Registered Builder Chairman. "Registered Builder" is the title given to association members who voluntarily subscribe to an enforced code of practice covering such items as contracts, prices, delivery dates and warrantees.

Today's home contains about 3,200 components from foundation to rooftop. Nathenson says that each of these components has been vastly improved over the years through research done by building materials manufacturers.

Also playing a part in the continuing refinement and improvement of materials is the Research Institute of the mammoth National Association of Home Builders (NAHB). Nathenson is quick to point out that Chicagoland Registered Builders were the first in the continenetal U.S. to be so honored.

"BESIDES BEING built of better and more easily maintained materials, 1966 homes built by Registered Builders make better use of space than homes built just five years ago," relates Nathenson.

"This means," he continues, "both storage space and an over-all sense of space for the home itself."

Specifically, what have the Registered Builders done in this area?

Nathenson says that new homes built by Registered Builders have floor plans that make it possible for people to move about a living room or other area without having to bump into furniture or trip over things. Hallways are no longer space wasters but efficient traffic lanes using a minimum of space.

Many new homes borrow space from outdoors through the use of patios, gardens and terraces which increase the areas of home livability and enjoyment. Glass panels or walls increase the space of the interior rooms.

USE OF THE same general color tone throughout the house enables one room to borrow space from another.

There is also an increasing trend to make one room do the job of two. A guest room for instance, can double as a study. Built-ins also are space savers, as are folding or sliding doors on closets. (RE

Governors Conference 'Copied' by Bruning

When 52 governors get to together, as they did recently at the National Governors' Conference held in Los Angeles, 125 million words result. On paper, that's 2,000 volumes of speeches, documents, resolutions and amendments.

The task of getting those 125 million words down on paper and produced in quantity is a massive reproduction job.

This year the Charles Bruning Company and Multigraph, both divisions of the Addressograph Multigraph Corporation, contributed equipment and supplies to serve the needs of the conference.

Three Bruning electrostatic copiers were put into service for the conference. A Bruning 2000 and the company's new 2100 were kept busy day and night throughout the three-day event making extra copies of speeches, letters, resolutions and other official documents.

When multiple copies of any paperwork were required the electrostatic copiers were used to make masters for the automatic Multilith 2550 offset duplicator and 671 sorter. This combination of equipment automatically produces and collates the number of copies required.

A key feature of the communications and reproduction center which was located on the mezzanine floor of the sparkling Century Plaza Hotel, site of the conference, was the experimental Bruning "Desk of Tomorrow" with its built-in Bruning 3000 electrostatic copier.

The desk attracted many conference participants to the floor for a first-hand look. Among them were Gov. Otto Kerner, Illinois. (BB

How Much Do You Know About Alcohol and Accidents

3. Two or three drinks make no appreciable difference in visual acuity.	( )	( )

"KENTON" SERIES 120 French-inspired home is now being built in Northbrook by the Kennedy Development Company. The home is part of Kennedy's sixth development in the area.

Kennedy Introduces Sixth Development

Charlemagne in Northbrook, the French-inspired new community that is the sixth building program of the Kennedy Development Company, had its grand opening Aug. 25-28.

Open to the public where Brittany curves into Charlemagne Drive — all Charlemagne's streets have French names — are five spacious model homes designed by Glenn C. Hjort, AIA, and decorated by John A. Colby & Sons. Each is a traditional period house planned for modern living.

Charlemagne offers a choice of 18 floor plans, with each plan available in as many as four different architectural styles. It is the largest number of customized home designs the Kennedy firm has offered in a single community.

Prices range from $33,700 to $57,400 plus lot.

THE 120-ACRE community of Charlemagne, which lies opposite Sportsman Country Club on Dundee Road, is laid out with curving drives and circle-end cul-de-sac. No throughway traffic cuts into it.

Robert J. Kennedy, president of the development firm, welcomed preview visitors and told them, "We planned Charlemagne to be everything that is the opposite of compact and cluttered."

"The winding streets, the lots of one-third to one-half acre in varying shapes, and the floor plans of the houses were designed to create an air of spaciousness," Kennedy said.

"Certainly, these are not small homes," he said, "in dimensions or numbers of rooms. They have three to five big bedrooms, and all of them have private dining rooms, large kitchens, and immense amounts of closet and storage space."

The furnished models on display at Charlemagne are built in traditional architectural styles. "All our homes are," Kennedy states, "because we believe a proved style that will not suddenly go out of fashion is always the wisest investment."

The five models on display are:

—Pavilion, a classic French style. It expresses its name in dual wings that create a "U" plan around an entrance courtyard. Pavilion is a four-bedroom, one-story house with an elegant dining room and a sunken living room.

—Lancaster II, a two-story Tudor half-timbered country house. It carries the 16th Century Tudor exterior styling into the family room with rough-sawn cedar timbers and random oak-plank flooring. Lancaster II has four bedrooms.

—STOCKBRIDGE is a one-story New England colonial in warm brick with an integral white picket fence, three big bedrooms, and a massive, exposed central chimney-pile in early American style.

—Kenton, a dignified brick town house in the period style of the English Regency (1811-1830). The garage is out of sight at the rear of this two-story, four-bedroom house with wrought-iron porch pillars and a Regency flat bay window in the dining room.

—Roanoke, a big five-bedroom house in Tidewater Colonial style of the Virginia shore country. Its design is marked by the steep gable of the roof and by peaked dormer windows. The family room has a wide Eden-stone fireplace and is paneled in rough-sawed cedar.

"Each of these model homes," Kennedy said, "can be built to the same floor plans in three other completely different architectural styles. The plan for Colonial Virginia Roanoke, for example, can be built in a New Orleans French manner. Or the English Regency plan of Kenton can be built as a Cape Cod saltbox."

Charlemagne is entered from Dundee Road, Northbrook, 4½ miles west of Edens Expressway. (RE

Planned Unit Developments-- Answer to Suburban Sprawl?

Conservative estimates predict the population of the United States will mushroom by an additional 50,000,000 persons in the next 50 years.

Whether this is accurate is anyone's guess. But, it's not too far out of line to forecast a real population explosion for this nation with the next half century.

Thus, more people will need more places in which to live. And building space is at a premium. Many metropolitan areas already are bulging at the seams, and the suburbs are pushing their boundaries outward to meet those of the big cities.

"The suburban sprawl will need to be eliminated!"

That's the opinion of Fred Peterman, director of sales for United Development Company's planned unit development—Regent Park—situated in the northwestern Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights.

"IN ORDER to meet the problem we've got to come up with some quick solutions to this land congestion - population explosion dilemma," Peterman said. "And, the planned unit development will provide the best solution for meeting these problems."

While the "PUD" concept is relatively new, developers generally agree with Peterman that it appears as though the community of the future will entail most of the planned unit development's precepts.

Centered around environmental planning, "PUD" is aimed at the over-all improvement in a community's appearance. It offers to residents a variety of housing—single family homes, town-and-country houses and condominiums — and provides the town-and-country and condominium owners with an opportunity to own and enjoy facilities in common.

ANOTHER FUTURE housing form is the space frame house.

"Space frame neighborhoods," Peterman says, "are really houses on stilts with parking and circulation under the living units. Such a development would provide great economy in the preservation of land and grading costs, as well as afford increased density."

"The row, atrium and patio housing elevated to provide parking facilities and service areas under the living unit can provide the same economies in and an improvement cost," Peterman adds.

The community of tomorrow must, in Peterman's opinion, come from the "PUD" idea, a concept which is gaining more and more favor today.

"There are many communities, such as Arlington Heights, which are utilizing this development proposition today. Other sites where "PUD" already has proven its worth are places like Fremont, Calif., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Denver, Colo.

Today, subdivision regulations and zoning practices are overstretching components of land use. This has resulted in excessive pressure on area requirements concerning individual lots and road.

PETERMAN ASSERTS that "future provisions should discourage parking on collector streets and reduce or reorient parking on neighborhood streets. Street rights-of-way and pavement widths," he argues, "should be determined on the basis of usage and traffic flow."

He contends that "improving appearance and livability of our communities can only be achieved if builders, developers, planners, municipal officials and citizens alike are willing to accept new developmental concepts.

"In addition," he says, "public officials must be ready to modify existing zoning and subdivision regulations in order to permit application and use of improved land use techniques."

To achieve these aims, Peterman says we need:

"1. Provisions in ordinances encouraging the use of new design and developmental concepts and making more efficient use of the land, thus reducing land waste while achieving usable open space and increased liability.

"2. Ordinances encouraging density of dwelling units per acres rather than minimum lot size as a basic criterion for residential development.

"3. Performance standards covering use, bulk, and density relationships as a substitute for specified dimensional regulations." (RE

Sharon Wessling Is Bride In Orlando, Fla., Rites

It was while Ahmad Yousef Saidi of Jericho, Jordan, was a patient in Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital in 1964 that he fell in love with one of his nurses, a senior student of Wesley's School of Nursing. Sharon Lucille Wessling was her name, but since their romance culminated in marriage on Aug. 20 she is now Mrs. Saidi and living in Huston, Texas, where both are still involved with hospital work.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harold Albert Witt, who with Mr. Witt formerly lived in Arlington Heights but is now a resident of Winter Park, Fla., and of Kenneth G. Wessling of Deerfield. She was given in marriage by Mr. Witt.

THE CEREMONY took place in an Orlando, Fla., church with several of the bride's family in the wedding party. The groom's parents, Haj. and Mrs. Yousef Saidi of Jordan, could not attend.

The bride wore a silk peau de soie floor-length gown accented with Alencon lace trim for the double ring rites. An elbow-length mantille veil edged with lace cascaded over the sheath silhouette gown which ended in a chapel train. The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias with ivy.

HER SISTER, Mrs. Leanne Kremer of Apopka, Fla., was matron of honor and the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Kenneth Witt of Melvin, Ill., was a bridesmaid along with Miss Cathleen O'Rorke of Orlando. Junior bridesmaid was Teena Marie Kremer, the bride's niece.

The adult attendants were gowned alike in floor-length silk faille in a peacock blue shade, and each girl carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies with ivy. The junior bridesmaid wore a pale blue dress styled similarly to the others' and also carried white shasta daisies with ivy.

THE BRIDE'S nephew, 6-year-old Roger Kremer, carried the wedding rings, and the bride's brother, Kenneth Wessling of Columbus, Ohio, served the groom as best man.

Seating the guests were Kenneth Witt of Melvin, Ronald Kremer and a junior usher, Ronald H. Kremer, both of Apopka.

A dinner and dancing followed the 4 o'clock ceremony at the Imperial House Restaurant in Orlando. For the day's festivities the bride's mother was gowned in pink crepe and lace and had a green cymbidium corsage.

THE NEWLYWEDS took a honeymoon trip through the New England states and are now living at 1645 W. Main, Houston.

A graduate of Arlington High School, the bride then attended Wittenberg University in Springfield, Ohio, and received her nursing science degree at Northwestern University and her RN at Wesley Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. She is working in the Moody Clinical Research Unit of Methodist Hospital in Houston.

Her husband studied at Teacher's College in Amman, Jordan, and is now a pre-medical student at the University of Houston. He is also an inhalation therapist at the Methodist Hospital there. (S

Doctor in the Kitchen
by Dr. W. W. Bauer

What part does diet play in the protection of your teeth against the most prevalent disease of a prosperous civilization — dental decay?

Are your teeth living structures or just dead "ivories"? Can a good diet help poor teeth? Can a bad diet harm good teeth? Who needs tooth protection most?

Teeth are living structures, even though portions of them are not. The dentine and the enamel are inert, but the pulp of the tooth contains blood vessels and nerves. The membrane which fastens the teeth to the bone and the bony ridges of the upper and lower jaw in which the teeth are imbedded are definitely living structures. As such, they depend on good nutrition for their integrity. Their most essential needs are calcium and phosphorus plus the vitamin D necessary for their effective absorption and utilization.

THERE ARE certain times in life when nutrition and, therefore, diet are most important in relation to the teeth.

One of these times is when the teeth are first developing. It is not generally realized that although teeth do not usually appear until about the sixth month of an infant's life, they were formed as embryonic structures before birth. This includes not only the baby teeth, but the adult teeth as well. The newborn child's mouth contains the beginnings of 52 teeth.

Since the unborn child depends on its mother for nourishment, her supply of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D—and, of course, all the other requirements of a balanced diet — is of special importance. Not only the child but the mother needs these nutrients for the protection of her own teeth.

IT IS TOO often overlooked that older persons, too, need a supply of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D for the preservation of the health of their teeth and supporting structures. As people grow older, dentists find that they tend to have trouble with periodontal disease. This means that there is loss of bone in the jawbones which support the teeth, and deterioration of the membrane which attaches the tooth to its socket. The consequence is loosening of the teeth, and loss of teeth if the process is not halted.

Calcium is best derived from milk and cheese made from the milk. And, of course, from ice cream and other foods made with milk. Milk is the best source of calcium, so much so that in the absence of adequate milk in the diet, it is difficult to supply the necessary calcium. Vitamin D is provided in practically all fluid milk. GARDENING TIPS

FROM THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS GARDEN CLUB

Your Garden . . . Day by Day

by MARY B. GOOD

September 8

Put away your fertilizers for the year—HOORAY! Late fertilization of woody plants may cause severe damage. New growth, stimulated by fertilizer, is most susceptible to winter injury.

September 9

Lawn food is an exception. You'll have to keep that out just a little longer. And if you're limited by time or money to only one application of lawn fertilizer a year, that application should take place in early September.

September 10

Note to non-gardeners: If you would do one important thing this season, pull up any ragweed. This will save the pollen sniffles of allergy sufferers in your area. Can't recognize one from another? Ask a gardening neighbor.

September 11

"Oh sweet September, thy first breezes bring
The dry leaf's rustle and the squirrel's laughter
The cool fresh air whence health and vigor spring
And promise of exceeding joy hereafter."
George Arnold

September 12

One way to obtain "exceeding joy hereafter" is to go easy on planting annuals and to increase the scope of perennials. (Note to beginners: Perennials are those plants which renew their growth each year, while annuals complete their life cycle within the space of a year.)

September 13

Take cuttings now of wax begonias, geraniums, petunias, vinca or any garden plants that are to be used indoors.

September 14

Bring in house plants which have been summering outdoors post haste. And if the surface of the soil in the pots is packed and hard, replace some of it with a rich mixture.

At Ft. Campbell

Cancer Center Is Attended by 150

More than 150 people from the north suburban Cook County area participated in the cancer detection program at the George and Anna Portes Cancer Prevention Center of Chicago, 17 W. Huron St., during the first half of 1966.

This figure was released by Dr. Caesar Portes, medical director of the Center, who said: "With the opening of our new building in mid-October with its greatly increased space and the latest in cancer-detectior. equipment, we expect to more than double the Center's present educational and detection facilities."

The George and Anna Portes Cancer Prevention Center, established in 1943, is the second oldest such center in the United States and the only one of its kind in Illinois.

A not-for-profit organization dedicated to cancer education and early diagnosis, it stresses the value of periodic physical examinations as the most effective weapon against the dread disease. (A15

Tollway Police to Aid in Tire Study

The Illinois Tollway's state police unit will join Northwestern University's Traffic Institute in a year-long project to determine the role played by tire failure in automobile accidents, Donald R. Bonniwell, chairman, announced today.

The tollway's participation is part of a two-year study financed by the Rubber Manufacturers Association, a trade group which represents the tire industry.

The state police detachment, whose complement is 90 men, has received instructions in how to handle and report any accident related to tire failure, Bonniwell said.

The instructions were given the detachment by J. Stannard Baker, director of the institute's research and development and the program's principal investigator.

The state police are equipped with tire tread depth gauges and tire pressure gauges. When investigating accidents involving a disabled tire, the officers will make a special supplementary report in addition to the regular accident report.

Pastor Mehlberg Thanked for 36 Years' Service to Area

The inspiring church service held on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 12, in the Trinity Lutheran Church of Roselle, in honor of the Rev. Walter H. Mehlberg and designated at "A special farewell service," was an occasion in which the commemorators and many other residents of the Roselle community will cherish and remember with gratefulness. The service was held in recognition of the ministry of the Rev. Mr. Mehlberg, covering a span of 45 years of which 36 were assigned to this congregation.

Recognition of ministerial and other services of the Rev. Mr. Mehlberg was voiced and expressed as an integral part of the service. A bound volume of messages as well as a carved replica of "The Last Supper" by Da Vinci, were presented to the retiring minister.

As an attendant at this service, the writer felt the general fervor, unanimity for the devoted and dedicated service of Pastor Mehlberg.

Best wishes, Pastor Mehlberg, for a happy retirement from pastoral service.

'Collegiates Not Pansies as Lorenson Implied,' She Says

Your article in the Aug. 25 Arlington Heights Herald—"Teens Take Hard Look at World"—was very biased and, in my opinion, all wrong.

You've played the greaser up to be a perfect little man, a hard worker, a loyal friend, a rough, tough, all-American boy. And you've made collegiates look like jellyfish — "chickens." May I say something in their (our) defense?

YOUR GREASER "holds an after school job" and has his own car "paid for by money he has earned." My boyfriend, strictly collegiate, has had an after school job and has earned enough to buy his own car—not an old crate with a noisy muffler like a greaser would buy for almost nothing, but a 1966 MG Midget.

My brother, strictly collegiate, has earned enough to buy his own motorcycle. My cousin, strictly collegiate, just bought his own car, which he drives to and from work. It will also be his transportation to school this year.

Long said, "Collegiates are afraid to get hurt." Long "wrestled on the high school team." My brother, strictly collegiate, wrestled last year at school. Yesterday he sprained his arm at football practice. There is only one greaser on the whole football team.

COLLEGIATES are not pansies, but this is what you've implied by making greasers into big men.

Have you ever heard of a greaser with plans to go to college? Sure, they "come from lower economic background," but if they're ambitious enough to get their own cars, why can't they save to go to school? It isn't impossible, I know it for a fact.

You'll have to admit that a collegiate is easier to look at than a greaser. Collegiates are so much neater looking, and that goes for both the girls and the boys. Don't you think a girl looks much nicer with long, straight, shiny hair than with a nest of rat, dye and hair spray on her head? A poor-boy and bermudas have a lot over skin-tight short, shorts and a wrinkled white blouse.

I'M REALLY glad I'm a collegiate. I suppose greasers as individuals are okay, but as a group they're rather revolting. Your article was unfair to us collegiates.

If you go along with the things you quoted, I hope you'll take a more objective look at the teenage world and give us a chance.

Surrey Ridge Residents Need Insight, Says Letter Writer

As a former nervous patient I am prompted to comment on the article in the Suburbanite pertaining to the cool reception residents of Surrey Ridge are giving the Northwest Mental Health Association. Since it is said that unless you walk in the shoes of your fellow man you cannot understand his inner experiences, I can understand the reaction of the woman who questioned the "character" of these patients.

Perhaps the Mental Health Association will pick this comment out as one important area that definitely needs working on: that of educating the public in mental and nervous "diseases." For this is in fact what it is, a disease such as the diabetes your husband or wife may suffer.

THE MENTAL Health Association would do their patients a great service by trying to erase the stigma attached to this disease by launching an active campaign to inform and educate the public.

To the people of Surrey Ridge I ask your reflection on this statistic: do you know that approximately three men or women in every square block in Surrey Ridge (and every other neighborhood) has had, has now, or will have some type of mental or nervous disease? Yes, even you are not immune. This falls within the realm of "painful insight," but we all have to face some unpleasant truths at some time.

What I am trying to say is that you should feel a deep sense of pride in having the clinic located so close to you. Those dedicated people involved with the Mental Health Association certainly need all the help and cooperation they can get. Who knows, some time in the future you may be the one thanking them for helping you regain your health.

Dunton-Central Traffic Horrible

The traffic situation at Dunton and Central has not been relieved properly. If officer Robinson stood waving heavy traffic down Central to relieve a bad traffic tieup, he'd be doing more worthwhile.

The hospital is reached by the east at that turn, and every weekday afternoon it's a deplorable situation.

Police Helped When Daughter Missed Train

We want to thank the two police officers who assisted us when my six-year-old was separated from us by closing train doors on Aug. 16. It was a very frightening experience for my daughter to be left on the train platform at the rush hour and just as frightening for us who were still on the train and unable to get off before the doors closed and the train moved on. My six year old was running down the platform, chasing the train and very frightened. The conductor, who was two cars back, informed us when he heard what happened, that there was nothing he could do and in general was very sarcastic.

Officer Creamer of the Mount Prospect police department and Detective Buckholz of the Arlington Heights police department assisted us in finding my daughter and returned us to our car in Arlington Heights. These men were very considerate of our feelings of anxiety and also, most important, were very efficient. My Mother, who was with us, and I thank you so very much for your help. We are most grateful.

Praise Citizens Who Made STABB Realty

The essence of Christian charity is voluntary self sacrifice to help others. To those who voluntarily spring to action to do things for themselves and their neighbors, comes the satisfaction of accomplishment and the fulfilling of life's purpose.

THE CITIZENS of this community who have banned together to form the Schaumburg Township Blood Bank deserve the thanks and cooperation of all Schaumburg Township residents, for theirs is in the spirit of true Christian charity.

It is unfortunate, of course, that from disaster springs this action, but the fact that personal misfortune has made this community a better place to live is a memorial to those whom God has chosen.

Let us all pitch in and help make this endeavor a successful example of voluntary community action which could be the springboard for other ventures of local self help.

Who Said It?

A girl will wait for the right man to come along as long as the one she's going with doesn't try to make a getaway.

Sometimes the difference between doing the right thing and doing a thing right means hitting your thumb with a hammer.

Modern child psychology is fine if a father will give a child a work-out in the backyard instead of the backshed.

WHAT'S UP?

What's up, across the land, is what to do about mass transit. Whether to suspend new systems in the air, tunnel new ones underground, or improve ones at ground level.

Problem is clogged city streets, rush hour traffic, wasted time . . . Short tempers, overheated engines, jammed parking. Polluted air.

As our spacemen head for the moon, most of the rest of us in many cities are having a harder and harder time just getting across town.

Yes, it's easy to focus attention on the problems of our day, of which growing city congestion is only one. But the Paddock Publications does not stop there. Unclogging city streets, like the easing of most other problems shared by free men, begins with unclogging our minds through discussion—the primary business of the editorial pages of this newspaper.

No matter what's up for discussion by the citizenry of our city, state, and nation—mass transit, urban renewal, schools, jobs, you name it—the editorial pages of the Paddock Publications provide a public forum for the responsible exchange of fact and opinion among reasonable men and women seeking solutions. Here both experts and laymen meet in continuous open debate over the issues of our time.

Our editorial pages are your forum, your sounding board. Join and keep up with the debates going on there by keeping up with every new edition of the Paddock Publications.

How Suburbia Lives—10

This Family Fancies an Old-Time Home

by PAT ADAM
Suburban Living Editor

Many families seeking a new home are satisfied only if the house is spanking new — or comparatively so. But when the Robert Bukowskis of Arlington Heights went house shopping a couple of years ago, they picked a real old-timer.

The house they chose is nearly 75 years old. A late 19th Century frame structure, it was built in 1892 by Theodore Kellogg, father of William T. Kellogg, who now lives in Palatine. The house remained a Kellogg family possession until the Bukowskis purchased it in May, 1965.

Their new home is at 1005 N. Arlington Heights Road, only a few blocks from where the Bukowskis used to live on North Dunton.

"OUR ROOTS are deep in Arlington Heights, and we really didn't want to leave this community," explained Bob Bukowski, a loop banker who's become actively involved in community life since moving to Arlington Heights from Norwood Park 15 years ago.

Currently he is a member of the District 25 School Board, a trustee of Northwest Community Hospital and a director of The Bank of Arlington Heights. His wife, Betty Lou, has been just as active, mainly in the PTA. She served as first president of Miner Junior High PTA and at present is treasurer of the Arlington Heights PTA Council. She's also vice president of the Women's Association at First Presbyterian Church.

To make the house fit their needs, the Bukowskis have remodeled it extensively and added a 30-foot family room at the rear. But it still retains what Bob describes as "the flavor of a 19th Century Midwest farm home."

ONE OF THE first tasks was to have the house rewired and new plumbing installed.

"By that time there were so many holes in the plaster that we tore out all the old plaster, too, and had it replaced," said Betty Lou.

This delayed moving in as expected at Labor Day time last year, and the Bukowskis didn't occupy their new home until a few days before Christmas. In spite of it, they held open house just two days later.

In retaining the 19th Century quality of the house, the Bukowskis have enhanced it as well. An example is the front stairway to the second floor. Bob is proud of the 100 hours he spent removing varnish from the stairway bannister, railing and newel post and they refinishing the wood in a mellow fruitwood that adds warmth to the modulated green decor of the living room.

WOODWORK in this room is in the same fruitwood tone, and the owners got an unexpected bonus when they removed the old radiator from in front of one window. Beneath the sill they found a carved wood panel that had been hidden by the heating fixture. They refinished it in fruitwood, too.

Another original feature of the house which the Bukowskis retained is a tiffany glass chandelier that hung in the dining room. This they moved to the family room where it now shades the light over the family meal table.

Frequently the move to a new home requires new furnishings. Pieces from a former residence may not fit into the new dwelling. The Bukowskis were fortunate. They've used everything from their previous home, even curtains, although they have had to add some things.

THEIR EARLY American furniture blends well with the 19th Century setting, and their few antiques, inherited mostly from family, look right at home. Among these pieces are a small chest and a kitchen chair, redone with a needlepoint seat, that belonged to Betty Lou's grandmother. They now stand side by side against the front stairway wall.

In the living room are a low marble-topped table, the gift of a friend who felt it "belonged" there, and a gaily flowered fabric bell pull hanging beside the front door, a gift from Betty Lou's mother.

"The bell pull won't bring a servant, but it's lovely to look at," Betty Lou remarked with a laugh.

ONE NEW piece of furniture, the first antique they've ever bought, said Betty Lou, is a 19th Century style sideboard they placed in the dining room. The hutch that matched their dining set was moved to one of the upstairs bathrooms where it is used to store linens.

Other period pieces dotted around the house include a milk can that holds umbrellas and an unusual butter churn—it churns with a hand-propelled wheel-like device rather than the more common up-and-down stomper — that perches at the top of the front stairway.

Downstairs a former bedroom has been converted into a hangout for the man of the house — eventually to double as guest room, noted his wife. Its patriotic theme reflects Bob's admitted admiration for past Americans who "were willing to assume risks when it wasn't always in their own best interests to do so."

WALLS ARE covered with a blue and white canvas-type wallpaper that resembles ticking, and windows are curtained in fabric to match. Book shelves line one wall, the top one devoted to the giraffe collection Bob inherited from his late father.

Bob recalled that the collection got its start in World War II when his father originated the Exalted Order of the Giraffe to recognize men working for him who "were not afraid to stick their necks out and had their feet on the ground." This prompted friends and others to send the elder Bukowski small giraffes of china, wood or other materials. Bob still adds to the collection on occasion.

Highly prized by Bob, too, are framed prints of famous sea battles hanging on another wall of the study. These were a gift from his older brother, who was killed in World War II.

Framed copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and the U. S. Constitution that decorate a third wall are indicative of Bob's continuing interest in government.

GAY RED, white and gray are the colors of the powder room downstairs. Antique fixtures, including a marble-topped wash basin, recall the house's early days. One modern note: a shower stall where stairs once led to the basement.

In Betty Lou's domain, the kitchen, 20th Century convenience teams with 19th Century decor for the kitchen contains built-in matching cupboards, dishwasher, combination freezer-refrigerator, counter top range, built-in oven, cultured marble pastry board and a gas-fired barbecue. This area is open on two sides and has an eating bar on the side facing the family room.

"That's a female plot to get the male to do the cooking," Bob remarked wryly as his wife showed off the grill.

THE PANTRY that was so essential to the 19th Century home is present in this modern counterpart but brought up-to-date. The manufacturer calls it "the supermarket." A built-in unit along one wall that faces the open-sided kitchen, the "pantry" has 70 feet of storage in a 30-foot space. Besides shelves in its double doors, the unit has a section of shelves that pivots and more shelves behind that. Alongside is another built-in unit with drawers. Betty Lou's desk is also in this area.

The family room is paneled in walnut, random rather than select, Betty Lou explained, "because we like the different color and shadings." In this room is another of their inherited pieces, a Boston rocker that belonged to her grandfather. The huge coffee table is fashioned from an old dining table with which Betty Lou's parents began housekeeping.

UPSTAIRS ARE four spacious bedrooms, two in the original part of the house and two over the family room addition, plus two roomy baths. The original bathroom, says Bob, is probably the only one in Arlington Heights that can contain 12 people comfortably at one time. They proved it the day of their open house, he reported, when a dozen persons inspected the room at the same time.

Before they remodeled, said Betty Lou, the master bedroom had four doors, no closets and only hooks on the walls to hang clothes. Now there are three closets plus one for shoes, made by closing in one of the four doors. Their bed fits into an attractive alcove formed by the closets on either side.

A small bedroom has been converted into a combination bathroom-laundry. This opens onto what was a hall, now enlarged into an area roomy enough for a television set, the sewing machine and the ironing board—a most convenient set-up, the Bukowski women have found. They call it "the parlor."

PETER, THE Bukowskis' high school freshman son, has the front bedroom, while his sisters occupy the rooms in the newer section of the house. Nancy, a senior at Arlington High this fall, is in one. Patty, the youngest and an eighth grader at Miner, shares the other with her college sophomore sister, Merrilee, now back at Iowa State University.

All the rooms except the living room are wallpapered, "because I like wallpaper," affirmed Betty Lou, and except for those that are tiled, all the floors are carpeted.

"It was cheaper than redoing the old floors," she explained.

Although most of the work was done by professionals, Betty and Bob planned the remodeling. His wife reads blueprints, Bob noted proudly, and there were a few times she even had ot point out errors to the workmen, such as pipes that would have gone right through a window.

Exterior of the stately old home is painted a fresh lettuce green trimmed with white. A crushed rock drive circles past the front door with a spur providing access to the rear of the lot.

The Bukowskis hope to retain all the wooded area to the north, a stand of trees that served as windbreak when the site was a farm. All sorts of wild plant life can be found there, according to Bob, and he hopes to add to the 19th Century setting with plantings of poppies, hollyhocks and other typical farm flowers.

All the Bukowskis, even Magee, their dachshund, are delighted with their old-time house and wouldn't trade it for the newest one in town.

HOME, SWEET HOME for the Robert Bukowski family of Arlington Heights is this stately 75-year-old frame house at 1005 N. Arlington Heights Road, once a farm home. Since purchasing the house in May, 1965, the Bukowskis have remodeled and redecorated it to meet the needs of a 20th Century household with four teenagers while keeping its late 19th Century styling. (Staff photo)

A TIFFANY GLASS chandelier that formerly hung in the dining room shades the light fixture over the dining table in the Bukowski family room. Patty, an eighth grader at Miner Junior High, and Merrilee, a sophomore at Iowa State University, enjoy a late afternoon snack. The Bukowskis built a 30-foot addition to the back of the original house to provide space for the family room. (Staff photo)

IT TOOK BOB BUKOWSKI about 100 hours of hand labor to reveal the hidden beauty of this stairway newel post, bannister and railing. He removed the old varnish and then refinished the wood in a mellow fruitwood color. In remodeling and redecorating their 75-year-old home, the Bukowskis teamed period decor with the most up-to-date conveniences. (Staff photo)

Hello Hostess

by Mary Kay Robbins

A few weeks ago we asked you for your ideas on using paper bags in entertaining. And here's the resulting "bag of tricks" — instant ideas on how paper bags can help you as:

1. Loot Bags. Have each child autograph and decorate his own.
2. Grab Bags. Use for prizes and favors.
3. Bindle Bundles. Pack each young hobo's refreshments in a bag, then tie to a stick.
4. Hats. Make overseas caps, sailor hats, etc.
5. Sacks for Sack Races. Use the biggest, heaviest bags you can find.
6. Blindfolds. Use for pin-the-tail and children's games. (Take up any slack in back with clothespins.)
7. Animal Masks. Cut openings for eyes and mouth. Draw or paste on features and decorations.
8. Costumes. Possibilities are endless, but one mother reports this prize-winning "Ten of Hearts": Paste red construction paper numbers and pips on a large white paper bag. Wear toga-fashion over red tights and top.
9. Space Helmets. Cut out facepiece and cover with cellophane. Add straws and pipe cleaners for antennas and earphones.
10. Puppets. Decorate and use as hand puppets for impromptu dramatics. Or tie off sections for head, arms, etc., and attach strings for marionettes.
11. Candy Baskets. Decorate for Easter, May or special occasions. Add pipe cleaners for handles.
12. Instant Organizers. Put equipment, props and prizes for each game in a big paper bag. This is especially useful outdoors, as you can transport everything you need for each event right to the site.
13. Outdoor Lighting. "Cuff" the tops of sturdy bags. Add sand. Then anchor a candle in each for "luminarios" to light your walk or patio.
14. Gift Wrapping. Sack-pack those bulky or difficult objects. And the next time you need to mail a package, just cut the bottom out of a grocery bag and slit for a handy length of sturdy wrapping paper.

Incidentally, a friend quips that she always travels with a set of "matched luggage" — matching shopping bags from her local super market. Matching or not, ordinary paper bags are handy hostessing helpers — you'll be surprised how often they can come to the aid of your party!

PARTY LINE: A reader writes to remind us that Rosh Hashana is Sept. 15 and that this celebration for the Jewish New Year of 5257 begins at sundown on Sept. 14. She suggests a charming custom for the occasion: serving a bowl of honey with a bowl of peeled and quartered apples. The idea is to dip the apples in the honey and eat them — to be sure you'll have a sweet new year.

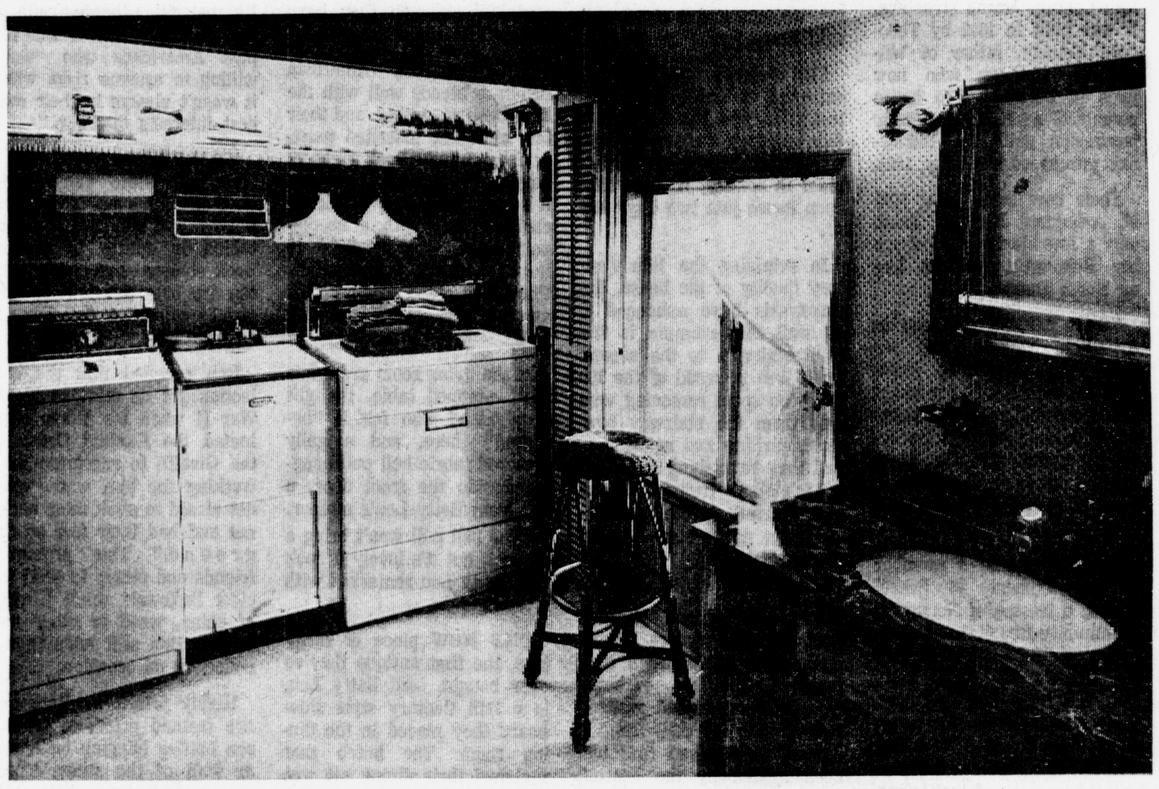
R.S.V.P. Won't you share your own special traditions and celebrations with "Hello, Hostess" readers? Just write "Hello, Hostess," c/o this newspaper.

GAME OF THE WEEK: "Bombing Squadron" — Give each player a paper bag and line up teams as squadrons for this noisy relay. At the signal, each player races to the goal line where he must blow up and pop his paper bag before running back to tag his team's next player. (SSD

THE FARM WIFE OF YESTERYEAR had nothing on Betty Lou Bukowski, Arlington Heights homemaker whose home is featured on the front page of Suburban Living this week. She has a pantry just as her 19th Century counterpart did—only it's a modern built-in. Merrilee, eldest of the four Bukowski children, demonstrates how the middle section of shelves in this "supermarket" cupboard pivots to provide access to shelves at the back. The cupboard provides 70 feet of storage in 30 feet of space. (Staff photo) (SSD



WHAT WAS ONCE A BEDROOM in the Bukowski home at 1005 N. Arlington Heights Road was changed when they remodeled the 75-year-old house into a combination laundry-bathroom. Although having laundry facilities on the second floor is unusual, Mrs. Bukowski finds it most convenient. The room opens into a large hall-like area the family has dubbed "the parlor." There are set up the ironing board and sewing machine plus a television set for moments of relaxation. (Staff photo) (SSD

College Romance Culminates In Marriage for Sylvia Roe

A college romance of three years' duration has culminated in marriage for Sylvia H. Roe, daughter of the Stanley C. Roes, 2295 W. Sunset Drive, Palatine, and Russell C. Bath, son of the Russell Baths of Beecher, Ill. The groom, a '66 graduate of Northern Illinois University, is employed by Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights, and his bride, a graduate of Palatine High School, is a senior at the university.

The couple were married in a double ring service Aug. 6 in the Methodist Church of Palatine with Rev. Donald O'Hair officiating.

A gown of beaded antique silk satin, fashioned with rounded neckline and chapel train, was the bride's choice for her marriage. A fingertip tulle veil held in place by a pearl tiara and a bouquet of white cushion mums and stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble. She was given in marriage by her father.

MISS JANICE Knez, a high school friend from Palatine, served the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Anita Moore of Kewanee and Diane Homewood of Loves Park, both college friends of the bride. Their gowns, all identical, were fashioned with moss green bodices and cream skirts, and they carried crescents of white daisy pompon mums.

Also in the wedding party were a flower girl and ring bearer. Both 7 years old, the bride's niece, June Roe of Grey Eagle, Minn. served as flower girl while Mark Roe, also of Grey Eagle, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer. June's gown was of white dotted swiss with a moss green sash.

Mrs. Bath chose an ecru dress and a corsage of the white carnations and pink rose buds. (Arlington Portrait

Joan Driscoll Wears Heart Pendant on Her Wedding Day

A silver heart pendant with a diamond center, a gift from her bridegroom, was the jewelry worn by Miss Joan Martha Driscoll, daughter of the Raymond J. Driscolls, 728 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, when she became the bride of David J. Brosseit, son of the Chester Brosseits of Des Plaines. The couple's wedding took place at 2 p.m. Aug. 6 in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, with Dr. Paul Louis Stumpf officiating.

Ferns tied with white bows marked the pews, and vases of gladioli and carnations were on either side of the altar. Mr. Driscoll gave his daughter in marriage during the double ring, candelight ceremony.

A crepe gown with chapel-length train, sculptured neckline and fitted bodice fashioned with one large bow and floating panels was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Alencon lace trimmed the bodice, the belled sleeves, the front of the slim sheath skirt and the train. Her nylon illusion double-tiered veil fell from a cluster of miniature pink roses, baby's breath and ivy and her bouquet was an English cascade of white roses, ivy and gardenias.

MAID OF HONOR to the bride was Miss Myna Cordaro of Pompano Beach, Fla., and bridesmaids were Mrs. Nancy Smith of Arlington Heights, Miss Louise Brosseit, the groom's sister from Des Plaines, and Miss Barbara Davis of Chicago.

Their gowns were of light blue organza over taffeta. Fashioned with empire waists, the gowns featured slim skirts and were trimmed at the waist and sleeves with lace and a rosebud design. Their flowers were nosegays of miniature pink roses and baby's breath circled with lace.

The bride's mother chose a rose-colored crepe and Irish lace sheath gown with white orchid corsage, while the groom's mother chose a light green two-piece knit suit with corsage of two cymbidiums in green.

William Robbins of Des Plaines was the groom's best man. His ushers were a brother, James Brosseit, also of Des Plaines, Robert Jacobson of Bensenville and Raymond Alajoki of Des Plaines. An additional usher was the bride's cousin, Mark Quinton of the Glenview Naval Air Station, who seated the bride's mother and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Olive A. Green of Arlington Heights.

IMMEDIATELY following the wedding, a reception for 140 guests was held at the Arlington Heights Elks Club of which the bride's father is now secretary and a past exalted ruler.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Wisconsinaire Resort in Minocqua and are now making their home in an apartment in Des Plaines at 1255 Washington St.

The home of Mrs. John Soderberg, 510 N. Maple, Prospect Heights, will be the setting, Wednesday, Sept. 21, for a membership tea sponsored by the Prospect Heights Woman's Club. Time of the tea will be from 1 to 4 p.m. The tea is given each year by the club as a welcome and invitation to all area women interested in joining the club.

Mrs. Robert Wroble, club president, pointed out that "Members in the club range from ages 25 years to 80 plus, including just about every age in between. This variation creates a good balance of ideas and activities."

The summer activities of the club included participation in the Fourth of July parade and continuance of volunteer service to Clearbrook School for Retarded Children. Activities also included assistance to Cook County Children's Hospital and Chicago State Hospital. Volunteer hours at the Prospect Heights Library, the club's main philanthropy also continued with a summer reading program for elementary students.

THE MONTHLY mailing of boxes of food and supplies to two adopted Army combat platoons in Viet Nam kept many workers busy. Boxes were packed and mailed twice a month throughout the summer. Donations and workers are always needed for this project according to Mrs. Wroble.

The planning of early fall projects has also taken its share of the summertime. First of these projects will be a fashion show luncheon to be held at Itasca Country Club.

Any woman interested in attending the tea or joining the club may contact any club member or call Mrs. Soderberg at CL 5-9107. (S

The bride, daughter of the Edwin R. Tierneys of Arlington Heights, was graduated from the Wooster, Ohio college in June '66 and her bridegroom, son of the Gordon S. Bundys of Akron, was graduated in '64.

The groom is now working on his Ph.D. in chemistry at Northwestern University while his bride, also a graduate of Arlington High School, is employed by the Social Security Administration in Chicago. Chicken Bordelaise Is Elegant Dinner Fare

Cocoa Bars Good As Finger Dessert

by LOIS SEILER

The experience of living in another country for two years was a memorable adventure for the Edward F. Prinslow family of Arlington Heights. And among the assets that Mrs. Prinslow credits to their life in Toronto, Canada, are some excellent recipes which she acquired from Canadian friends.

"One of my favorites is a Chicken Bordelaise Casserole," Jean Prinslow commented. "A Canadian neighbor brought this dish to me when I was confined after an automobile accident, and it was so delicious that I had to have the recipe," she said.

She has served it to guests several times since returning to the United States.

The casserole consists of a rich mushroom sauce which is topped by large pieces of chicken and sprinkled with a mixture of parmesan cheese and cornflake crumbs. Baked for 40 minutes until golden and bubbly, this Chicken Bordelaise is elegant dinner fare. Mrs. Prinslow recommends serving a Caesar salad and a crusty-type bread or Dilly bread as accompaniments.

THIS GOOD cook readily admits that she derives the most pleasure from cooking when she can cook for people who appreciate good food. Her extensive recipe collection includes so many excellent recipes that it was difficult to choose from among them. However, an obvious specialty was a recipe that has been in Mrs. Prinslow's family for generations.

"My grandmother and my mother always made many jars of Thousand Island Dressing at Christmas time, both for giving and for using," said Jean Prinslow.

She now follows the same custom and sends her homemade dressing, along with other goodies, to her friends and neighbors who live nearby as a Christmas greeting.

Easy to prepare, the dressing consists of mayonnaise, chili sauce and salad oil combined with chopped hard-boiled eggs, parsley, olives, pickle relish, pimientos and green pepper.

MRS. PRINSLOW simplifies the preparation by putting the eggs and vegetables through a meat grinder, but they can be chopped by hand. The recipe makes one quart, and the dressing is appealing served over lettuce wedges not only during the Christmas season, but any time of the year.

Another of Jean's favorites, which is suitable for any number of occasions, is a recipe which appeared in Better Homes and Gardens magazine in 1961.

Called Cocoa Bars, they are easy to prepare and are made from ingredients which homemakers usually keep on hand. Baked in a 9-inch square pan, the cake is iced while hot with a cocoa frosting and cut into bars when cool. The bars are light and tender with a delightful milk chocolate flavor which tastes delicious with ice cream.

"THESE BARS make a big hit with the Prinslows' four children: Kurt, 13, an eighth grader at Miner; Kelly, 11, a seventh grader; Chris, 8, fourth grade at Windsor, and Laurie, 5½, a first grader.

The Prinslow family lives at 11 N. Gibbons in Arlington Heights. In addition to her culinary interests, Mrs. Prinslow is active in several organizations. She teaches Sunday School at the First Presbyterian Church, is refreshment chairman for the Windsor PTA and belongs to chapter JX of P.E.O.

THEIR EXPRESSIONS leave no doubt that their mother's Cocoa Bars are a great favorite of Laura, Kurt, Kelly and Chris Prinslow of Arlington Heights. These bars are easy to prepare and have a light texture and delicious milk chocolate flavor. This recipe and two others, Chicken Bordelaise made by a Canadian recipe and a Thousand Island Dressing, are among Mrs. Edward F. Prinslow's specialties.

CHICKEN BORDELAISE CASSEROLE

1 3-pound frying chicken
1 cup hot water
½ pound mushrooms, canned or fresh
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup table cream
½ cup chicken stock
¾ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Shake of Accent
Generous shake of garlic salt
½ cup crushed cornflakes (1 cup before rolling)
¼ cup grated Parmesan Cheese

Add hot water to chicken and simmer, covered, until meat will slip from bones, 1¼ hours at simmer or 35 minutes at 10 pounds of pressure in pressure cooker. Turn all out on large platter or tray to cool enough to handle and slip meat from bones and skin. Keep pieces of chicken as large as possible.

Clean mushrooms and cut in fourths. Saute in margarine until limp but not brown. Sprinkle flour over and blend. Add cream and stock and stir until thick. Add salt, Worcestershire sauce, Accent and garlic salt. Turn into shallow casserole; arrange chicken over top.

Combine cornflake crumbs and cheese and sprinkle over top. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees, 30 to 40 minutes until golden and edges are bubbly. Serves 4 to 6.

THOUSAND ISLAND DRESSING

3 hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped olives with pimientos
1 tablespoon pickle relish or chopped sweet pickle
1 can pimientos, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup chili sauce
2/3 cup salad oil
1 cup mayonnaise

The first six ingredients may be put through a meat grinder, or chopped by hand. Combine these ingredients with chili sauce. Then add the oil slowly. Lastly, blend in the mayonnaise. Makes one quart.

COCOA BARS

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
1 cup sifted enriched flour
2 tablespoons cocoa
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped walnuts

Cream butter. Gradually add sugar and vanilla, creaming well. Beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in milk.

Sift together dry ingredients. Stir into creamed mixture. Add nuts.

Spread into a greased, 9-inch square pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minute or until done. At once, frost with the following cocoa frosting:

1½ tablespoons cocoa
1 tablespoon milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoons soft butter or margarine
2/3 cup confectioners sugar

Blend ingredients together with a spoon. This is a stiff frosting, but it is easy to spread on the hot cake. Cool cake; cut into bars. Makes two dozen.

The Spears had five children, Edward of Downers Grove; Mrs. Henry Hlavaty of Western Springs; Mrs. Howard Jones of Wheeling; the late Robert; and Richard Jr. who lives with his parents and operates a landscaping service. The couple has 13 grandchildren.

A special Mass at St. Emily's Church, Mount Prospect followed by a breakfast for members of the immediate family at Old Orchard Country Club will begin the festivities. The evening dinner will conclude the festivities.

Sweetheart of Kappa Sigma Is Bride of Byron Sayre II

The "Sweetheart of Kappa Sigma Fraternity" at Florida Southern College in Lakeland also became the sweetheart of one of the fraternity brothers, Byron James Sayre II, and the couple became man and wife on Sept. 1 in Christ Church of Short Hills, N. J. The bride is the former Eva Ann Lowe, daughter of the Charles E. Lowes of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 8 p.m. in the home church of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron J. Sayre, who had moved to Short Hills from Arlington Heights. The Sayres hosted the reception for 100 guests in their home following the nuptials.

WHILE AT Florida Southern the bride served a term as president of Kappa Delta Sorority and also made her debut at the Chattanooga Cotton Ball.

The groom attended Arlington High School, then studied at Florida Southern and later at the University of Iowa. He is now enrolled at Farleigh Dickson in Madison, N. J., while working in New York City for Halsey Stuart & Co.

The newlyweds are living with the groom's parents at 21 Cayuga Way, Short Hills, and the bride is working in the Springfield, N. J., school system.

Rev. Dr. Herbert H. Cooper united the couple by candlelight at an altar decked with white roses and English ivy.

THE ROSES AND ivy also formed a bouquet which the bride carried to accent her white Alencon lace gown and her illusion veil attached to a headpiece of seed pearls. The gown was V-necked, had long sleeves, a molded bodice and very full skirt.

The bride's only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

HER SISTER, Mrs. James F. Vickery Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., was her matron of honor, and best man was the groom's brother, William C. Sayre. Seating the guests were the bride's brother, Keith Lowe of Raleigh, N.C., and a friend, John Aughaugen.

The matron of honor was attired in a full-skirted gold and green peau de soie dress and carried a cascade of velvet red roses.

Mrs. Lowe wore a sky blue silk chiffon dress, accented with electric blue sleeves and matching accessories, and Mrs. Sayre wore a turquoise blue silk dress with matching jacket for the evening ceremony, Both wore white orchids.

A honeymoon in the Bahamas followed the festivities for the bridal pair.

Decor with Junk Is Program Topic

SARI KAYSSER

Ideas on how to decorate inexpensively with junk will be the theme of the program for St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Women's Club at its meeting this evening (Thursday) at 8.15 o'clock.

Mrs. Sari Kaysser, Lisle, Ill., homemaker and mother of three pre-schoolers, will present the program entitled "Junk Shopping with Sari."

In her lecture tour through antique shops guest speaker uses more than 20 of her junk-turned-treasurers to illustrate how an imaginative touch can turn most anything into decorative accessories, wall hangings, collages and even gifts.

A model and writer as well as lecturer, Mrs. Kaysser will give suggestions on collecting, fixing and using seemingly useless articles. (S

A Decorated Trailer Hauls Bride, Groom to Reception

A rather windy ride in an open trailer, appropriately decorated with streamers, colored lanterns, signs and a make-shift roof was a surprise feature for Jennifer Lynn Meyer and Richard H. Schmidt when they emerged from the church following their Aug. 13 wedding. The rig was also a surprise to the bridal party and the wedding guests, who watched aghast as two friends of the groom lifted the bride into the trailer. Seated on lawn chairs, the couple created no mild sensation as they rode for two miles down a main highway to their reception followed by a procession of 15 autos, all with horns honking.

The trailer was drawn by a Corvette with the bridal attendants following in another Corvette.

The wedding, a double ring service, took place at 6 p.m. in St. John Lutheran Church in Woodstock, where the bride's parents, the Herman C. Meyers, former Prospect Heights residents, are now making their home. The groom is the son of the Herman Schmidts of Waconia, Minn.

REV. HAROLD E. Theiss officiated at the service, held in a setting of white glads and carnations with white ribbons and bows marking the pews.

For her wedding, the bride chose a peau de soie sheath gown with chapel train. The gown was fashioned with fitted bodice and short sleeves with alencon lace trimming the waist and skirt. Seed pearls outlined the pattern of the lace. A chantilly, lace-petaled flower headpiece, highlighted with pearls and aurora borealis crystals, held her 3-tiered bouffant veil of silk illusion. Her flowers were a cascade of glamellias with a white orchid.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Karen Frishmann of Arlington Heights, served as matron of honor, while her niece, 12½-year-old Desiree Frischmann, served as junior bridesmaid. Other bridesmaids were a college roommate, Miss Janet Braun of Louisville, Mrs. Karen Riffle of Wheeling and Mrs. Diane Graziano of Franklin Park.

THEIR GOWNS were of yellow linen, fashioned with floor-length skirts and empire bodices, and they carried white and pale yellow daisies which matched the trim on the bodices of their gowns. Mrs. Frischmann's flowers also included dark yellow daisies.

Serving the groom as best man was William Stewart of West Chicago, and ushers were Richard Smith, also of West Chicago, Albert Grobe, a college roommate from Itasca, Paul Melchert, a brother-in-law from Wauconia, and Art Boettcher a cousin from Milwaukee.

The reception for 125 guests was held at the Timbers Restaurant in Woodstock where Mrs. Meyer received in a light olive green lace suit with jacket and matching shoes. Her corsage was a shaded cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Schmidt chose a pale pink 2-piece dress with harmonizing cymbidium and ribbon trim.

THE COUPLE honeymooned at the Dells and Lake Geneva for a week and are now at home at 4101-D Carrollton, Bridgeton, Mo.

The bride, a graduate of Prospect High School, attended Valparaiso University for two years and until her marriage resided in an Arlington Heights apartment while working at First Mutual Savings Association, Chicago. The groom was graduated in June '66 with an engineering degree from Valparaiso. He is now employed by McDonnell Aircraft in St. Louis. (Jenart) (S

Michael D. Moorman Marries Dundee Girl in Simple Rites

A simple ceremony performed Aug. 6 in St. James Episcopal Church, Dundee, united Carol Eichler of that village and Michael Dean Moorman of 642 N. Roselle Road, Inverness. After the 3 o'clock rites witnessed only by the couple's families, there was a reception for the pair at the country home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ralph Root.

Two hundred guests greeted them before they departed on a 2½-week honeymoon trip to New York City, Nassau and Bermuda.

THE BRIDE'S father, E. H. Eichler of Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, gave her in marriage. The groom's parents are the S. D. Moormans of Inverness.

For her wedding day, the bride wore a floor-length sheath gown of white organza with Swiss cotton lace trim. Bands of the lace accented the slim lines of the dress from scooped neckline to the hem. A flat bow of the organza held her illusion veil in place, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids with stephanotis.

HER MAID of honor was Margaret Bethke of Dundee who wore a yellow and white cotton dress, floor-length, and carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums and roses.

Two bridesmaids, Mrs. Ward Doyle and Miss Joy Beverly, both of Dundee, were also gowned in the yellow and white and carried matching bouquets.

Best man was William Yokas of Gary, Ind., and the groom's brother, Mark Moorman, and Frank McCullough of Albany, N. Y., seated the wedding guests.

The couple are now living in Phoenix, Ariz., where the groom is doing graduate work at the American Institute for Foreign Trade. He studied for the past year in Europe after attending St. Lawrence University in Canton, N. Y.

His bride was graduated in June from the University of Wisconsin. (S

Barbara Schweigert Weds July 30 in Hoffman Rites

Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Hoffman Estates was the setting for the July 30 marriage ceremony of Barbara Schweigert, 402 Bluebonnet Lane, and John L. Johnson Jr. of Dunlap, Ill. After the double ring rites at 4:30 in the afternoon the couple was feted at a buffet supper and evening of dancing at Barrington Knights of Columbus Hall.

Yellow and white formed the color scheme as the bride entered the sanctuary, her A-line empire gown of white silk organza and lace complementing the yellow chiffon dresses of her attendants. The bride's dress had a lace bodice studded with seed pearls, scalloped neckline and sleeves and a short train. Her triple-tiered veil was held in place by a petal headpiece, and her bouquet was composed of phalaenopsis orchids with stephanotis.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Schweigert of Hoffman Estates, and the groom's parents are the John Johnsons of Kewanee, Ill.

Four attendants preceded the bride down the aisle, all gowned alike in yellow chiffon empire-styled dresses which ended in short trains.

Maid of honor Dell Ann Kappus of Eau Claire, Wis., carried a bouquet of yellow and white phalaenopsis on a white lace fan, and the bridesmaids, Karen Johnson, sister of the groom; Linda Nicholson of Chicago, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Joy Schweigert of Cary, her sister-in-law, carried all yellow orchids in their bouquets.

THEIR ESCORTS were Lawrence Bartman of Dunlap as best man; Gordon Dunbar of Princeton, Ill., Jerry Schweigert, brother of the bride, and Ken Schweigert of Aurora, the bride's uncle.

Ushers were Ron Schweigert, her brother, and Don Karrau of Kewanee.

Her younger brother, Roger Schweigert, 6, carried the rings for the ceremony, and the bride's niece, 2½-year-old Jodi Schweigert of Cary, was the flower girl. She wore a yellow chiffon dress and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

GREETING THE 250 guests at the reception, Mrs. Schweigert wore a deep pink silk linen sheath dress with a lace tunic, and Mrs. Johnson was attired in peacock blue crepe and lace.

The couple honeymooned at a lake cabin at Alexandria, Minn., and are now living in Dunlap, Ill., to be near Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, where the groom is employed.

A graduate of Palatine High School, the bride attended Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, and the groom studied at Western Illinois University, Macomb.

Tightening of Gun Controls Necessary

Congress and the states must act soon to tighten controls on the availability of weapons.

In recent years, Congress and the Illinois Legislature have had the opportunity to tighten gun control laws and have failed in their responsibility by not acting. In so doing, they have knuckled under to pressure from riflemen's groups who, overzealously guarding their right to collect weapons of sport, unwittingly champion the "right" of all persons—criminals, demented persons and children—to unfettered access to all manner of weapons, including those whose sole purpose is murder or warfare.

Senate staff members, accumulating evidence to prove the need for legislation, have found it possible to acquire sophisticated weaponry from distant mail order houses with no question using coupons clipped from children's publications. Everyone is familiar with the ease with which Lee Harvey Oswald acquired his murder weapon anonomously, by mail.

We do not mean to suggest it should be made overly difficult for honest sportsmen or gun collectors to acquire legitimate sports or collectors items, nor that it should be made impossible for persons in need of physical protection to obtain objects of self defense.

We do suggest the safety of our people requires that government attempt to restrict the flow of arms to adults of sound moral and mental character. Opponents of legislation point to the second amendment of the U.S. Constition, which reads:

"A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

The opponents say that amendment —intended to insure a people's militia —prohibits effective controls on the sale of weapons. That is nonsense. The framers of the Constitution never foresaw that children would have access to machine guns, that racially tense areas would become armed camps, that dissident political groups would be able to amass private armies nor that demented persons would be able to accumulate arsenals.

Congress has before it now legislation proposed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.), long a champion of weapon control. Dodd would ban the sale of pistols and revolvers to anyone under 21 and rifles and shotguns to anyone under 18. He would regulate interstate shipment of sporting rifles and shotguns through an affidavit provision, allowing notification of local authorities when a sale takes place by mail.

We find these provisions reasonable; they should be approved.

In the last session of the Illinois Legislature, there was proposed a bill to license hand guns. Although it was responsible legislation, it was killed largely through a strenuous lobbying effort by the National Rifle Association.

There is no guarantee that responsible state and federal legislation will rule out abuses of the "right to bear arms," that mass slayings, syndicate murders and political assassinations will cease. But there is solid evidence that murder-by-gun will be reduced by stricter controls. In the nation as a whole, 55 per cent of all murders last year were committed with guns.

In states with some measure of control over sale of guns, the rate was 37 per cent. In states with no gun-sale control law, the rate was 64 per cent.

Legislation may cause inconvenience for the legitimate gun enthusiast. That inconvenience is well worth the price of a safer America.

Industry and Water

Development of effective water management programs is a problem facing all areas of the nation in varying degrees. It is one of the major problems of the Chicago metropolitan area.

Too often, it has appeared that the problem was being ignored by industry —one of the biggest benefactors of a reliable supply of clean water—while government and other groups worked at finding answers. There are signs that is no longer the case as industrialists become increasingly aware of the problem.

A spokesman for a northwest suburban industry, R. C. Smith of A. O. Smith Harvestor Products, recently termed water pollution "the 20th Century's greatest tragedy." Addressing the Soil Conservation Society of America, Smith declared that "no segment of our society can escape its share of guilt."

Smith said it was tragic that industry representatives failed to speak out at a recent midwestern public hearing on water quality, and he suggested industry work with government to solve the problem:

"Privately, they (industrialists) stated that they were afraid to speak out of fear that if they favored the recommendations governmental agencies would wonder what was wrong with the standards and if they objected . . . they would be called uncooperative. Industry representatives must have the fortitude to stand up and be counted, or we will have a hodge-podge of regulations that will be essentially meaningless in the solution of our common problem."

The Ladies' Prodding

Northwest suburban leagues of women voters Sept. 19 will open their annual campaign to collect operating funds for the year ahead. They deserve the support of businessmen and civic groups.

The league performs a valuable function in developing nonpartisan voter service information, in studying issues and in making recommendations to the voting public. Their work on the local level has improved local government to the benefit of residents and the business community.

Another good reason to encourage these spunky ladies is their value in prodding the conscience of the public and party leaders.

Just recently, for example, the state league sent reminders to the platform committees of both parties, citing the need for some basic overhauls in our state system. Among them: annual sessions of the Legislature, replacing horse and buggy era sessions on a biennial basis; a change in the state apportionment article to bring it into harmony with the one-man, one-vote rule; a thoroughgoing review of the Illinois Constitution through the calling of a constitutional convention.

Neither party replied to the ladies' prodding. Perhaps that, in itself, is evidence of the need for a continuing, strong league.

Teens Forget Nazi Horror?

by NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

A mob of teenagers were waving signs smeared with black swastikas . . . youths clad in brown shirts led the cheers . . . the "Fuhrer" shouted obscenities from a podium high above the crowds . . .

A scene from Fascist Germany in the 1930's?

Wrong. This was the setting of a recent revival of the Nazi Party of America. Dateline: Marquette Park, Chicago, 1966.

The Nazi Party, it seems, has decided to get into the act again. This time, it's to obliterate the "black-man" with blistering speeches and marches and to unite white Americans in their bid for supremacy and power.

BENCO

George Lincoln Rockwell and his Nazi band have added their special brand of racism to the already explosive racial situation in Chicago. The new Fuhrer's dramatized rallies have attracted hundreds of people to the party.

And unfortunately many of the newcomers are young whites, teenagers of high school age, the new generation which does not remember the murderous deeds of the old Nazis.

IT IS THIS lack of memory which apparently has brought the young blood to the forefront of the facist movement in Chicago. Rockwell, a handsome dark-haired man, clad in the symbolic khaki uniform, his eyes shaded by dark sunglasses, has capitalized on this point.

The Nazi Party — the scourge of Europe 30 years ago — was a revolutionary call to the German and Italian masses. "Fuhrer" Adolph Hitler proclaimed the Germans as the master race, superior to other ethnic and racial groups. He denounced the Jew and the Negro as occupying the lower rungs of the racial ladder.

His appeal was completely emotional. As Hitler strengthened the Third Reich, he became the object of hysterical worship. "Heil Hitler!" became the obligatory greeting of thousands of Germans.

HITLER'S armies swept through Europe in a wave of terror in the 1940's. When the Second World War ended, nations of the world hurriedly seized control of Germany and subdivided it to prevent another occurrence of German militant supremacy.

With such a history, it seems inconceivable that the Nazi Party should again rear its ugly head — and so apparently successfully in our own backyard.

Furthermore it is a sad commentary on the youth of Chicago when they willfully support such a racist group.

ROCKWELL shows signs of filling the late "fuhrer's" boots — though in modified form. Cook County Sheriff Richard Ogilvie recently charged Rockwell with disorderly conduct, and temporarily threw him in jail. Chicago Mayor Richard Daley is on record for saying he did not want agitators coming into the city — the Nazi Party was among those named.

An official of the Jewish War veterans called on city officials specifically to ask them to prohibit Nazi party demonstrations. Rockwell was expected to march into Cicero last Sunday. He is planning to send his "storm troops" into a Negro neighborhood Sept. 10. His speeches — a miserable harangue of abuse against the Negro — are not even broadcast by local radio stations.

And so goes the current history of the American Nazi.

Quite ironically, as an increasing number of young people pledge their support to Rockwell, a rising number of German students express dismay over the stigma left them by the German Nazis. Magazine and newspaper articles report their attempts to give Germany a new face, free from the past.

PERHAPS A call to the intelligence and rationalization of the American student is the only hope for stamping out the Nazi Party in the United States. Perhaps the older generations can make its memories of the '30's heard.

Or perhaps we may have to wait for the American Nazi Party to extinguish itself — the last flash of an already dead candle.

Behind the Headlines

Reducing Government

By PAT HENSEL
Staff Writer

"One new unit of local government is created in the United States every day."

That was the average reported in 1964 by the National Association of Counties.

The situation appears even more alarming this year — rousing the U. S. Committee for Economic Development (CED) to propose "revolutionary" solutions.

HENSEL

CED is campaigning to reduce the nation's 80,000 local governments to a maximum of 16,000, cut drastically the number of elected officeholders, and consolidate local governments on a regional (or 50,000 population) basis with a single chief executive.

Then, CED would want to give those consolidated municipal and county governments responsibility for the many functions now controlled by overlapping special districts and single-purpose authorities.

THE TREND is here already.

School districts have merged gradually over the years. From the old one school, one superintendent arrangement they grew to several schools in one district under one superintendent.

Then, came unification, with two or more school districts, each with its own school board, operating under one superintendent.

It won't be long before all unified districts become unit districts, with one superintendent and one school board in charge of several school systems.

The last step, still on the drawing boards, will be federation of several unit districts under one superintendent.

DuPage County is trying to meet tribulations through the strengthening of an Urban County Problems Council — for counties on the fringes of the Chicago metropolitan area.

Cook County, on the other hand, is the pivot for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, which is still only advisory but has every chance of becoming a metropolitan area governing board.

THE BIGGEST bargains are supposed to come in super economy-sized packages.

The more than 30,000 people of Mount Prospect may be solving their own problems because their resources are available on a more regional basis.

The 12,000 people of Bensenville, however, are struggling under diverse local districts, not one of which can quite manage the finances or flexibility it needs to surmount its problems.

This contrast is just the sort of tempting argument CED puts forth for the consolidation of governing units into stronger and larger municipalities, counties, or regional agencies.

SMALL SPECIAL districts and small single-purpose authorities are relatively new on the American scene. They have escaped the careful scrutiny scholars give to other levels of government.

There is little difference between the two.

A special district is an agency, operating outside the regular structure of government, which relies primarily on special taxes within the district.

A public authority is the same kind of agency, but it relies primarily on revenue bond issues.

Local governments are to blame, usually, for the creation of special districts: they meet exigencies of the moment.

The fact that there now are more little special districts and authorities in the United States than there are cities gives some indication of the far-reaching effects of trying to solve immediate emergencies with hard-to-dissolve new agencies.

THERE ARE two possible solutions — the creation of more of these units of local government, each with a special function, or the consolidation of diverse functions in existing, strengthened local units of government.

The arguments against federation of local units are several. Each has a counter-argument.

—Consolidations could result in the inflationary circumvention of debt ceilings based on assessed valuation of real estate.

But, they also could result in more favorable financing of needed capital construction. They would permit juggling of projects without the onus of a bond issue referendum when local governments have borrowed to the limit and still have not met pressing needs.

—CONSOLIDATED agencies with expansive programs would attract specialists who might not be responsive to the people nor relate well to particular geographic areas. There would be the advantages of both government and business, and the restraints of neither.

But, they also would attract professional and business experts who think in terms of specialization and not in terms of political expediency.

—Federations would obscure the individual characteristics of local governments and decentralize local problems and solutions.

But, they also would form more logical lines of jurisdiction, no longer tied to boundaries drawn a century ago, and would encompass geographic, natural factors.

THERE IS NO reason why there can't be functional integration of water and sewer service, police protection, road and airport construction, and drainage and recreation facilities on a county or regional basis.

Whether to pay higher taxes to fewer, larger units, or lower more numerous taxes to smaller more numerous units is something the taxpayers—and voters — will have to decide.

Off Her Pedestal

by DAN BAUMANN
Managing Editor

Welcome back, friendly skies.

It was a long strike. While we enjoyed a side benefit (our under-the-O'Hare-pattern neighborhood was quiet for a change), it is well the strike is over.

MILLIONS OF people were inconvenienced. Hundreds of thousands canceled or postponed trips or used slower means. And thousands — the employes of airlines that weren't struck —were driven near the point of distraction.

BAUMANN

When the end came, the relief of the unstruck almost made you forget the financial benefits they received from staying aloft. No sooner had the strike ended than Braniff ran a large newspaper ad showing one of its stewardesses sitting — or rather crumpled — in a chair. Her fashion-designed uniform wrinkled, she was barely able to utter, "Welcome back, plain colored planes." The strike had caused such hustle at Braniff, the ad confided, that "frankly, our Pucci's were about pooped."

Shortly afterwards, American Airlines came out with its first post-strike edition of an employes' magazine, dedicated to the job its employes did in handling the extra work.

The report was filled with pictures of American employes being kind to the flying public under trying circumstances. To prove it was all worth it, the magazine reprinted humorous anecdotes about the strike and excerpts from letters of thanks received from the public.

Among the anecdotes was a story about a haughty matron at Kennedy who demanded priority because, as she put it, "I am British."

When told this was not grounds for special treatment, she popped out her glass eye and announced, "Well, I am also blind."

In San Francisco, a very pregnant looking woman was granted special status. Once assigned to a flight, however, she lost weight— and a large pillow.

One thing the strike accomplished on a permanent basis was to take the stewardess off her pedestal. Advertisements run by Braniff and American showed her in most unladylike slouches, symbolic apparently of how both airlines felt after their trial.

The American employe magazine showed a stewardess at work in a cabin who looked positively terrible. And it told of one stewardess who flew coast to coast with full planes every trip. "It was five hours of running each time," she said. "You simply never sat down."

One day, a passenger upbraided her for not smiling. She pointed out what a strain everyone was under. Unmoved, the man told her, "You're getting paid to smile."

"It was shortly after that," she said, "that I dropped two trays and cried."

"OPEN YOUR EYES"

Seeing is much more than a physical process. It's primarily an understanding that develops from our deepest prayers and lights the world with the reflected love of God. It's called "spiritual perception." It's the only way we'll ever know what's really going on. Hear this public lecture called "Open Your Eyes," by MARTIN N. HEAFER, C.S., of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

It's 'Happy Time' For Guild Players

The Guild Players theatre group starts its ninth season in the northwest suburban area with the production of a rollicking comedy, "Happy Time."

Resident director Victor Simone selected the cast for the Guild Players' 25th production following auditions last week.

"Happy Time" has its setting in French-Canadian Ottawa in the early 1920's. Principal characters in the family comedy are Papa and Maman Bernnard, to be played by Art Blackaller and Robby Schnarel. Their adolescent son Bibi will be enacted by Mike Catlin.

NATE LEVIN will portray the aging but still zesty head of the gay household, Grandpere. The always inebriated Uncle Louis and bon vivant Uncle Dismonde will be played by Ken Boutelle and Bru Fortune.

The character role of the shrewish Aunt Felice will be handled by Sarita Ostos. Adding the romantic interest with a French accent will be Karen Koreba, playing Mignonette, the visiting circus acrobat.

The rest of the cast will be Sid Sicher as Dr. Gagnon, Hank Netter as Mr. Frye, Dennis O'Brien as Alfred and Susan Urbas as Sally.

The Guild Players will present its plays for the second season in the theater at Lake Park Hih School, Medinah. "Happy Time" will be "on the boards" Friday and Saturday, Oct. 7 and 8.

Season tickets are still available. Information may be obtained by calling the box office 529-1067.

REHEARSING A SCENE from Guild Players season opener, "Happy Time," are Karen Kariba, left, cast as Mignonette, and Bru Fortun, playing Desmonde. The comedy, set in French-Canadian Ottawa during the 1920's, will be given at Lake Park High School Oct. 7 and 8.

Chorus Auditions

Auditions for the Chicago Symphony Chorus, which is composed of both professional and amateur singers, will begin Tuesday, Sept. 13.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS ARTIST Sue Kehe shows some of the work she will exhibit at the invitational Old Orchard Arts Festival this Saturday and Sunday in Skokie. Mrs. Kehe is known for her paintings and prints and is a founding director of Countryside Art Gallery.

Sue Kehe Chosen to Exhibit At Old Orchard Art Show

A versatile artist with a strong sense of design is Mrs. John Kehe, 638 N. Highland, Arlington Heights.

Because of these qualities she has been chosen from 900 Chicago area artists to exhibit her work at the Old Orchard Arts Festival this weekend.

The invitational art fair, presented by North Shore Art League, will include the work of 110 painters, Mrs. Kehe among them, and 30 sculptors.

SUE KEHE, familiar to patrons of Countryside Art Gallery both for her work and as a founding director, has a background in commercial art. After study at the Chicago Academy of Art, she designed gift wrappings and greeting cards and also designed and illustrated children's books before her marriage.

Mrs. Kehe continued her commercial art career on a free lance basis after marriage but gave it up six years ago after her involvement with Countryside Art Center and devoted herself exclusively to serious painting and printmaking.

More recently she has opened her own business, Sue K. Studios. She purchases fine art from the artist for resale to decorators, offices and industrial concerns.

BESIDES having her work in the Countryside Gallery, Mrs. Kehe has had paintings and prints shown at the Chicago Society Show at Harper Galleries, the Northbrook Art League invitational exhibit, the Covenant Club Gallery, the University Club, the John M. Smyth Co. art exhibit and the Chicago Art Institute Sales and Rental Gallery.

Mrs. Kehe, whose husband is in the real estate and insurance business, has a daughter in college and two sons in high school.

PETER FONDA and Nancy Sinatra are the rebellious lovers in "The Wild Angels," controversial drama of ruthless motorcycle gangs coming to the screens of the Mount Prospect Cinema and the Oasis Drive In starting tomorrow (Friday).

Caricatures, Singing Features of Art Fair

On-the-spot caricatures by Mount Prospect artist Bob Bowman, 612 Albion Lane, and songs by The Yesteryears barber shop quartet from the Arlington Heights chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. will be special features of an outdoor art fair Sunday in Des Plaines.

Seventeen Paddock area artists will be among the 90 exhibitors showing works at the fair sponsored by Des Plaines Art Guild in downtown Des Plaines.

This is the 11th annual outdoor fair given by the Art Guild, and for the fourth straight year, the show will be staged in the parking lot of Des Plaines National Bank along the North Western Railroad tracks between Lee Street and Graceland from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.

In case of rain, the fair will be held the following Sunday, Sept. 18, at the same time and location.

Mount Prospect artists participating in addition to Bowman are K. Dawn Butler, 760 W. Dempster; Pierre Deck, 805 S. Hi-Lusi; Christl Hansen, 110 S. Edward; Mrs. Charles A. Schult, 808 S. I-Oka; Mrs. George A. Trefelner, 707 S. William, and Hedvic Vlasak, 611 S. Emerson.

Arlington Heights residents exhibiting Sunday include Mrs. Richard P. Anderson, 3207 N. Jackson; Lucille E. Anderson (Luciandi), 1215 W. Sigwalt St., Mrs. F. J. Mueller, 841 N. Belmont, and Irene Partridge, 1310 N. Yale.

Mrs. Nels E. Anderson, 802 Rose Ave., Prospect Heights; Mrs. Conrad Kruse, 718 S. Williams, Palatine, and Mrs. Norman Jasinski, 706 W. Turner Ave., Roselle; are other participants from this area.

Wheeling residents Mrs. E. A. Fox, 1092 Kenilworth Drive; Mrs. Ronald E. Bruhn, 301 E. Dennis Road, and Mrs. Joseph Pecora, 1460 Marcy Lane, complete the list of Paddock area artists entered in the show.

Admission to the outdoor art fair is free and refreshments will be available all afternoon. An added feature of this year's fair, according to Mrs. Bruhn, president of Des Plaines Art Guild, will be organ music provided throughout the day by Maria Schaefer Music Store of Des Plaines, and entertainment by two vocal groups.

Appearing in a half-hour program of close harmony at 1:30 p.m. will be The Yesteryears, a newly formed barber shop quartet from the Arlington Heights chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., Inc. Members of the foursome are Vern Bertrand, 294 Edgewood Drive, Wheeling, baritone; Ed Lindsey, 1410 Small Lane, Mount Prospect, tenor; Len Klaproth, 337 Edgewood Drive, Wheeling, lead, and Gus Neill, 217 Stratton Lane., Mount Prospect, bass.

At 3:30 p.m., fair patrons will be treated to a half-hour of folk songs by The Terrace Singers, three young women who play and teach guitar. Mrs. George Whipple and Mrs. Stuart, both of Des Plaines, and Mrs. Frank Nebel, 198 Patricia Lane, Prospect Heights, comprise this trio.

The Des Plaines National Bank and the Des Plaines Journal will make purchase awards totaling $200. In addition, The Des Plaines Art Guild will present first, second and third place cash prizes and ribbons in both oils and watercolors. Judges for these awards will be Mrs. Charles Brockman, president of Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights, and Edward G. Gale of Des Plaines, advertising artist and art teacher. (Bill

You are about to invest money for an ad and you are entitled to get results. To accomplish this it is necessary for you to TELL ALL about the details of your offer. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that prevent results:

1. DON'T OMIT THE ADDRESS

Many out-of-town readers will write you, but will not spend money for a long distance call.

2. DON'T OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER

Many readers will call you but do not find it convenient to come to your home.

3. DON'T USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS

Avoid them if at all possible. They are difficult to answer and many people are suspicious of them.

SQUARE DANCE CLUB NEWS

Dorothy Meyer CL 3-2298

DANCE CLASSES

Anyone with a yen to join the booming square dance movement can translate vague wishes into positive action via any one of several beginners' classes starting this month. In the Glenview area, instruction begins in Lyons School Friday, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m. Complete information about these classes may be obtained from Hank and Marilyn Speer, phone 824-1362. Lombard non-dancers are invited to change their status to "experts" by way of lessons given by Gene Tidwell in the Lombard Civic Center, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 7:30 p.m. Information sources are the Cartwrights, MA 9-2452, and the Bowers, MA 7-6473.

The Arlington Heights park district is again cooperating with Arlington Squares to bring square dance lessons to area enthusiasts. Twenty weekly lessons will be given by "Tib" Tibbetts in Recreation Park Fieldhouse, beginning Monday night, Sept. 19, at 8 o'clock. To register or ask questions, phone the park district office, CL 3-0620, or the Lyle Busses, CL 5-2157. A second class of 20 sessions will begin in Northbrook with Arlington Squares' Russ Lee in charge. First lesson is Tuesday evening, Oct. 4, in Grove School; information available from the Santlers, CR 2-5342.

ANOTHER future source of square dance instruction is the new Square Dance Center, 1622 N. Rand Road, Arlington Heights, scheduled to open Oct. 1. Round dance and square dance classes are listed on the program in a brochure recently left with us by Arvid Olson, the center's "man in the know." He's currently also a man on the go and until the center's opening date he'll be hard to catch at 255-4060, but try that number after Oct. 1.

Square dance instruction is a regular part of weekly dance sessions in Mount Prospect Country Club where area teens meet with caller-teacher Harry Glass every Thursday night at 7:30. Watusi-weary teens are invited to call John Christiansen, CL 5-3442, for information about joining the Group.

PALATINE SQUARES

Among area clubs starting off the 1966-67 season this coming weekend is the Palatine Squares, welcoming a new caller as well as a new year of dancing. Bob Poyner, recently of Florida and now of Plainfield, makes the midwest scene Saturday night in Pleasant Hill School when he squares 'em at 8:30. Guests are welcome.

PALATINERS AND always-welcome visitors will dance throughout the season on the second and fourth Saturday nights of every month with Poyner at the mike second Saturdays and veteran Jim Stewart calling the turns fourth Saturdays. Back for another year, too, are Jerry and Dot Daniels, longtime favorites of the round dance set. They'll be 'round every dance night. All dances will be held in the school, located at Illinois and Cedar Streets in Palatine.

ARLINGTON SQUARES

FRIDAY NIGHTS are dance nights for the Arlington club, opening the new season with a Kickoff Dance tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner St., Arlington Heights. The Jerry-Dot Daniels duo will lead a round dance workshop at 8 o'clock, and everyone's welcome then, too. Club callers Jim Smith and Lenny Roos will share the mike for tomorrow's opener, then alternate throughout the rest of the season.

Regularly scheduled dances will be held in the school the second and fourth Friday nights of every month and guests will always be welcome.

GLENVIEW SQUARES

Although Glenview dancers greeted the new season last weekend with a traditional warm-up dance, they scarcely needed the warming up—they'd danced the summer through. An outdoor swinger Aug. 20 concluded a schedule of vacation fun that included a family picnic-dance. Not long after the June 26 picnic the Lloyd Johnsons announced the birth of their third son, and club congratulations went to Mrs. Johnson for having the baby in a hospital — her fellow dancers were sure she'd have him at the picnic.

THERE'LL BE two more dances this month, Sept. 16 and 30; then the club will return to its usual first-and-third-Friday schedule. Ed Hempel returns as caller, and Gerry and May Hoffberg will lead the rounds. All dances will be in Lyons School, Waukegan Road and Lake Ave., Glenview, and guests are always welcome.

Newly elected officers are Lewis and Sandy Levitan, Chuck and Mary Welter, Dick and Betty Tveter and the Lloyd Johnsons. The Welters, phone NE 1-6865, will be happy to answer questions about the club, send a dance schedule—and plug the club motto, "You meet the nicest people at the Glenview Square Dance Club."

SQUARE WHEELS

ELMHURST DANCE enthusiasts are invited to square up with the Square Wheels the first and third Friday nights of every month in the American Legion Starlight Room. Jim Smith will call for square dancing from 8:30 to 11:30, immediately following a half-hour of round dance instruction by Jerry and Dot Daniels. The legion hall is located at Butterfield Road and Spring Street in Elmhurst. Further information about dances or club membership is available via Mr. and Mrs. Ken Rogers, 833-7125, or the Tom McKays, 832-9253.

The club recently awarded diplomas to graduating members of a summertime beginners class. Special recognition went to one dedicated student who belatedly learned that she'd danced an entire evening with a broken toe.

BUCKS AND DOES

Everyone's invited to help the Elk Grovers welcome a new season of dancing Saturday Junior High School, Dempster Junior High School, Dempsterc and Elmhurst Roads. Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be at the mike, club members will be at the door to welcome you. (A-15
